President defends himself on issues

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon said Saturday night the American people "have got to know whether or not their President is a crook," and declared, "Well, I'm not a crook. I earned everything I got."

He said once again that he is innocent of Watergate involvement, revealed new details about his personal finances, and vowed to strive for a restoration of confidence in his leadership.

Watergate and other allegations about the administration dominated the nationally televised question-and-answer session with some 400 editors of Associated Press member newspapers.

But the questioning did turn to the energy crisis, and Nixon said he does not want gasoline rationing imposed now or in the near future.

Even as he spoke of rationing, the problems he faces because of Watergate became part of his answer. Nixon noted that as a personal step to save energy, he ordered the back-up airplane left behind on his current trip to Florida.

"If this one goes down, it goes down, then they don't have to impeach," he said.

Nixon, asked whether gasoline rationing was imminent, said he wants only a contingency plan to give him standby authority if needed.

But as matters now stand, the President said, he does not want rationing invoked because of the problems it would raise. He said it would require a huge bureaucracy, and would be very much resented by the American people.

Nixon said he will not pledge that rationing will never become necessary, adding that he hopes voluntary steps he has already outlined to cut energy consumption will suffice.

At several points in his hour-long news conference with the APME at Disney World, Nixon made wry remarks about the problems he faces. For example, asked what he plans to do after he leaves office, he said, "I think it depends on when I leave."

Nixon said he intends to do some writing, and, if thorough reform has not come by that time, to work in behalf of ways to prevent abuses of the political campaign process.

Nixon ran overtime at his own request. "Television, keep me on," he said, pointing a finger at the cameras after the hour allotted for the session was over.

He insisted that he wanted to discuss charges that his administration boosted milk price supports in return for dairy industry promises of contributions to his re-election campaign.

Official dedication

Skylab crew gets ready

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — It was hook up, turn on and move in day aboard America's space station Saturday as the Skylab 3 astronauts prepared their home in orbit for a three-month stay.

Feeling fit and eager after the first night in space, astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue removed a hatch from the Apollo command ship that ferried them up to Skylab Friday and moved into the house-size space station where they'll live and work until February.

They plunged eagerly into the first of four days of station activation. Like tourists arriving at a vacation home, the astronauts turned on the plumbing, air conditioning and lights and checked out communications.

They also transferred several hundred pounds of food, film and other supplies from the command ship.

Carr, Pogue and Gibson spent the night aboard the command ship and reported feeling well after awakening.

They also reported healthy appetites, an indication, said Mission Control, that they may have escaped the motion sickness that sent the Skylab 2 crewmen to bed several times during the early days of their mission.

Pogue apparently had recovered from a mild siege of nausea reported Friday night. All three Skylab 3 astronauts took motion-sickness medication to stifle the ailment before it began, doctors said.

The astronauts are not expected to start scientific research, the main business of their 84 days in space, until Wednesday. The long activation process includes checking out each of the hundreds of complex systems aboard the 118foot-long space station.

Once they have moved in, the astronauts will begin a 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. EST daily schedule of scientific research.

They will use a powerful array of telescopes and cameras to study the sun, hoping to learn more about earth's source of heat and light.

Another battery of cameras will study the earth. Photographs taken on special film may help experts in the search for oil and mineral deposits, and provide new information on agriculture, forestry, water resources, land use and pollution sources.

Much of Skylab's research is concentrated on the men themselves. They will conduct daily medical experiments to determine how their bodies are responding to the weakening effects of weightless life. Muscles, including the heart, tend to decondition in the absence of gravity's constant tug. The astronauts must exercise vigorously daily to slow the wasting of muscle tissue.

The comet Kohoutek, now speeding toward a loop around the sun, will be photographed by the space-walking astronauts using special instruments.

Scientists hope the men of Skylab will bring home data on the composition of the comet, perhaps answering questions about the material that formed the solar system.

Can gas rationing work?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a flourishing black market and a clumsy bureaucracy, gasoline rationing during World War II had one big thing going for it: It worked.

But of all the rationing programs ordered by the government to conserve precious wartime supplies, the gasoline program proved the most difficult to administer.

The program began nationwide on Dec. 1, 1942, after months of preparation. Gasoline rationing had been in effect along the Eastern Seaboard since May of that year.

It lasted until Aug. 15, 1945. Although supplies were short at times during the war, the nation's industrial war machine never broke down. Factory workers got to work. The nation got along on only 50 per cent of the usual gasoline supplies for consumer use.

Now, President Nixon is considering gasoline rationing as one means of combatting the fuel shortage variously estimated at 14 to 21 per cent.

If the old wartime system is used, it will mean that Americans will have to get accustomed to a little paperwork when they pull into a gasoline station.

The wartime program was a coupon system. A coupon, or ration stamp, issued by the government had to be presented to the service station operator when gas was bought. The coupon limited the amount of fuel that could be bought.

The basic gasoline ration during the war was four gallons a week, although that figure was changed several times. And it didn't apply to all motorists. Many got much more.

There were three basic types of ration books. The "A" book could be obtained by any car owner and it was designed to limit him to four gallons a week. The "B" book, containing more coupons, was designed for those who did more than 150 miles of work-related driving a month, basically those who had to drive to work.

The "C" book went to those with "war-important" occupations — those who had to travel at least 470 miles a month. The number of coupons was tailored to fit individual needs.

There were other coupon books for commercial users, boats and motorcycles, but most Americans were familiar with those three.

Because the coupons were not transferable to other motorists, it wasn't long before the black market developed.

Those who studied the system later said that perhaps one in 16 gasoline distributors were either suspended from doing business or the subject of prosecution by the government because of their dealing in the black market.

Another major problem was the theft of coupons.

While OPA watched over the system from Washington, about 6,000 local boards issued the coupons to motorists and handled appeals. The boards were run by volunteer professionals.

Bowles later described how black marketeers beat the system. At first, he wrote later, counterfeiters would print up bogus coupons and sell them in bulk to dealers.

Martial-law for Greeks

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek capital fell silent Saturday night under a martial-law curfew imposed after street clashes between soldiers and students left five dead and more than 300 injured.

Restaurants and bars closed. Foreign tourists stayed in their hotels. All incoming and outgoing airline flights were canceled at Athens airport. Traffic on Athens streets dropped to a trickle.

Scores of buses with their tires slit and windows broken sat in the steets where they had been taken over by rioters and used as barricades. Litter covered most of the main avenues and fires smoldered. Overturned cars blocked streets.

President George Papadopoulos, strong man in the military-backed regime, said the bloody street fighting had created "a dangerously explosive situation."

The uprising was the most serious challenge to his rule since he and a group of fellow colonels seized power in April 1967 and suspended democracy.

He told the nation in a brief radio address that the antigovernment demonstrations proved there was a "conspiracy against democracy and factors supporting normalization."

Papadopoulos reinstated martial law and slapped the curfew on Athens after soldiers and police smashed their way into Athens Polytechnic Institute to quell student demonstrators demanding the overthrow of his government.

The military intervention had been expected since antigovernment protests reached their peak Friday after a four-day sit-in at the Polytechnic Institute. Student demonstrations on and off campus had drawn more than 10,000 each night, bringing Athens to a virtual standstill.

Late Friday night, the students switched their demands from academic liberties. They began calling for overthrow of the regime, chanting anti-American slogans and demanding expulsion of Americans and Greek withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Their protests spread to the steets and riots flared in downtown Athens for six hours. In the early morning, soldiers behind tanks and armored personnel carriers crashed through a gate and ended the occupation of the institute.

Three of the four persons killed, police said, were students who attacked government buildings. The fourth was a young Egyptian girl shot through the heart during the height of fighting near the Polytechnic, they added. Officers were unable to explain how she got involved.

Papadopoulos had lifted his martial rule in August as part of a series of liberalization measures including abolition of the monarchy and a pledge to organize democratic elections.

A new all-civilian cabinet was sworn in to prepare for the elections. Parliament and democratic government have been suspended since 1967.

Oil shortage may go even higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional study of this winter's critical fuel supply situation predicts oil shortages could go as high as 35 per cent.

A 35 per cent shortage would represent a 6.1-million-barrel shortage of petroleum products each day. Total U.S. consumption is about 17 million barrels per day.

The estimate arrived at by the Library of Congress is considerably greater than previous figures cited by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who has predicted nationwide shortfalls ranging from 13 to 24 per cent. Jackson is the author of emergency energy legislation expected to pass the Senate Monday that would authorize steps to cut the nation's energy consumption by 25 per cent.

The Library of Congress study for Congress was released Saturday by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis. The 35 per cent figure, the study said, was based on "an exceptionally cold winter" and a continuation of the Arab oil cutoff.

The study said "it is unlikely that even an end to the Arab oil embargo and a relatively mild winter could reduce the shortage to 20 per cent or less."

In other energy developments Saturday:

—King Faisal of Saudia Arabia was quoted by a Lebanese newspaper as saying the decision to continue the oil embargo is "irrevocable" until Israel "withdraws entirely from all Arab regions it conquered in 1967."

—The Consumer Product Safety Commission reminded consumers that any attempts to hoard fuel could create serious household hazards. It said about 25,000 persons were injured last year by liquid fuels, mainly from fires.

The energy bill proposed by Jackson would give President Nixon most of the powers he says are needed to meet the crisis.

According to Jackson, the economic repercussions of the anticipated shortages will have more of an impact than any of the inconveniences caused by energy conservation measures.

The Senate adopted an amendment Friday that would extend unemployment benefits to workers laid off by fuel shortages.

Critics of the bill claim it only seeks to reduce demand and does little to increase supplies of oil. Sen. Dewey F. Bartlett, R-Okla., offered an amendment designed to stimulate domestic production by doing away with Phase 4 controls on the price of oil and gasoline, but the measure was defeated by a large margin.

Some of the energy-saving steps authorized by the Jackson bill include gasoline rationing, reduced speed limits, lowered thermostats and shorter school days. A Democratic attempt to force the President to order rationing by no later than Jan. 15 failed by 12 votes.

A amendment by Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., was adopted that would give the President power to ban the export of any refined petroleum product.

A day of turmoil

(UPI)

Kennedy in eventful day

WASHINGTON (AP) — In another incredible day for the Kennedy family, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy saw his son through a tragic operation and gave the bride away in the first wedding of a late brother's children.

Early Saturday morning, the senator stood by as doctors, in hopes of checking bone cancer, amputated the right leg of Edward M. Kennedy Jr., 12, nicknamed Teddy like his father.

Then Kennedy went into the gusty, chill morning to a Georgetown church to walk down the aisle with Kathleen, the eldest daughter of his late brother, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"I am sure the operation was a success," said the senator as he left Georgetown University Hospital.

The Kennedy boy, a seventh grader at private St. Albans School, was in surgery for nearly an hour, beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Before the wedding, the bride's mother, Ethel, went alone to her late husband's grave in Arlington National Cemetery. She knelt for a few minutes, then repeated this at the nearby grave of President John F. Kennedy.

At Holy Trinity Catholic Church, the senator smiled broadly as he walked with Kathleen on his arm.

She is 22, a senior at Radcliffe College. The groom is David Lee Townsend, 25. He is working for his doctorate in American history at Harvard.

Although Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, widow of the late President, was absent, son John was an altar boy and daughter Caroline was one of eight bridesmaids.

Doctors diagnosed the young Kennedy as having a tumor of cartilage tissues associated with the bone, a cancer known as chondrosarcoma.

The youngster went to the hospital for tests eight days ago when he told of discomfort in the lower leg.

He was told of his condition and the need for surgery by his parents and a doctor at about noon Friday.

Doctors involved in the case were not available for comment.

However, a surgeon not associated with the case, but familiar with chondrosarcoma, said the outlook for 10-year survival would be about one in three.

Results are better, the surgeon said, for patients whose cancer is located below the knee, as is the case with the Kennedy youngster.

Strike ended by Teamsters in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An 11-day strike against about 30 St. Louis area furniture and appliance companies by members of Teamsters Union Local 688 has ended with agreement on a new three-year contract.

The agreement, which was reached Friday by the Teamsters and 54 of 58 companies involved, calls for an 85-cent hourly wage hike over the period of the contract, plus improved life and health insurance benefits, according to Ronald Gamache, secretary treasurer of the union.

Gamache said, however, that pickets would remain in place at the four firms that refused to sign the pact. He said no further negotiations were scheduled with those companies, which he identified as Biederman's Furniture Co., Dolnik's Furniture, Tipton Electric and Brightman's Distributing Co.

The old contract expired Oct. 31 and 30 of the firms were struck Nov. 5.

Consideration first goes to farm groups

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Farmers and ranchers have been given preferential status for delivery of diesel oil, according to Sen. Bob Dole and Rep. Keith Sebelius, Kansas Republicans.

The congressmen said Friday the Office of Oil and Gas has approved a revision of the 60-day diesel oil distribution program. It establishes three equal categories of preferential users. In addition to farmers and ranchers they include those engaged in the production of oil and gas and the operators of mass transit facilities.

Dole said the new program will be implemented through local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices.

Sebelius said the new program was ordered after hearings by the House Agricultural Committee. He said the previous program based a farmer's allocation on the amount of diesel fuel he used in the corresponding months of 1972. However, bad weather halted much farm activity at that time and many farmers had little or no record of fuel purchases.

Dole and Sebelius said farmers should take advantage of the 60-day period to petition for the amount of fuel they need, over their allocation based on last year's usage.

Indictment is refused in shooting

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Jackson County grand jury has refused to indict Joe E. Williams, a Kansas City policeman, in the shooting death of a 15-year-old boy as he fled from the scene of a burglary.

The jury heard about five hours of testimony about the slaying of Rory L. Lark last Monday.

Williams testified he fired one shot after ordering three youths to stop as they ran from a house. Only Lark failed to halt, Williams and Patrolman Roger Booth said.

Officers said several items taken from the house were found on Lark.

Ethnic side to illness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A black doctor who has studied the effects some diseases have on members of his race says there is an "ethnicity" to some illnesses.

"This is not to imply racial inferiority," said Dr. Richard A. Williams. "But high blood pressure is the greatest killer of blacks, and we have to do something about it as a matter of survival."

Williams, who says he has compiled the first textbook on diseases that particularly affect blacks, headed a roster of black and white specialists who participated in the two-day John Beauregard Johnson Memorial Symposium on Hypertension and other Black-Related Diseases.

Johnson was a black cardiologist and researcher at Howard University who recently died of hypertension.

Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of Chicago said hypertension, while a common disease in the United States generally, is an "acute problem in the low-income community where people see doctors less often and have less effective long-term medical care." He urged that high blood pressure screening be incorporated as a part of comprehensive health maintenance programs for these populations.

"We are all aware of certain diseases, such as sickle cell anemia and high blood pressure, which inordinately affect black people," said Williams, who is assistant medical director at the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial General Hospital in Los Angeles.

"However, there are many other diseases which are similarly devastating to the black population" which are often unrecognized by doctors who treat blacks, he said.

He said among them are G6PD, an anemia that affects 15 per cent of black males; sarcoidosis, a disease resembling tuberculosis; certain cancers; and environmentally caused disorders such as lead poisoning, drug addiction and rat bite fever.

One-car accident is fatal for man

HARRISON, Ark. (AP) — David Allen Shaddox, 26, of Kansas City, Mo., was killed Saturday when he lost control of the car he was driving near here, state police said.

Two passengers in the Shaddox car also were injured in the incident. They were identified as Kay Carter, 27, of Springdale and Ricky Smith, 26, of Harrison.

The first winners of the Nobel Peace Prize were Jean H. Dunant of Switzerland and Frederic Passy of France in 1901.

Reactions to proposals differ

The reaction to two parts of President Nixon's proposals to combat the energy crisis drew a wide range of reaction from readers of The Democrat-Capital who answered last Sunday's two-part survey.

Of those responding, only 33 per cent said they favored year-round daylight saving time to conserve energy, while an overwhelming 90 per cent said they were more in favor of reducing highway speed limits. Combined, the survey produced 75 answers.

The question was: "President Nixon has offered a multi-faceted program to help conserve America's fuel supplies. Along with the other programs, do you agree with the idea of: (1) year-round daylight savings time; and (2) reducing highway speed limits to 50 miles per hour?"

Tom Ken , 511 West Second, who said he had no opinion on the highway speed question, added, "I agree with most other aspects of the President's programs, but not with the change in time. First, according to a consultant for Houston, Tex., all the electric lights in the country use but 1.5 per cent of the total electrical energy. Therefore, little if any energy can be saved by any lights that would be shut off as a result of daylight saving time. Second, if the time change is implemented there will be a gravitation to sun time in the winter... For example, schools of Warrensburg are discussing moving the starting time of school back to nine o'clock if the time change occurs."

Mrs. C. Cooper, Sedalia, a regular reader of the survey, said: "I agree with the year-round daylight savings time and reducing highway speed limit to 50 miles per hour. First of all, with daylight saving time, you just about get used to it and the time changes, so I believe it's a good idea to have it the year-round. I believe reducing the highway speed limit... is an excellent idea and I feel many lives will be saved..."

A qualified answer came from Paul Wright, 718 East 10th, who said, "I will believe in daylight saving time only when someone can prove it takes less power for light in the morning than in the evening."

One Sedalian wrote, "I think it very foolish to send young children out that have to walk a distance to meet a school bus that early in the morning in bad winter weather."

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brown wrote: "Has President Nixon thought of the hazards of exposing children to the rigors of the weather, plus persons on the prowl who might harm children at what would be 6:30 a.m. if daylight saving time was imposed, instead of the usual 7:30 God's time, when there is usually at least some light...?" To the second question, they said, "We are much in favor of the 50 miles per hour speed limit. It would save many lives..."

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Riecke, Ionia, said, "What is saved by starting children before daylight to school? Central Standard Time should be kept year around. As for the ...speed limit, it will not only save energy, but many lives as well."

A Sedalian who asked that he not be identified said he disagreed with the daylight savings time plan, but added, "As for the driving, I don't think it would hurt to go back to 50 miles per hour, but I don't think people will do it voluntarilly — it will have to be made into law. It is pretty easy to stay under 50 on some of the local roads in the area, but it is very hard to stay under 50 when you drive on the interstate."

Those readers who voted "no" on the driving issue did not offer their reasons.

VFW leaders will meet at Sedalia Post

A discussion by state leaders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars organization on various current issues will highlight a membership rally and dinner sponsored by the Allie E. English VFW Post No. 3189 at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at 210 East Maine Street.

Among the various leaders scheduled to attend the affair are Gene Stegge, Independence, VFW state commander; Ernest Lueck, Odessa, sixth district VFW commander; and Don Swanson, Kansas City, state publicity, public relations and insurance director.

These officials and others will discuss the Mid-East crisis, amnesty for draft evaders and deserters, and the restoration of Veterans Day to Nov. 11.

They will also discuss several VFW-backed veteran's advancements including a recently-passed bill increasing the veteran burial allowance benefits from $250 to $400 annually.

Courts make move against walkouts

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Federal judges in Peoria and East St. Louis have taken the first steps to end a mine workers walkout that has closed down mines throughout Illinois.

In Peoria, Judge Robert Morgan of U.S. District Court issued a preliminary injunction Friday ordering miners at five Midland Coal Co. facilities to end their walkout.

The order was directed at five locals of the United Mine Workers and covered employes at four mines and one central repair facility in central Illinois.

In East St. Louis, another federal judge ordered 13 locals involved in a walkout against three other coal companies to return to work.

The two court decisions came after a walkout of coal miners spread early Friday to virtually every mine in the state.

An estimated 10,000 miners were involved, and the state's daily production of more than 225,000 tons of coal ground to a halt.

Kenneth Dawes, president of the Illinois District of the UMW, has said the miners are protesting conditions for strip mining set by the Knox County Zoning Board.

The condition at issue is whether four feet or one foot of topsoil should be replaced during mining operations at Midland's Mecco mine in Victoria.

The board wants four feet, Midland says it should have to replace only one. Midland said it could not meet the board's condition and closed the mine Oct. 6.

During the hearing in Peoria, Judge Morgan asked the attorney for the United Mine Workers why the miners were not taking action against Knox County officials rather than the coal mine operators.

Ann Landers

14-year-old wiser about parents

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy. I will be 14 years old in seven months. My problem is kids who write to you and put down their parents. I am glad my parents care enough to zap me when I go too far. I used to think they were mean. I am smarter now.

The kid across the street has parents who never TELL him what to do. They ASK him what he WANTS to do. Of course he never wants to do anything. They also keep asking him if he is happy. What a dumb question. It's like they think it is their duty to keep a smile on his face.

Last night a girl called me on the telephone. My mom answered. The girl is a pest. I told Mom to say I wasn't home. She looked me in the eye and said, "I wouldn't ask you to lie for me and I'm not going to lie for you." She made me tell the girl I had something to do and couldn't talk to her.

I was proud of my mom. The kid's mother across the street wouldn't have done that. See what I mean? — Glad I'm In This Family

Dear Glad: You betcha. And I hope a few million mothers out there see what you mean, too. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to drop a hint to Grim Gladys, the lady whose husband insisted on grinding out his cigars in the leftover food. It was a disgusting sight, she said, and wondered how many other men did it.

My best friend's husband did the same thing. One evening, just after he had ground his cigar into the leftover pot roast, she said, "Now that I know ashes in your food turns you on I'll serve your meals in an ashtray." The next day she bought the largest ashtray she could find and served his dinner in it.

It got a big laugh and it also solved the problem. — Madison, Wis.

Dear Mad: Thanks for proving that laughter can be good medicine.

Dear Ann Landers: I was married at 16. My mother gave me a beautiful tea set. Within three weeks I realized my marriage was a mistake and we were divorced.

I am now married to a wonderful man. Our oldest child is Jon, age 6. Yesterday Jon was helping me in the kitchen and asking a million questions.

At this particular stage he is interested in how old I was when this happened and when that happened. Jon asked where I got the tea set. When I told him my mother had given it to me for a wedding present, he wanted to know how old I was when I got married.

I decided it was a good time to tell him I was married to another man when I was 16 and later I met and married his daddy and how lucky I was. He didn't seem to mind. The next minute he was asking how old I was when I bought the wallpaper.

That night I told my husband about our conversation. He called me an idiot — said Jon was too young to understand. I've never seen him so furious.

You always advise parents to tell the truth. Was I wrong? — Dee In The Doghouse

Dear Dee: It's always best to give children straight answers. If they are told early about previous marriages (or that they were adopted) they will attach much less importance to these incidents than if they learn later — from friends.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers's new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Burial will be in the Memorial Cemetery at Cole Camp.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Reports of a special legislative session before Christmas picked up momentum here during the weekend.

The governor was due to return Tuesday from the National Republican Governrrs' Conference in Memphis, Tenn.

Before leaving, he said he would announce on Wednesday whether he would call the legislators to Jefferson City early. The regular session begins Jan. 9.

Many legislators have asked Gov. Christopher S. Bond to call a special session to tackle reorganization of the executive branch of state government. But the governor has said he was not sure it would be fruitful.

The word Friday was that in addition to reorganization, the lawmakers would be asked to consider whether or not to lower the speed limit and pass other energy-saving devices, expand the merit system—less than half the state's 55-000 employes are in it—and strengthen the campaign spending and ethics laws.

There is no specific time limit on how soon the session must begin after the governor gives the call. In the last special session, former Gov. Warren Hearnes issued the call on Aug. 22, 1972, for a session to begin Sept. 16. In 1970, he called one on Nov. 4 to begin Nov. 13.

Calling the session for something other than reorganization upset some legislators in the capitol Friday for committee hearings.

Sen. Jack Gant, D-Independence, pointed to these major obstacles:

Legislators will be busy working on their own bills for the regular session because prefiling begins Dec. 3, and they will not want to be in Jefferson City for the holidays.

There are 197 legislators. The 163 House seats have been removed for repairs, and renovation may not be finished in time. Nearby St. Peter's Church, which has a large auditorium, has been suggested.

"I'm a little disappointed," said Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, sponsor of the House reorganization bill that Bond favored but which the Senate rejected.

Reorganization must take effect July 1, according to a constitutional amendment approved in 1972.

Reorganization was the biggest topic of debate last session and the governor and key senators have been unable to agree on several areas where the governor wants complete department autonomy while the Senate wants to retain its advice and consent power below the department director level.

"Another month wouldn't make that much difference," Volkmer said. "I've urged a special session which should be devoted solely to reorganization."

"To call a special session now before Jan. 9 would seriously jeopardize planning for the regular session and would be an unwarranted intrustion on the precious little time that Missouri's part-time legislators have for their personal business," said Rep. Richard DeCoster, D-Canton, in a letter to Bond. DeCoster is assistant House speaker

Issues

Nixon said Democrats in Congress applied the pressure that led to the milk-price increase. Furthermore, he said, the administration raised dairy prices supports by a smaller amount than Congress would otherwise have imposed.

Nixon said his administration is getting "a bad rap" on milk prices.

And concluding that statement, he left with a thank-you, a wave, and a phrase that summed up the entire performance:

"That's the truth."

In proclaiming his innocence, the President said, "I've made my mistakes, but in all my years of public life I have never profited from public service. I have earned every cent. And in all my years of public life, I have never obstructed justice."

He said that goes for Watergate, for his personal finnces, for the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. case and for other matters.

Nixon said he noted some editorials and commentaries asking how he could have big investments in three properties.

"That's all I have," he said.

He said he is the first President since Harry S. Truman who never owned any stocks or had a blind trust.

Nixon also said the editorials and commentaries have asked "How is it possible for you to have this kind of investment?"

"I wasn't a pauper when I became president ..." he said. When I left office after ... eight years at $45,000 as vice president ... my net worth was $47,000 total after 14 years of government service and a 1958 Oldsmobile that needed an overhaul.

"I have no complaints. Over the next eight years I made a lot of money ... $250,000 from the serial rights on a book ... as an attorney ... between $150,000 and $200,000 a year.

"I sold all my stock for $300,000, my apartment in New York for $300,000, I'm using rough figures ... and $100,000 the law firm owed me."

Despite an earlier suggestion by White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler that issues other than Watergate would be covered in the news conference, Nixon was questioned for 40 minutes before a nonrelated question was asked.

At the outset, Nixon said as long as he is physically able, he intends to continue doing the job he was elected to do, and will strive "to restore confidence in the White House and in the President himself."

Nixon also said:

—Despite the two missing White House tapes, the combination of those that are available and written accounts of his conversations will prove he had no advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in, never authorized any offer of executive clemency in the case, and did not know before March 21 of blackmail demands from one of the Watergate conspirators.

—He paid nominal income taxes in 1970 and 1971 because of deductions for vice presidential papers he donated to the National Archives. He did not disclose figures for those years, but said he paid $79,000 in 1969.

—The Secret Service did place his brother, Donald, under surveillance.

—Said, when asked why the administration did not anticipate the energy crisis several years ago and act then, "I sent the first energy message...to the Congress over two years ago. I saw this thing coming...not because of the Mideast or the Alaska pipeline or the rest...but because this world was getting richer...Generally, as the world gets richer there is more...need for energy...Earlier this year I asked for seven pieces of legislation. One has reached my desk, the Alaska pipeline..."

—Said, "If we look at this energy crisis as simply the crisis of this year, we could not be making a greater mistake...I have set as a goal what we call Project Independence by 1980," and said if Congress cooperates, by 1980 this country can have all the energy it needs.

Nixon disclosed that he told Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen that there were "highly sensitive" national security matters that should not be investigated as part of the Watergate probe.

He gave no further details, but said the matters were "so sensitive that even Sen. (Sam J.) Ervin and Sen. (Howard) H. Baker," chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, agreed not to delve into them.

"Where national security would be disserved" by investigations, he said, "the President has the responsibility to protect it and I am going to do so."

In giving his detailed explanation of the two nonexistent tapes, Nixon said he hopes ways can be found "to get the substance" of the discussions to the American people.

He said there were not "any deliberate attempts to keep from the public" what was discussed at his June 20, 1972 telephone conversation with thenCampaign Director John N. Mitchell and an April 15 meeting with former White House counsel John W. Dean III.

Nixon repeated a previous explanation that the telephone he used to talk with Mitchell was not connected to the White House recording system, and that the tape had run out before his late night meeting with Dean.

Collision results

Two Sedalians were injured about 5:44 p.m. Friday in a two-car collision at South Grand and 14th. Selvin Royal, 32, 2511 Kay, was admitted at Bothwell Hospital for possible spine injuries, police reported. His wife, Shirley, 33, was treated for bruises and abrasions and released. Royal was listed in good condition, a hospital spokesman said. Police reported that Royal was driving a 1971 Oldsmobile westbound on 14th and Jess Marquess, 18, 1419 West Fourth, was northbound on Grand in a 1970 Ford pickup when the two collided. The impact of the collision caused both cars to veer into the front yard of Mrs. L. C. Copas, 1324 South Grand, police reported. Both cars were extensively damaged and a concrete post on Mrs. Copas' front porch was knocked down. A police spokesman said further investigation will be necessary to determine whether any arrests will be made.

Bond's limousine to Parkhurst Co.

Business visitors to Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., will receive a truly "official" welcome when they are greeted by Gov. Bond's former limousine. The 1969 Cadillac was purchased at an auction Saturday by William Parkhurst, owner of Parkhurst Manufacturing Co.

The limousine, which was purchased for nearly $12,000 in 1969, was one of about 40 surplus state vehicles auctioned off in Jefferson City, according to A. G. Cline, 1716 South Beacon. Cline is state Property Control Manager.

Parkhurst said he paid $6,600 for the limousine but the Governor's No. 1 license plate on the car was not part of the deal.

"It is now 'No. 1' of the Parkhurst Manufacturing Co.," he added.

Parkhurst said he thought it would be nice to have an "executive car" to transport business visitors and company executives to and from the Kansas City airport. He said often four or five visitors at a time come to the manufacturing plant here and it is more economical to use the limousine rather than two cars.

Cline told the Democrat-Capital that "several persons" bid on the limousine which reportedly offers all the luxuries befitting the number one executive of the state.

Parkhurst said "quite a few" people bid on the limousine and that several of them were bankers and one represented a motor car company. The car includes a special battery-operated window separating the back seat from the driver's seat. Parkhurst said.

Parkhurst also commented that the limousine "runs nice" and gets about 17 miles to the gallon.

Cline said the Governor decided to sell the car since it was not used that much and also in an effort to show economizing during the present fuel shortage.

Another factor under consideration, Cline said, was the car's No. 1 license plate. Bond has promised to eliminate low-numbered license plates, calling them a remnant of the system of handing out political favors.

Pollution study is planned

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement to expand a comparative study of air pollution in St. Louis and Leningrad.

Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, signed the agreement here for the United States and said it would nearly double the amount of cooperative activity between the two countries.

"I'd like to think this is what international affairs ought to be about—nations attacking urgent problems together," Train said following the signing Friday.

E. K. Fedorov, who signed the pact for Russia, said pollution problems in the Soviet Union were not as bad as those in the United States, but "we don't want to permit such a situation."

Under the pact, scientist will travel back and forth between the two cities to study air pollution control. The agreement also covers a water pollution study involving the Delaware and Ohio rivers in the United States and the Seversky Donets River in Russia as well as a water sample analysis of Lake Tahoe and one of the Great Lakes in America and Lake Baikal in the Soviet Union.

The agreement was reached after a week-long session of the American Soviet Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Environmental Protection.

Deer season claims early casualty

(Democrat-Capital Service)

Warsaw — Phillip Long, 29, Kansas City, was shot and suffered a fractured right leg shortly before 6 a.m. Saturday in what may have been the first deer hunting accident of the season in Missouri. Deer season opened Saturday morning.

The mishap occurred several miles south of Warsaw in Benton County but conflicting reports exist concerning the exact circumstances of the accident.

Oley Magness, 37, House Springs, Mo., told Benton County Sheriff Bob Bob Breshears and Conservation Agent Cal Christienson that he and a companion got to the wooded area about sun-up and split up to hunt. Magness related walking into some woods and sitting down just prior to seeing something resembling a deer move within range.

He said he aimed his 30-30 rifle and fired, them approached to find he had shot Long in the right leg. He administered a torniquet and sent his companion to a nearby farm, the Bill Berryman residence, to summon a Warsaw ambulance which brought Long to Bothwell Hospital in Sedalia.

A hospital spokesman, however, related a slightly different story. The spokesman said Long told hospital personnel he had gotten out of his car and was walking across a field toward a wooded area when a pick-up truck rounded a nearby bend in the road. When the truck's headlight beams picked him up, Long reportedly explained, the truck stopped, a man got out and shot him.

Long was listed in satisfactory condition late Saturday.

Israel closing waterway

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel was pushing thousands of tons of dirt into the Suez Canal Saturday to build a land bridge across the closed waterway, newsmen reported.

Associated Press photographer Spartago Bodini said he saw Israeli bulldozers working full speed on both banks of the canal.

Correspondents traveling near the area north of the Great Bitter Lake said work was going on to span the 200yard-wide waterway with the first permanent structure in its history.

The reporters were not allowed to approach the new bridge, and it was not known if the Israelis were using cement to reinforce the structure. Egypt said earlier it was studying such a report, and that if true, it would constitute a serious violation of the Middle East cease-fire.

Diplomatic sources in Beirut said two top-level Romanian diplomats were visiting Arab capitals to propose a Middle East peace plan that would include Syria.

The sources said one of the envoys has already visited Syria and Iraq and is expected in Lebanon later. The second has been to Egypt and Tunisia and will also visit Morocco and possibly other Arab states later.

The Romanian plan suggests an immediate three-mile withdrawal of Israeli forces on both the Syrian and Egyptian front lines. The new positions, separated by a demilitarized no mans land patrolled by the U.N. peace force, are to be regarded as the definitive Oct. 22 cease-fire lines, according to the sources.

The plan was explained to Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban during his three-day visit to Bucharest last week, and the sources said his reaction was positive.

The Romanian plan is envisaged as a necessary first step to pave the way for an Arab-Israeli peace conference, under U.N. auspices.

Egypt and Israel continued for the third day their exchange of prisoners of war carried out under the Nov. 11 agreement arranged through Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Damage reported at Yeager's Cycle

Mrs. Jim Yeager reported to police Friday that several holes were shot in two 5 by 8 foot windows at Yeager's Cycle Sales and Service, 3001 South Limit. Mrs. Yeager told police that when the shop was closed at 10 p.m. Thursday, the windows were intact. When she opened the shop at 8 a.m. Friday, she noticed the holes, which apparently were made by a pellet gun, police reported.

Burglars got away with an undetermined amount of change late Thursday night after breaking into the Stevenson Tractor Co., 310 South Thompson Blvd.

Police said entry was gained by breaking out a window on the north side of the building. Both a candy and a pop machine were broken into. Attempts to break into a company safe were apparently unsuccessful.

Question

My Series E. Savings Bonds were payable upon my death to my mother. She passed away recently. Must I now cash these bonds?

Answer

You may cash the bonds but you are not compelled to do so because of your mother's death. The maturity dates on Series E Bonds have been extended. These bonds are now earning approximately 5.5% interest depending upon how long they are held. Your bank can arrange to have these bonds reissued bearing the same dates as the originals without any loss of interest. The proof you will need of your mother's death can be secured from us.

Reissued bonds may be registered in one of three ways: (1) your name alone, (2) your name and a co-owner, (3) your name payable upon death to someone else. If you cash the bonds now the interest must be considered for Federal Income Tax purposes. On the reissued bonds, however, any interest consideration may be deferred until the bonds are cashed or until they mature, which ever comes first.

Fur buying could be tricky

By PETER WEAVER

Furs — real and fake — are in high fashion.

The variety of fur products is so great that buyers should be well armed with information on quality, best buys, cleaning problems and, of course, the ecology question.

Let's take the ecology question first. Some types of animals are being wiped out because they're being killed indiscriminately for their furs. The government now prohibits the sale of furs from animals on an "endangered species list." This includes such spotted cats as the leopard, jaguar, ocelot, tiger and cheetah, and a certain type of African antelope. It also includes furs from certain South American otters, the Mexican grizzly bear and vicuna.

You will rarely find these endangered furs in American stores that have any kind of a reputation. But travelers abroad can find these furs in abundance. Don't buy them. You're not only contributing to the extinction of the animals but your endangered species fur will be confiscated by U.S. customs officials when you return.

Conservationists and naturalists are concerned that the endangered species list is not broad enough. Some animals that are not on the list may be on it within the next five years. Why keep killing them? Congress is working on legislation which will expand the Endangered Species Act to include animals that may be in danger at some future date.

When you're buying a fur, how do you know whether an animal may be a candidate someday for the danger list? For one thing, you can ask the furrier whether the animal in question was killed in the wild or was "ranch bred." A number of animals, such as mink, nutria and various types of lamb, are produced on ranches or farms much in the manner animals are produced for food. Most naturalists have no problem with this type of fur production.

Then there are the fake furs. You can get furlike materials made from chemical fibers that look like the endangered jaguar and ocelot skins, to name only two. You can even get a fake, yet fancy, mink coat made out of chemical fibers for around $250 (compared with $2,500 on up for the real thing). The only problem with fake furs is the fact that they usually don't last as long as real fur hides.

Now, for the real thing. According to some of the nation's top furriers, some of the best buys in furs this fall can be found in mink, muskrat and beaver. Mink prices are not as high as they were 10 years ago, but should go up again in the next couple of years. You can get a full-length mink coat for as little at $800 to $900 but it's at the bottom of the line as far as quality is concerned.

A better bet, some furriers say, is to get a top-of-the-line muskrat coat for around $900. You'll get a longer lasting fur and better value.

Canadian natural beaver is also a good buy. A full-length coat will cost from $1,200 to $1,400 compared with around $2,000 eight years ago.

When you look at furs, look at the labels. Government law requires the name of the animal, country of origin and special manufacturing information (whether the color was altered or dye was used or whether odd pieces of fur were used). Any quality claims or wear claims should go along with this descriptive information on the invoice.

Fur should never be cleaned in solvent but rather by furriers who use tumble tanks with sawdust or other dirt-absorbing materials. Even some fake furs should be cleaned in this manner (the label should tell). Fur trim on a garment should be removed and cleaned separately. Otherwise, it could be ruined.

Pipeline route

President Nixon Friday signed into law a bill to permit construction of the Alaska pipeline. Despite the approval, crude oil lying beneath the frozen tundra in Alaska won't start flowing until 1977 at the earliest. The pipeline will run across and under hundreds of miles of permafrost, over the Yukon River and to a maximum elevation of 4,800 feet in the Brooks Mountain Range shown here.

Electricity may cost more soon

If Missouri Public Service Co.'s request is approved, Sedalia and some rural commercial and industrial customers served by the company will pay 9.9 per cent more for both gas and electricity furnished by the firm, it was reported Thursday.

The Missouri Public Service Commission held two public hearings on the rate increase request in Lee's Summit Thursday, but one spokesman for the company said final action on the firm's request may not come for another month or two.

He based the estimate on past performance by the commission.

For Sedalians, the rate increase would mean a hike of 4½ cents a day for the average residential electricity customer who uses 400 kilowatt hours of power a month. That adds up to $1.35 a month, Missouri Public Service Co. said.

The average household gas user would see his bill go up 4 cents a day, or $1.13 a month, the company estimates.

In a prepared statement released Thursday by John R. Baker, senior vice-president for Missouri Public Service Co., it was explained that in 1952 the firm's average investment per customer for electric facilities was $400. That grew to $1,000 by 1962 and to $2,000 now, the company says.

"In the past six years, during a period of historically high prices, we have installed over half of our present total electric facilities," Baker said. The number of Missouri customers also went up from 59,000 in 1952 to 108,000 now, the firm said.

Baker also said the company's total investment "for electric facilities has increased from $25 million in 1952 to over $200 million at this time." And those are some of the reasons the company wants to increase its rates, he said.

Another factor for the hike, as outlined by Baker, is "the loss of investors' interest in company securities." The drop in the price of the firm's common stock went from a high of $29.50 in 1968 to the present 18-year low of $13.50, he reported.

To offset these and other cost factors, the company is seeking a $4,146,324 increase system-wide for electric rates and a $772,675 hike for gas services, a company spokesman in Raytown reported.

Build own mini plane

By RICHARD LARIMORE
Associated Press Writer

NEWTON, Kan. (AP) — Want your own airplane?

For $2,600 you can buy a kit and build it yourself.

Jime Bede, an aeronautical engineer and president of Bede Aircraft Inc., says almost 5,000 do-it-yourselfers already have ordered his tiny plane, the BD5 Micro, in kit form.

Ordinary workshop tools and an average mechanical ability are all that are needed to assemble the plane, the company says.

None of the kit planes have been completed or flown yet, because the company has yet to deliver engines. Bede says the firm is still working on final configurations and test for the plane's power plant, a two-cycle Hirth snow machine engine manufactured in Germany.

General manager Herb Sawinski says the company will begin delivering the engines soon, and he expects some of the home-built planes will be flying by early next year, with perhaps 200 in the air by summer.

The bullet-shaped plane measures 13.3 feet in length, with a choice of two wingspans, 14.3 or 21.5 feet.

Basic price for the unassembled kits begins at $2,600. Optional features, including the longer wings, an electrical starter system and large engine, could add another $500, Sawinski says.

Standing a mere 4.3 feet high, the plane sometimes makes pilots feel they're about ready to drag their seats on the runway before the plane finally touches down, he said.

The plane's weight varies from 315 to 355 pounds, depending on which engine size—40, 55 or 70 horsepower—the builder chooses.

With a 70 h.p. engine the plane can reach a top speed of 245 miles per hour. It's range varies from 500 to 900 miles, depending on wing length and engine power.

And for those pilots who can't afford to spend the 750 to 1,000 hours estimated necessary to build the craft, the company plans to introduce a factory-built model at $4,400 and has taken between 600 and 700 initial orders.

And if the rear propellor-driven Micro isn't hot enough for your blood, the company plans to market a jet-powered version which it says will be the smallest jet plane in the world.

Only one of the jets is flying at present, but six more are being built for use by a five-member aerobatic team which plans to begin touring next May to promote the aircraft.

The jet, which is powered by a 200-pound thrust engine, can reach speeds of 350 mp.h. and has a range of 700 miles.

About 25 persons have ordered the new jet in kit form for $21,000. A manufactured jet, complete with electronics, will sell for about $30,000.

Builders of the gnat-sized plane will get their flight instruction primarily through the company's 24 domestic and 17 overseas dealers.

Few pilots—and nobody outside of the company—have flown the plane yet, but Sawinski says average pilots can learn to fly a Micro without any problems.

He adds, however, that the Micro is keyed to pilots with some experience and competency—not students.

Since graduating from Wichita State University in 1957, the 40-year-old Bede has kept close to aviation as a businessman, engineer, inventor and pilot. Devalopment of the Micro, he says, is an extension of his conviction that flying is fun, useful and safe.

Approval is given for appropriations

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bills appropriating funds for starting construction on the city's downtown convention center and to subsidize the Bi-State Transit System through next spring have been overwhelmingly approved by the St. Louis Board of Aldermen.

The board voted 25 to three Friday to appropriate $3,775,000 in general revenue for land purchase and preliminary work on the $25 million convention center. The approval came at the urging of Mayor John Poelker, who wanted the bill passed in spite of questions concerning the legality of the bonds. The city has said it is preparing a test case to determine the validity of the bonds before they are sold.

Poelker told the aldermen by letter that the risk involved was minimal and that he believed the venture to be sound.

The Bi-State appropriation bill, passed by a 24 to four majority, provides $6,300,000 to help subsidize the bus system until June 30. The money will come from revenue of the half-cent transportation sales tax.

The appropriation came just as the bus system ran out of money from past subsidies to make up operating losses.

The fountain of youth

The Phoenix Nest
Edited by Martin Levin

By DON ANDERSON

I am a member of self-made minority. I still carry a fountain pen.

And use it.

Which can get confusing at times. Especially to someone who's never run across such an instrument before. Like at the bank the other noontime. "What's that?" asked a sweet young teller, studying my gleaming signature, still shining fresh from my fountain pen. "Oh, my, it's wet!" "How did you do that? I've never seen wet ink before."

I believe her. She smudged it.

But she's not alone. Many's the man who's not seen wet ink — nor the pens that use it. (Many's the man who's not lived!" Many's the lass who's held often a ballpoint, but never a pen.

They're missing something.

Character, for one thing. My fountain pen has character. It writes like me. O.K., so I write sloppy. Still, it's a kind of a personal sloppy. With ballpoints, you can't tell one illegible scrawl from the next. With my fountain pen, my writing is distinctively bad.

Besides, it's an old friend. Ballpoints I have owned and loathed seldom stick around long enough to really get acquainted. They skip. Then they skip out. Not so my little beauty. One trip to the well (usually Washable Blue) and it's bubbling with life once again.

That, I think, is the key to the Fountain Pen Mystique. It's alive. The ink flows out eagerly, glistening, with a sheen and a sparkle and a wide-eyed zest to see what in the world it's about to say next. But what does a ballpoint utter? Sludge, semi-dry.

Fountain pens write poetry. Ballpoints sign parking citations.

Ballpoints are to throw away. Fountain pens are to bequeath.

Grudgingly.

My Parker's a part of my past. It's signed mortgage papers, jotted ages on snapshots, granted permission for campouts and vaccinations, puzzled over income taxes, filled out forms for college, autographed second grade report cards, sent notes of sympathy, signed Christmas letters, helped out with homework, laughed, cried, consoled, grown older.

And lonelier.

In fact, my own fountain pen is the only one I've seen for ages. No longer are stores filled with glittering displays. No longer do ads feature those shiny gold nibs. The ballpoint has all but shouldered them aside.

Even ink is vanishing. Stores have ink in cartridges and ink in pads and ink in ribbons and India Ink. Even ink eradicator. But an honest bottle of Permanent Black is rare.

This, I submit, is a shame. Filling a fountain pen, after all, is half the fun of owning the thing. There's something therapeutic about slipping off the cap, unscrewing the barrel, nuzzling the nib in the pool, squeezing the pincer the prescribed four times (five at higher elevations), checking the reservoir against the light, wiping the tip, replacing the cap and capping the bottle until another 5000 words or 31 days.

It's a reassuring ritual. You're participating. (Just don't participate when wearing white gloves.)

Oh, I admit it, I've owned ballpoints. They have their points. They're ready in an instant to write, those few days they have anything worthwhile to say. A ballpoint, they claim, writes under water. For inscribing graffiti on passing scuba divers, a feature of this sort might be useful. But most of my writing these days is done on dry land.

Knowing about houseflies helps

By ROBERT BRAULT

It's helpful to know a few things about the housefly before attempting to deal with him.

For one thing, a fly is hatched fully-grown, so don't mistake a tiny one for a baby. He simply belongs to a smaller species. Show him no mercy.

A fly's life span is 30 days, which explains his all-fired hurry. He goes full tilt right up to the 30th day, then suddenly drops dead of old age. Whereupon, whoever was last to take a swat at him yells, "Gotcha!"

The fly has an uncanny skill in selecting landing sites. He'll only light on a lampshade or a china teacup or some other object he knows will disintegrate under a swat. In the modern apartment this includes the wall itself.

Occasionally, he'll land on your nose, causing someone to say, "Hold still," while he or she rolls up a newspaper.

There are various ways to deal with the housefly. Window screens are 100 per cent effective in keeping a fly who's already in from getting out.

Stalking a housefly with a swatter is excellent eye exercise, recommended by oculists. One fact you should know: The average person takes one-quarter second to complete a swat, by which time the fly has already been in six other places. The slower you are, the better the chance he'll inadvertently arrive back at the place you're aiming at just in time to be swatted.

You can buy insecticides, most of which are safe to keep around the house, as they wouldn't harm a fly. For best results: Spray. Wait 30 days.

Milk industry's donation is reviewed

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators are seeking to learn whether the nation's largest dairy cooperative illegally used corporate funds for a $100,000 gift turned over to Nixon fundraiser Herbert W. Kalmbach in 1969.

Kalmbach and a dairy lawyer swear the cash wasn't from the corporate treasury of the cooperative, the Texas-based Associated Milk Producers Inc. But the man who delivered the briefcase full of cash to Kalmbach says he doesn't know the source of the money.

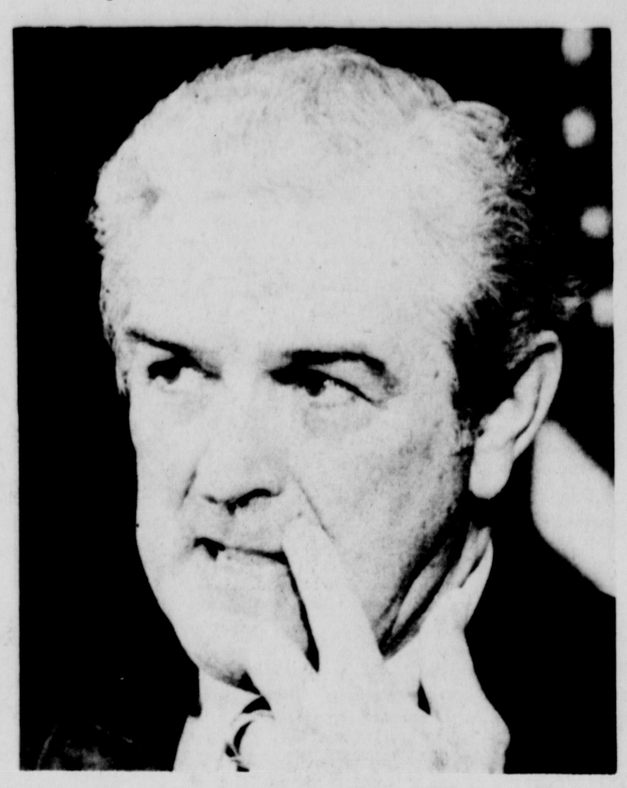
This story surfaced Friday in court documents and interviews:

The gift was given less than seven months after the new Republican administration came into office. The milk producers, headed by Democrats, had backed losing candidate Hubert H. Humphrey the year before, and were looking for friends in the Nixon administration.

Their Washington lawyer, Milton P. Semer, was connected to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's budding presidential drive. But he did what he could for his milk producer clients, eventually calling an acquaintance, John N. Mitchell, who had been Nixon's 1968 campaign director and who was then attorney general.

Eventually, Semer said, he was sent to see Kalmbach, the California lawyer who handled Nixon's real estate transactions and taxes. Kalmbach had been secretly entrusted with $1.7 million in Nixon's leftover 1968 campaign funds.

Semer recalls that the milk producers decided to contribute $100,000 through Kalmbach, even though the next presidential election was three years away.



No I didn't

Former Treasury Secretary John Connally denied that he received a $15,000 kickback from the dairy industry in return for helping them gain favorable decisions from the Nixon administration. Connally made the denial after a more than 2½ hours closed door appearance before the Senate Watergate Committee. (UPI)

He said Kalmbach insisted on cash. "I tried to urge Kalmbach to take it in checks," Semer said. "I told him, 'Why don't we just send you some checks?' He said he'd rather not have it in checks."

So Semer took $100,000 from Robert Lilly, the milk producers' chief political operative, stuffed it into a briefcase, and flew to Newport Beach, Calif., to make the delivery.

Semer said he understood the money would go into the 1970 congressional races. "Presidential types always wanted credit for steering money to congressional candidates," he said.

Actually, according to Kalmbach's sworn testimony in a civil case, the money was used for such things as paying the salaries of a private investigator and a political saboteur, and for financing the 1970 opponent of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in an attempt to kill Wallace's presidential hopes.

Semer's law partner, Jake Jacobsen of Austin, Tex., has told investigators for the Senate Watergate committee and a federal grand jury that the $100,000 came from the milk producers political fund, TAPE, and not from its corporate treasury.

Kalmbach also swore that the money was "not corporate." Seven other corporations have admitted making illegal corporate donations to Nixon's campaign, and in each case Kalmbach and other campaign officials said they hadn't been aware the gifts were illegal.

May study espionage incidents

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — An expert on the cold war is about to open the FBI's files on the Hiss and Rosenberg espionage cases.

Allen Weinstein, 36, associate professor of history and director of the Smith College American studies program, has been granted permission to study the material by FBI Director Clarence Kelley.

Kelley's action came under a new departmental policy ordered earlier this year by then Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who said historians should have access to the files on cases that were at least 15 years old.

The decision settled out of court a suit Weinstein had filed last year in an attempt to force the FBI to release the 53,000-page Hiss file. The 25,000-page Rosenberg file is being made available through a separate decision.

Weinstein said Friday the FBI can retain the right to classify some of the information if it feels individual rights of privacy or national security would be violated.

Although he praised the bureau's cooperation, Weinstein said he would go to court if the FBI withheld information he felt he needed.

He said he shared the bureau's concern over the potential for abuse of raw data on individuals and said he was consulting lawyers and other scholars on how to approach it.

The two cases were emotional landmarks of the cold war. Alger Hiss was convicted of stealing highly classified State Department documents on the allegations of admitted Communist Whittaker Chambers. Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were executed after they were convicted of stealing atomic bomb secrets and giving them to Russia.

Weinstein views the files as an opportunity to compare the conclusions he's reached from material available with possible new conclusions from the previously secret data.

Bishops joke about tape issue

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When New York City's archbishop, Terence Cardinal Cooke, was told at a meeting of the nation's Roman Catholic bishops that there was no text of a report he wanted, he joked: "Maybe it was taped."

"The President might not wish to turn over the tapes," interjected Archbishop Leo C. Byrne of Minneapolis. Responded the president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, Philadelphia's John Cardinal Krol:

"Our taping equipment is not the most reliable ... which can be very convenient."

It brought a chuckle. But, while there were other pointed references to the Nixon administration's troubles, the bishops corporately avoided citing them in assessing current moral issues.

Asked at a news conference concluding their week-long meeting why the bishops, as church guides to conscience, had not done so, Cardinal Krol said he hadn't surveyed his colleagues to find out.

"But there has not been total silence about it," he added. He noted that in an opening address he himself spoke of a "serious malaise" of immorality in public office and elsewhere, focusing "not on a few but the total picture."

The leaders of 48.5 million Catholics did tackle various other problems, calling for sweeping reforms in the nation's prisons and for an amendment to the U.S. Constitution that would outlaw abortion.

They also endorsed a nationwide consumer boycott of lettuce and table grapes in support of Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers' fight with the Teamsters union for free representation elections among field hands.

The bishops suggested solutions in the Middle East, including recognition of secure boundaries for Israel, a state for Palestinian refugees and internationally guaranteed access to Israeli-held Jerusalem.

Generating plant given approval

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Public Service Commission gave approval Friday for construction of a large steam turbine electric generating plant on the Missouri River in Platte County.

The $210 million facility would be constructed by the Kansas City Power and Light Co., paying two-thirds of the cost, and the St. Joseph Light and Power Co., paying one third.

The commission said the 600-megawatt plant, to be located at the river's upper Iatan bend, four miles northwest of Weston, is needed to meet peak load demands during the summer of 1979 and provide a reasonable reserve capacity.

The plant will burn low-sulfur coal and the Kansas City utility will construct a $2.4 million high voltage line to its Nashua substation in Clay County. The St. Joseph firm would have a similar line to its distribution facilities.

The Missouri Air Conservation Commission will approve equipment to control air emissions from the plant. Cooling will be from Missouri River water, under authority of the U.S. Corps of Engineers and effluent discharges back into the river must meet requirements of the Missouri Clean Water Commission.

People in the news

MOSCOW (AP) — Armand Hammer, the U.S. oil executive who makes almost monthly trips to Moscow on trade missions, says Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev expects President Nixon to visit Moscow in 1974.

Hammer, president of Occidental Petroleum Corp., said on Friday after a visit with Brezhnev that the Soviet leader frequently referred to Nixon during the conversation and seemed especially looking forward to a Nixon visit.

There has been some talk of a Nixon visit to Moscow in 1974 and another Brezhnev trip to the United States in 1975.

Hammer said Brezhnev cited the Middle East cease-fire agreement as an example of the fruits of detente and said: "It's better to be talking than shooting at each other."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Richard Boone is nursing shoulder and elbow injuries suffered when a door he was to break down failed to give way during a scene for NBC's "Hec Ramsey" series.

Instead, the scenery wall was pushed back 18 inches.

Boone, 55, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where X rays revealed no broken bones, a spokesman said, but did indicate an aggravation to an earlier separation of his right shoulder.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Wernher von Braun, who helped guide the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to its success with moon flights, says Skylab research may help relieve the energy crisis.

The German-born scientist said super-conductive metals that could be developed as a result of Skylab experiments would make possible cross-country power lines able to carry large amounts of electricity without the power loss that is a problem with conventional lines.

Power plants then could be located far from the cities they serve, von Braun said.

He spoke in an interview while in Charlotte to address a convocation of high school students.

MOSCOW (AP) — Ballet dancer Valery Panov said he was feeling well after 15 days of a hunger strike to protest denial of emigration for himself and his wife. Both are Jews.

The 33-year-old star of the Kirov Ballet told newsmen by telephone Friday from Leningrad that he had drunk only water for the past 15 days.

His wife had joined in the hunger strike but gave up after feeling ill on the fifth day.

Last week, Soviet authorities accepted the Panovs' applications for visas to Israel but did not say they could emigrate.

Retirement age limit part of measure

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A package of judicial legislation including mandatory retirement of judges at age 70 will be introduced in the upcoming legislative session.

Also approved Friday for introduction—bills can be prefiled in December—was a measure to extend the nonpartisan court plan to all areas of the state by a local option election.

A joint legislative committee on the judiciary met all day with lawyers and judges to weed out what court reform measures can be implemented by legislation and which will have to be approved by a public vote in the form of a constitutional amendment.

The nonpartisan court plan, where a commission nominates three names to the governor for appointment and then the appointee stands for re-election without opposition, applies to the state Supreme Court, the state courts of appeal, and the circuit courts for Jackson County, St. Louis City and St. Louis County.

Under legislation to be introduced by Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal and Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, voters in the 43 judicial circuits could decide to enact the nonpartisan court plan. The plan also could apply to magistrates.

Other measures decided upon for legislation include requiring municipal court judges to be at least 25, with two years of experience as practicing lawyers, and with the judges being chosen by an election or by the city council;

—Allowing circuit judges to assign civil cases such as uncontested divorce cases and juvenile matters to magistrates;

—Increasing the amount that can be sued for damages in magistrate courts to $5,000. It now varies from $2,000 to $3,000.

—Setting up a council for redistricting the judicial circuits;

—Making a study of having the state assume control of the entire court system;

—Allowing magistrates to have sound recordings of court sessions. State law now says a court reporter must be present.

—Allow magistrates to give jury instructions in all cases.

Another possibility is raising the salaries of judges who handle both magistrate and probate duties from $16,000 to $20,000 a year.

Mandatory retirement at 70, now part of the nonpartisan court plan, drew opposition from Rep. Richard DeCoster, D-Canton, and Sen. Paul R. Bradshaw, R-Springfield. There is no age requirement for judges who are chosen in elections.

"If people want to elect a 110-year-old judge and they think he can serve them, they ought to be allowed to do it," DeCoster said.

Having senior judges over 70 who serve without compensation was suggested. Robert T. Donnelly, chief judge of the state Supreme Court, suggested having a group of roving judges who would sit in courts where the resident judge is sick or has died.

Legislators agreed to continue to meet with the judges to work out a constitutional amendment to revamp the Missouri justice system, but agreed it could not be done in the upcoming session.

A special committee of the Missouri Bar Association Board of Governors offered a list of proposals, including the retirement age. Most of the changes, not yet approved by the Board of Governors, would require a constitutional amendment.

Among the proposals are:

—Establishment of associate circuit judges who would hear cases now heard by magistrates, probate and municipal judges, with cities still being able to maintain municipal courts. There would be a circuit or associate circuit judge in each of the state's 114 counties.

—Each circuit or associate circuit judge shall have three years' experience as a lawyer before being elected or appointed.

—Establishment of a commission to recommend pay and retirement benefits for personnel of all three branches of government—executive, judicial and legislative.

Gay libber's bid refused by school

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The University of Missouri Board of Curators has denied recognition to homosexual student groups on the Columbia and Kansas City campuses.

Curators voted 8 to 1 Friday to deny recognition to two Gay Liberation groups at a meeting in Kansas City after the Academic Affairs Committee recommended the board no grant recognition to the Gay People's Union of UMKC and Columbia's Gay Lib.

The board agreed to accept conditionally the residence center at Independence as another campus of UMKC. The center has been operated by Central Missouri State University at Warresnburg as a junior college.

Curators said the university would accept the center if sufficent funds were provided for operation for the fiscal year 1974-75 by the state legislature.

The university will raise its fee for room and board in Columbia, Kansas City and Rolla. The price of room and board in a double room at UMKC will be $1,150 in the fall, $150 more than is charged currently.

In Columbia an increase to $120 will raise the price of a double room to $1,060. In Rolla, an increase of $260 will raise yearly rates to $1,200 beginning this spring.

TRADITIONAL CARVING METHOD

1. Remove drumstick and thigh—To remove drumstick and thigh, press leg away from body. Joint connecting leg to backbone will oftentimes snap free or may be severed easily with knife point. Cut dark meat completely from body by following body contour carefully with knife.

2. Slicing dark meat—Place drumstick and thigh on separate plate and cut through connecting joint. Both pieces may be individually sliced. Tilt drumstick to convenient angle, slicing towards plate as shown in illustration.

3. Slicing thigh—To slice thigh meat, hold firmly on plate with fork. Cut even slices parallel to the bone.

4. Preparing breast—In preparing breast for easy slicing, place knife parallel and as close to wing as possible. Make deep cut into breast, cutting right to bone. This is your base cut. All breast slices will stop at this vertical cut.

5. Carving breasts—After base cut, begin to slice breast. Carve downward, ending at base cut. Start each new slice slightly higher up on breast. Keep slices thin and even.

THANKSGIVING

More than any other holiday, Thanksgiving has become a "feast" day. It is a commemorative celebration of the first Pilgrim harvest and is a time to gather family and friends together. We give thanks for what we have and share with those who are less fortunate. It is an especially good time to invite those away-from-home friends into your home.

The Thanksgiving feast is one of the most traditional of all holidays. While a few side dishes may be regional or family favorites, the turkey, cranberry sauce, pumpkin and mincemeat pies are national favorites. There are many convenience foods available today which let you take a few shortcuts to make "feast day" easier and more fun—brown 'n serve or frozen rolls, canned and frozen vegetables, frozen pies and toppings, prepared stuffing mixes, even boneless turkey roasts, if you wish. Another way to enjoy the day is to select as many foods as possible which can be prepared ahead of time.

The turkey can be roasted covered or uncovered, in a brown paper bag or foil tent, or in one of the newer cooking bags. It can be stuffed or unstuffed. However, I do recommend using a meat thermometer inserted into the thickest part of the thigh without touching the bone. When it reads 180-185 degrees, the bird is done. The length of time this takes will vary. Allow the roasted turkey to "rest" at room temperature at least 15-20 minutes for easier carving.

Combine friends, family, good food and a relaxed atmosphere to make it a day for which everyone is truly thankful.

Opera has country air

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Meet opera star Leontyne Price at a reception and you're so struck by her grand manner and regal appearance that you automatically address her as Madame Price. Talk to her in her own living room and you meet a woman of quick laughter and wit who states her philosophy about opera singing in a homespun way as easily understood in her native Laurel, Miss., as in the halls of the opera house.

"Every tub sits on its own bottom.

"It's the attitude you have to have. There is not a great deal of teamwork going on, on the opera stage. That adds to its excitement, really.

"I'm in love with my own sound. I'm not really tuned in to anybody else's sound much. In a duet, I try to blend in with this beautiful thing I have in my throat. I think all of us feel that way. That's why it is a kind of bullfight. If you're not in love with your own sound, you certainly aren't going to make other people like it. I'm not going to lie. I just adore mine. But I'm a little worried; I'm thinking that more and more often. Seriously, your voice is an individual vibration of your own. It is not like anybody else's.

"I don't depend on the prompter either. What if he has a heart attack? I try to learn the whole opera, not just where I come in. In 'Ernani' quite some years ago there was a baritone entrance where he didn't enter and I sang it. Nobody else could sing until that came in. I think a colleague would do that for me, to get the ballgame rolling again."

Miss Price hasn't sung at the Metropolitan Opera very much in the last three seasons, which has created much comment and theorizing, but she's back this season. That topic and the fact of her being the first black star at the Metropolitan Opera both fit in with her attitude about where a tub puts its reliance.

First, Miss Price emphasizes that she did not stop singing. She made recordings, continued to give recitals around the country and sang with symphony orchestras.

Nor did she completely turn her back on the Met. Last season she sang once, at the annual gala. The season before she took a leave and the season before that she sang four times.

Her Met debut was in January 1961 in "Il Trovatore;" her opera debut was in San Francisco in 1957. It was simply time, she says, after a hectic 15 years, to slow down for a breathing spell and mental and physical regrouping of her forces. Now she's eager and ready to get back to work.

"Many things you do in your naive youth. Then your ballgame gets started and you go from one step to the other. It's like you're wearing blinders. All the confusion goes on around you but you're not terribly aware of it. Once the public accepts you, your fees go up and you have journalistic exposure and the public expects certain things of you. That's really when you have to keep on your toes — when you're one of the lucky ones.

"It's like walking a tightrope. If you're not careful, the only way to go is off. That's what stage a career gets to. You really feel less relaxed.

"If you really want to recharge yourself, take time off. I would advise that very much for a hectic career. You cannot keep on indefinitely getting on planes and trains and racing all the time."

Miss Price, who now is 46, says, "You cannot do, just off the cuff, any more the things you used to do. I can't. Even if I can, I'm not going to try it any more. I'm not going to get off a jet plane and be on a stage for a rehearsal one minute after I get there. I can't afford it; I could ruin everything by doing that."

This Met season Miss Price will sing twice in "Madam Butterfly," which she sang in her first season at the Met, but which she stopped singing years ago because it made her cry, and seven times in "Don Giovanni."

In 1955, Marian Anderson became the first black singer at the Metropolitan Opera. She was past her prime and sang secondary roles. Mattiwilda Dobbs also sang at the Met. Miss Price was the third black singer there, but the first to enter the Met in a starring part and maintain stardom.

She says, "I don't mean to be immodest, but I've broken a few barriers in my time. Then, when you do, you get on with it. That's a wonderful thing about our country. We get it done for the first time, then the ballgame goes on from there. Then you have to accept the responsibility of being measured, criticized, regarded and rewarded in your own right. You don't lose your pride in being black, but now your responsibility is to be the best possible artist you can be, period. I think it's a thrilling challenge — to be accepted for me, for what I am and what I do without any copouts around it."

China painting demonstrated

The recently organized State Fair China Painters club hosted a show and sale of china paintings Friday at the Cook Paint Store, 416 South Ohio. All of the China and paintings were produced by members of the club. Mrs. Inez McPherson, seated, Blue Springs, provided on-the-spot demonstrations for people who stopped in to see the display. Standing at left is Mrs. Ralph Steinkuhler, 1009 South Ohio, president of the club. The other two women were not identified.

Change has affects on those involved in death

DALLAS (AP) — Change has affected all walks of life in the 10 years since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Here is a look at what has happened to some of the characters in the tragedy of Nov. 22, 1963 in Dallas:

Lyndon B. Johnson, Kennedy's successor, died of a heart attack on Jan. 22, 1973.

Marina Oswald, Russian-born wife of Lee Harvey Oswald, married Kenneth J. Porter, a sewing machine company employe, in 1964. They have a 7-year-old son and live in Rockwell, a rural area near Dallas, with Oswald's two daughters, June, 12, and Rachel, 10.

Marguerite Oswald, Lee Harvey's mother, lives in Fort Worth, Tex., and still asserts that her son was innocent of the Kennedy murder.

John B. Connally, then the Texas governor who was wounded in the assassination, became secretary of the treasury and special adviser to President Nixon. He has switched to the Republican party and is considered a contender for the 1976 nomination.

Mrs. J.D. Tippit, widow of the Dallas policeman slain shortly after the assassination, married Harry D. Thomas, a Dallas police lieutenant, in 1967. People from around the world donated money to the Tippit family after the assassination and in 1964 the Dallas Police Department reported the total at $656,391. There has been no further public accounting.

Sarah T. Hughes, the district court judge who administered the oath of office to Johnson, is '76 and holds the same federal judgeship.

Dr. Malcolm O. Perry, the surgeon who attended the dying president, still practices at Parkland Hospital and is now a full professor of surgery at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

Willian Wayne Whaley, who drove the taxicab carrying Oswald from downtown to his rooming house after the assassination, was killed in a traffic accident Dec. 18, 1965.

Earlene Roberts, Oswald's landlady, died of a heart attack Jan. 9, 1966.

Police Chief Jesse Curry retired from the department after 30 years and is a vice president and the security chief of a downtown bank.

J. Gordon Shanklin remains as FBI agent-in-charge in Dallas.

Forrest V. Sorrels, agent-in-charge of the Dallas Secret Service office, retired about three years ago.

William Greer, driver of the Kennedy car on Nov. 22, received disability retirement from the Secret Service in 1966 because of an ulcer condition.

Patrolman M.N. McDonald, who grappled with Oswald in the Texas theatre and, with help of others arrested him, was promoted to detective and is still with the department.

Abraham Zapruder, the Dallas manufacturerhwho made the dramatic home movies of the assassination, died in August 1970, after a lingering illness.

A.D. "Jim" Bowie, a Ruby prosecutor, died of cancer in 1968. He had been serving as a federal judge.

Appointments announced for Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond made several appointments Friday.

They included:

—Kansas City Police Chief Joseph D. McNamara to the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council, replacing former Police Chief Clarence M. Kelley, who resigned to become head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

—Patrick Horner, a Republican who is city clerk and collector at Auxvasse, as probate judge and ex-officio magistrate of Callaway County, replacing Hugh P. Williamson, who resigned.

—Rueben Boggs, a Republican from Ellington, as judge of the Reynolds County Court, for the 1st District, replacing Herbert R. Brooks, who resigned.

—Gary L. Crump, a Republican from Lancaster, as Schuyler County clerk and ex-officio recorder of deeds, succeeding Wendell W. Shepher, who died.

Record harvest is predicted for Russians

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — All grain crops in the Soviet Union should have record harvests, including wheat which should surpass the mark of 215 million metric tons, a top Russian scientest has predicted.

Dr. Azcadiy Z. Rodin, an expert in wind erosion, said Friday, "We anticipate record harvests in all grain crops."

Rodin, one of five Russian agricultural scientists visting the United States under an exchange program, said soil conservation research in his country has been accelerated in the last few years.

The USSR uses similar methods of soil conservation as the US, he said, "but the climatic conditions and the farms in my country are different from those in the United States, so our practical application of soil conservation techniquest is not always the same as yours."

Police chase ends in death for man

PERRYVILLE, Mo. (AP)— One person was killed and another seriously injured early today when a car being pursued by police struck a sign and overturned several times near Perryville, the Missouri Highway Patrol reported.

A passenger in the car, Bernard R. Robinson, 20, of Perryville, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Perry County Hospital.

The car's driver, Roger L. Schremp, 20, also of Perryville, was listed in serious condition at the hospital.

Police said the accident occurred shortly after 1 a.m. on county Route T just west of Perryville.

The patrol said Perryville police were chasing the car at the time of the accident.

NEW YORK (AP) — "LaGuardia Tower, this is Exec Jet 773 requesting landing instructions," radioed the plane as it neared the midpoint of its Boston-to-Charlotte, N.C., flight.

"Good morning, Judy. It's nice to hear a sweet voice this time of morning," came the reply from one of the men who spend the lonely morning hours drinking coffee and watching radar screens.

To many of them, the voice of a pretty young girl like Judy Alcombrack crackling into the speakers of the airport control tower is a welcome inspiration.

At 28, Judy is one of the youngest women jet pilots in the country, flying an air taxi under contract with the U.S. Postal Service. Based in Columbus, Ohio, she has logged more than 2,500 hours of flight.

"I don't want it to sound like I'm bragging, but a lot of hard work and dedication got me this job," she says. That included bartending, waiting on restaurant tables and cleaning the interiors of airplanes to finance flight lessons.

As a first officer for Executive Jet Aviation, her pilot's license includes airline transport ratings for instrument, multi-engine, sea plane and flight-instrument instructor, which more than qualifies her to fly the $1.5 million Westwind Jet Commander.

Although still paying off a $7,000 loan for her training, she gives free flying lessons to those as eager to learn as she was.

"When people ask me what I do, I tell them I'm a mortician. They usually laugh and say, 'Sure you are.' I then reply, 'Well then I'm a jet pilot.' They still usually laugh."

Judy admits that flying a night mail run can ruin a single girls social life, but she says her job as a jet pilot is the most important thing in her life followed by her sports car and her boyfriend.

To a girl who calls it fun to repair car engines, it's not surprising to hear her describe her highly technical job in these terms:

"The cockpit of this jet is no more complicated than my kitchen. Its simple."

The first recorded mile run in under four minutes took place on May 6, 1954, when Roger Bannister did it in London, in 3.59.4.

Q — Why are we still paying for a garbage pickup here in Oak Tree Manor when nobody else is? Part of the court is inside the city limits and isn't paying. The rest of the court is outside the city limits and is paying. In the past, we were effected like city residents, for all increases and decreases in pickup rates. Why are we treated differently now? — Mrs. D.M.

A — The main difference, City Sanitation Superintendent Art Bethke indicated, is the city garbage collection expenses are now being paid by federal revenue sharing funds allocated to the city. Because revenue sharing rules stipulate that the money can only be used within the corporate boundaries of the area to which it is allocated, that part of the Oak Park court outside the city limits cannot be serviced. Consequently, Bethke explained, all park owners living outside the city limits will still have to pay the regular service fee.

Q — We do quite a bit of walking in "the old West End of Sedalia," and have been wondering who is responsible as well as liable for the condition of the sidewalks in this area. The concret walks have some of the slabs extending about two inches higher than others, some have concrete crumbling and missing entirely.

There are also whole block lengths of walks covered by rooted grass and extending bushes as well as long hanging branches and tree roots. It would be a very dangerous undertaking to walk after dark. With gas rationing just around the corner, there may be more walkers! — J.C.B.

A — A spokesman for the city engineering department informed Hot Line that the care and maintenance of sidewalks is completely up to the individual property owners. "The only time we get into it is if the city damages or destroys some sidewalks in the process of maintenance or repair work," he said. "Other than that, sidewalk care and conditioning is strictly up to the property owners."

Q — It has been rumored that the house at 809 West Broadway owned by the late Beulah Salisbury has not been on the county's tax books since it wasn't finished. She had lived in this house for several years and I wonder if it was true that she didn't pay any city or county taxes. Is this true? We have heard it from several sources. — Mrs M. B.

A — Hot Line checked the tax books with County Assessor William McCune and discovered that since 1939 the house has been assessed for at least $5,000. It presently is assessed at $6,000.

Energy crisis being felt in Missouri

By JIM CHURCH
Associated Press Writer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — "I'll turn down the thermostat and put on a sweater, but if I had to drive 50 miles an hour on a freeway, I'd go crazy," a Jefferson City housewife said after hearing President Nixon call upon citizens to help conserve fuel.

Such was one reaction as Missourians and Americans in general began to respond to the perplexing energy problem at the request of their federal and state leaders, industry leaders and scientists.

"We have met the enemy and he is us—we've got to change our habits," says Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who says he is convinced the energy problem is real. But some people still tell him they think it's all a big plot to drive up prices, the governor says.

Convincing the public to help may be the biggest problem arising from the fuel shortage.

As Bond and other state officials lead the energy conservation charge—lights are turned off in state offices at 6 p.m., plans are dropped for Christmas lighting and state employes are asked to drive no faster than 60 miles an hour—executives of electric utilities that use coal are saying there is no need to cut back on electricity, that there is no shortage.

Studies show that the United States gets about 80 per cent of its energy from petroleum, and few people deny that petroleum supplies are disappearing.

A cutback in Middle East oil exports to the United States of 2 million barrels a day prompted President Nixon to call upon the nation to begin an energy conservation drive.

Conservation can buy us time until we develop new sources of energy, says Bill Atchley, Bond's science adviser and chairman of the Missouri Energy Council.

"When you turn on the light switch and nothing happens, you'll know we are in an energy crisis," Atchley said. "We have to do something before that happens."

The Missouri Energy Council, or MEC, has been trying to publicize the energy problem and has published hundreds of suggestions for conservation.

It has set up a clearinghouse in Jefferson City—the number is 314-751-4757—for fuel requests and is working with the state Fuel Allocation Board which will screen applicants during shortages.

The MEC also has set up an energy information bank in the state Department of Community Affairs. An inventory of more than 600 petroleum wholesalers will be prepared and the bank will monitor the supply and demand on a county-by-county basis.

The six-member allocation board, under direction of Public Service Commission Chairman James Mauze, will try to find suppliers of heating oil, kerosene, propane, diesel and jet fuel, but not for auto gasoline.

The top priority will be homes and hospitals and other institutions such as schools and prisons.

"For propane shortages we refer them to the federal regional office in Kansas City," says Tom Wade, a Lincoln University student who is directing the MEC office in Jefferson City. "For fuel oil we will often call an oil jobber (wholesaler). In some cases we have had to go to the Federal Allocation Board."

His office has averaged 40-50 calls a day.

"The conservation won't do that much good right now," Wade says. "Two months from now, however, it will really show up."

Bond says he will push strongly for any legislative proposals the MEC comes up with, such as making the MEC a permanent part of state government and reducing the speed limit from 70 to 60 miles an hour.

The President recommended 50 miles an hour, but Bond says he thinks it will be easier to get people to drop to 60.

The MEC and Fuel Allocation Board have no legal authority to stockpile fuel or to order a supplier to sell to a particular customer when he can get a higher price from someone else.

But federal allocation officers, working with state authorities, do have authority to divert up to 10 per cent of a wholesaler's supply to alleviate temporary hardships. The state Allocation Board will make recommendations to the federal allocation officers in Kansas City.

The Missouri Energy Council is made up of 20 business and educational leaders throughout the state. It has been holding hearings every month and has met several times with a legislative committee also studying the fuel shortage.

About 33 per cent of the calls to the MEC office have dealt with propane shortages, 60 per cent with oil shortages and 6 per cent with gasoline shortages, Wade said.

Response by Missouri citizens to the call for conservation has been generally good, and it has taken on the appearances of a fad.

Temperatures in state office buildings are being kept at 65-68 degrees during the day. Car pools are being encouraged.

The state operates about 4,000 vehicles. More cars will be smaller and without air conditioning, state officials say.

In Springfield, an employe of the Daily Leader-Press said she reduced her speed, but not for patriotic reasons.

"I had to pay $8 for a tank of gas yesterday and that speaks louder than Nixon could," she said.

More than 100 vehicles operated by Greene County have been limited to a top speed of 50 miles an hour. The Midwest Motorist Magazine reports that 15 per cent in fuel can be saved by dropping from 70 to 50 m.p.h.

Carolyn Bond, the governor's wife, says she will burn candles in the governor's mansion and will use Christmas lights sparingly. In a statement to housewives she reminded that showers use less hot water than do baths.

At the Zero Manufacturing Co. in Washington, Mo., the work week will be changed Dec. 1 to 10 hours for four days a week instead of eight hours for five days. The heat and lights can be turned off on the fifth day.

Several cities, including Jefferson City, St. Charles, St. Louis and Cape Girardeau, are having employes drive city cars at reduced speeds.

Public officials have not called for citizens to buy small cars, but Jefferson City area dealers say they can't get enough small cars to meet the demand. Discounts of as much as $1,400 on $4,500 large cars are being offered.

Gasoline prices are approaching 50 cents a gallon and John Love, the President's energy adviser, predicts 75 cents per gallon will be the average price before too long.

This reporter completed a 6,000-mile trip through the western United States. The only purchase limit encountered was in Nebraska at an independent dealer. In Idaho, all stations were closed on a Sunday in three towns of more than 20,000 persons. In Portland, Ore., the major chain stations have a daily quota and stop pumping gasoline, sometimes as early as noon, when the quota is reached. The average price for regular was 44 cents a gallon.

In Portland, most lights were turned off at night in the downtown area on a voluntary basis.

In California, more than half of the stations were closed on weekends. Independent service stations seemed to be more prevalent in Missouri and Oklahoma than in Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

The Missouri Highway Patrol, which began to encounter problems last summer in getting fuel, has reduced its patrolling by 10 per cent.

The National Innkeeping Association, headquartered in Jefferson City and representing 6,000 motel owners, has asked that sign lighting be reduced 25 per cent.

★ ★ ★

In St. Louis, McDonnell Douglas and the Monsanto Co. have intensified car pool efforts. The East-West Gateway Coordinating Agency reports that a car pool from a downtown office building has drawn a "very positive reaction."

St. Louis public schools have lowered classroom temperatures to 55 degrees after school is out for the day.

The Kansas City Transit Authority says its buses will be limited to 50 m.p.h. All federal buildings in Missouri will have temperatures lowered to 65-68 degrees.

Like the Capitol dome in Missouri, the dome of Henderson Hall at Culver-Stockton College in Canton will be dark this winter. The dome lights could be seen from miles around in northeast Missouri.

The fuel shortage has given ammunition to supporters of the laws against Sunday sales. Repealing the laws, they say, will put more autos on the highways on Sundays and will turn on more lights and heaters.

Another side effect is a reduction in highway user taxes by reduced speed limits. Lyle V. McLaughlin, assistant chief engineer of the Highway Department, estimated the reduction of revenue from gasoline taxes at $8 million a year.

An electricity shortage is unlikely for Missouri Power and Light customers, says MPL District Manager Wesley Farris, because "we have hundreds of years of coal reserves."

Missouri's coal reserves could help the nation, Bond says, but it has a high sulfur content and environmental guidelines would have to be relaxed and utilities that burn natural gas would have to be converted—an astronomical expense.

Bond and Atchley fear a propane and heating oil shortage this winter, and isolated shortages already are occurring.

In Glover, Mo., the general manager of the American Smelting and Refining Co. plant said Wednesday that if the smelter can't get more propane gas it will have to close Dec. 1. The company employs 165 persons in Glover and 275 persons work for its ore supplier, the Ozark Lead Co., at Ellington, Mo.

American Smelting and Refining formerly used natural gas—also in short supply—but switched to propane last winter when its natural gas was diverted to users with higher priorities. Propane allocations are based on last year's use.

In Kennett, the school system has gone to its interruptible service supply. No. 2 diesel fuel, after the Ark-Mo Power Co. shut off gas to the school.

Several states plan to close school during bad winter months. Whether it happens in Missouri depends on the weather and the supply of fuel.

Last winter, 60 communities in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska came dangerously close to running out of No. 2 fuel oil after they were cut off from natural gas, said Francis X. Tobin, regional director of the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness. Extra fuel was found in time.

The Fulton State Hospital got down to a four-day supply for its 1,300 patients before a shipment of oil from Oklahoma, arranged by the governor's office, averted the crisis.

Last summer, the state failed to get bulk bids for over 100 agencies for gasoline and fuel oil and ended up buying at higher prices for small quantities.

In January, tow boats jammed the St. Louis shores, refusing to move on until they could get more fuel.

Two firms in southwest Missouri laid off their 500 employes for several days because of a fuel shortage.

Oil refineries reduced their production of gasoline in favor of more fuel oil. Then, in late spring, about 1,500 independent service stations closed in the Midwest, according to testimony before a congressional subcommittee. Three-fourths of Missouri's service stations curtailed their hours of operation. A fourth of them allocated fuel.

Bond set up an energy task force, the Federal Disaster Office in the adjutant general's office doubled its work load and nuclear expert Edward Teller was called to a Jefferson City conference.

Most of the dialogue concerned conservation of energy and long-term solutions.

Last summer, a distributor who supplies 190 Missouri farmers ran out of gasoline and called upon Sen. Stuart Symington to help in getting an emergency supply.

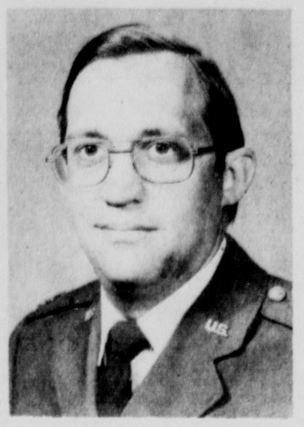
Conservation methods, allocations and hearings won't produce more fuel, John R. Hahn, executive secretary of the Missouri Oil Jobbers Association, said at one of the hearings.

The north slope oil in Alaska is needed, along with excavation of oil shale in the Rocky Mountain area.

"But we must have solar energy, thermal energy, gassification of coal and offshore drilling," he said.

He and other industry spokesmen have recommended allowing the Arab countries to invest in refineries in this country so that more can be built.

But oil can only supply one-third of the world's foreseeable energy needs, he said.



Graduate

Capt. (Dr.) George K. Parkins II, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Parkins, Eldon, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force School of Aerospace Medicine at Brooks AFB, Tex. He will now be assigned to Webb AFB, Tex., for duty as a flight medical officer. He received his M.D. degree in 1971 from Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York.

Bond outlines weaknesses in politics

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher Bond has called the scarcity of dedicated and able people in politics one of the biggest problems in state and national political activity.

"If good people don't get into politics," Bond told an audience of college students here Friday, "there are plenty of other people who will."

The governor told a crowd of about 500 Southeast Missouri State University students that a seven per cent reduction of personnel in the state revenue department has permitted Missouri to hire better people to fill the jobs with good results.

He said the change has resulted in increases in the collection of sales tax money and greatly improved efficiency in the issuance of drivers licenses.

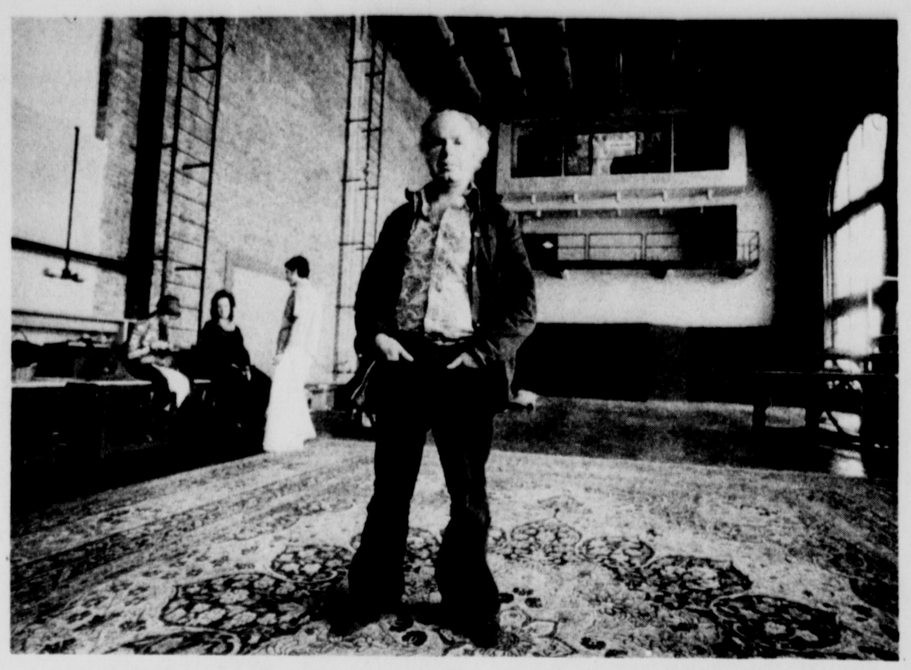
Peter Brook present ranking theater guru



Toward universality

Peter Brook poses in the empty hall of the Brooklyn Academy of Music where the English director is working at present with 11 actors in a project known as the International Center for Theater Research. Some of his performers wait in the background. Brook made his name with Marat-Sade, an unorthodox "Midsummer Night's Dream" and many other shake-up productions. The project he's now engaged on in Brooklyn is experiemental, involving street performances, much improvisation and audience participation, and aims at reaching a universal theatrical truth. (AP)

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — And it came to pass that Peter Brook with his stalwart seekers of the theatrical ultimate reached Brooklyn.

Through far climes and cultures they had wandered for three years, looking for keys to perfection in what the leader called the art of "bringing life to situations."

Here they had come to show all that had been learned. Great was the interest in all sectors of the stage profession, for Brook was the mighty director who had created "Marat-Sade," a vaudeville "Midsummer Night's Dream" and a host of other shake-up productions.

So by day his followers went into the streets to do impromptu shows that sometimes were rewarded only by handfuls of pebbles, tossed by the skeptical habitues of black ghettoes, who had never seen such freakish things.

Occasionally, there were 12-hour saturation sessions for theater people only, which caused hectic ticket scrambles. And at night there was "The Conference of the Birds," a performance experiment based on 12th-century Persian poetry, filled with flailing arms and exotic music.

Many questions were asked by those who hoped for revelations experienced on the trek Brook called "a global kaleidoscope." To make it he had abandoned what he felt, after 30 years of work, were the narrow confines of "middle-class theater."

"We very much wish solutions to appear," the eminent stager carefully attempted precise report in Oxonian tones for one rapt audience, "but this is rarely what takes place."

The project, officially known as the International Center for Theater Research, is in fact obstinately opposed to finding any pat answers.

As a cultural thrust it rates as something of a million-dollar paradox. The amount is the estimated involvement since 1970 by the Anderson Foundation, an American oil philanthropy; the Gulbenkian Foundation of Portugal; this country's National Endowment for the Arts and Humanities; and the governments of Iran and France.

The latter nation provides the headquarters space in an unused Paris furniture factory, where an interlude of retrospective appraisal is slated before another investigative round.

The blue-eyed, 48-year-old English director sees the prime value of this work in sending out stimulating waves.

He stresses aversion to propagating a particular message with:

"The problem is that every system tends to develop one set of muscles, or one style of movement, or one attitude at the expense of another.

"Certain systems of training prevent one from working outside it, yet all schools of theater and methods that exist contain something."

The comments that Brook offers tend to eddy in linguistic swirls, incantations to be absorbed rather than grammatically analyzed. The trait is common to all theater gurus, ranging from Lee Strasberg to Julian Beck, Jerzy Grotowski, Richard Schechner and Eli Siegel. Brook, of course, outranks them all right now.

For the 11 actors who have traveled with him to African villages, Iranian mountain shrines and the camps where migrant workers gather California's grapes, Brook insists on elaborate daily drill. The group, incidentally, has never exercised in England, possibly because of a lack of grant from the British Arts Council.

The company warms up by intoning Japanese chants, which he has enthusiastically borrowed. Then come long drills with abstract sound patterns. Development of nonverbal communication ranks high in the center's exploration of how to reach ecumenical audiences.

After the actors finish playing among themselves, they go into improvisational presentations, which may center around a large packing box or four strips of wood.

He clarifies that with: "Improvisation is always alive when it is meeting a requirement, not just doing anything. Lashing out, for example, is not freedom, because there is no requirement.

"An actor must go through panic-stricken concentration to achieve this — through self-annoyance, self-anger, self-reproach to self-disgust. As you free yourself from them, in fact what happens is that the action seems to come slower. As you develop mastery, you can improvise immediately."

The discussion turns to the Center's emphasis upon communication via nonverbal sounds, tones unrelated to any word.

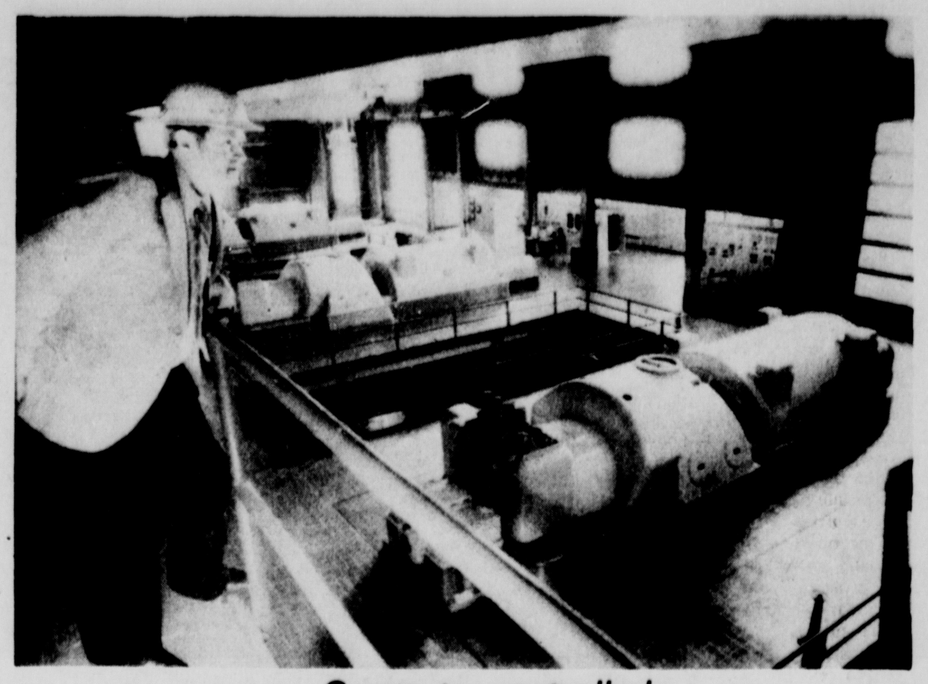
To do this the company created a tongue made up from monosyllables taken from dead and current languages.

"In every sound there is a minimum and maximum effect. We are trying to devolve different colors, structure syllables, stretching, milking to the utmost, trying to discover total expression.

During the long expedition, Brook has been aiming for a vast audience, far wider and bigger than any he believes has ever existed, except possibly during the Elizabethan era.

By performing for people totally unfamiliar with traditional theater, Brook hopes to arrive at his golden universality.

"In New York and other theater centers," his manifesto runs, "there are angry divisions between stage groups, each working for limited sections of the community, socially or intellectually. They find people who have the same beliefs and who then gather round, knowing in advance they are more or less in tune." This he scorns.



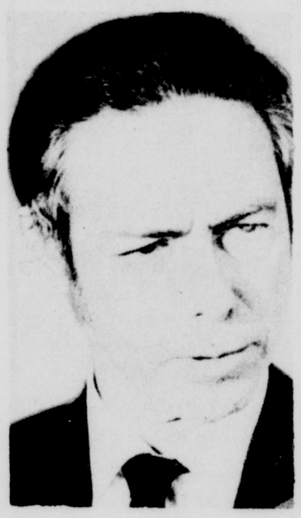
Computer controlled

A superintendent at a Bellevue, Neb., power plant looks over three turbine-driven alternators at the plant, one of several in the state linked by a grid system which is computer-controlled from Hastings, Neb., to route electrical energy to areas of the state where they are needed. The plant operates on coal, which is what many others in the country will have to do since fuel oil is in short supply. (UPI)

First municipal nurse dead; age 96

KEOKUK, Iowa (AP)—Maymie Essig, 96, reported to be the first municipal nurse for the city of St. Louis, Mo., died at Keokuk Wednesday of natural causes.

Miss Essig was born in Keokuk Nov. 26, 1876, and spent 38 of her 50 nursing years in St. Louis.



Dies

Alan Watts, the philosopher who introduced millions of Americans to Zen Buddhism, died in his sleep of natural causes early Friday. He had been under treatment for a heart condition. He was 58. (UPI)

Nurses plan to form new organization

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The American Nurses Association has announced a drive to organize the country's 800,000 active registered nurses.

Rosamond C. Gabrielson, ANA president, said Friday the effort for collective bargaining is aimed more at improving the quality of nursing care than at increasing wages.

Employes of nonprofit organizations, such as some hospitals, are not included under the National Labor Relations act which covers most collective bargaining groups.

Miss Gabrielson said, "By acting as a cohesive group rather than as individuals, professional nurses will achieve the right to make decisions that affect them, their practice and the quality of care."

The association has about 10,000 members.

Indian guidelines offered

BRASILIA (AP) — The chances are slim. But just in case you're caught in the middle of the Amazon jungle face to face with primitive Indians, Brazil has just the thing for you.

A how-to booklet or Indian ABC called "Contact With Indians, What You Should Do" just rolled off the copy machines at the official FUNAI Indian Affairs Agency.

It is primarily intended for the hundreds of soldiers and contracted workers who will begin chopping a new road along the northern frontier of Brazil's Amazon jungle starting next year.

No one knows for sure how many original Brazilians inhabit remote areas of this huge South American nation. But moderate estimates put the indigenous Indian population at 100,000.

This compares with a national census numbering 100 million Brazilians who live in Westernized society.

This society has decided to conquer its last frontier — the Amazon — much like American pioneers conquered the Wild West. But instead of railways the Brazilians are building roads, huge, ambitious roads under unique tropical conditions in the world's biggest forest.

One of these roads is the Transamazon Highway, going from the Atlantic coast west to the Peruvian border 3,350 miles away across Brazil's shoulders, now nearing completion.

Another is the northern perimeter road which will blaze a new trail along Brazil's northern borders cutting through some areas never before visited by Western man.

But an unknown number of men do inhabit the region. What to do when faced with the gap in centuries between you and them?

FUNAI says that for one you should be vaccinated. "The Indian does not have defenses in his organism against the diseases of the civilized peoples."

Point 2, illustrated with a cartoon showing an armed outsider with a dog, oversized boots, a hat and an arrow-bearing Indian behind a tree suggests: "Avoid hunting."

The Indian does not like to see strangers on the land he loves without his permission. Hunting provides the Indian with his food.

If you sight anything to suggest Indians might be around, immediately notify your friendly FUNAI agent nearby, and if a tribe pays the highway camp a neighborly visit, don't stare at the squaws.

★ ★ ★

You've also got to be understanding if visiting Indians help themselves to your survival rations, geographical instruments or tools. They might not understand your attitude and become irritated.

Don't panic. Point 6 says Indians are generally meek and frequently test the courage of their civilized friends.

It might be better to give than to receive but in the Amazon the accent is on receiving. If during a visit to the camp an Indian offers you something "don't refuse it, you might offend him." And if you want to respond in kind first consult FUNAI.

Point 8 touches on food. "Remember that although you're visiting an unknown area, it belongs to the Indians. So don't destroy farming plots or take anything from them to feed yourself."

"Without knowing, you might be transmiting some disease and a simple cold could result in the death of many Indians in a tribe."

Likes her work

Madison, Wisc., has its first garbage woman. Mrs. Ann Sneath, 20, lends her female hand to a fellow worker. "I've had a lot of jobs in my life, and I like this one better than anything I've had before," she said. (UPI)

Unusual situation

Suzanne Shensky, Tacoma, Wash., may be the only 10-year-old in America whose parents ask, "May I borrow the car?" Suzanne won the new car, a trip to Disneyland and $5,000 in cash as first prize in a contest to name a new ice cream. She entered the name "Confetti Carousel." (UPI)

Corporation profits down during quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $100-million decline in corporation profits for the third quarter of 1973 may be a result of administration efforts to slow the economy, say government economists.

The decline was noted by the Commerce Department Friday in its report on earnings of corporations for the July through September quarter.

Corporate profits before taxes were reported up by $500 million during this period to an annual rate of $129.4 billion, while after-tax profits were down $100 million to a rate of $71.5 billion.

Economists said it was logical that corporate profits would come down from their extremely high levels of the previous nine months, in view of the administration's anti-inflation efforts.

Meanwhile, the over-all performance of the economy continues strong, they said.

The slowdown in growth of corporate profits was led by a sharp decline in the auto industry, due in part to the Chrysler Corp. strike in September.

Action could postpone river traffic

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Commercial navigation on the upper Mississippi River could be halted for several months next year by a court injunction requested by Wisconsin officials, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Friday.

Col. Rodney Cox, district engineer for the corps, said if the injunction is granted it would prevent the dredging of the river to maintain a 9-foot-deep navigational channel for barges.

Silt and sand will fill in parts of the channel if it is not dredged and create a barrier to traffic, Cox said.

"I admit we're in violation of the law over the disposing of dredged waste," Cox said. "And, if we're taken to court again by Wisconsin, I think they'll win. For all practicable purposes, this would close down shipping on the Mississippi."

Wisconsin is asking U.S. District Judge James Doyle to issue a permanent injunction forbidding the corps' method of disposing of dredged wastes, largely sand and mud, saying the disposal violates federal law.

Environmentalists have criticized the corps for allowing the dredged wastes to wash into the backwaters of the upper Mississippi. They claim the practice harms river ecology, including fish and wildlife habitat.

Wisconsin says corps dredging in state waters violates the National Environmental Policy Act. The act requires federal agencies to submit environmental impact statements on any major actions they take that significantly affect the environment.

Cox Friday asked the Minnesota - Wisconsin Boundary Area Commission to advise state officials of the potential economic impact of a court ordered injunction.

He said an injunction could prevent shipping of coal to regional utilities such as Northern States Power Co., and added that the court action could cause a public and legislative "backlash against the environmentalists."

The St. Paul District of the corps is funding a $225,000 study on the environmental impact of its projects in parts of the upper Mississippi, St. Croix and Minnesota River valleys.

However, Cox said the final impact statement resulting from this study will not be submitted to higher federal authorities until Feb. 15, and probably won't be approved until mid-June.

If Judge Doyle were to issue a permanent injunction against the dredging soon, it would prevent commercial navigation from the time the shipping season resumes between mid-March and mid-April of next year until the final impact statement is approved—about two or three months.

Edward Stone—portrait of an unusual man

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A large painting hangs on the office wall opposite Edward Durell Stone's desk. He doesn't know the artist's name; it is the scene he likes, and he can gaze at it while he has his lunch, which is the only function his otherwise perfectly bare desk serves.

The more serious -or at least more permanent-work done at his office, the work of designing great buildings in this country and abroad, the architect does from a comfortable couch, sketch pad on his lap, telephone at his elbow, secretary in hailing distance.

The painting is of Venice in 1869. It is a tranquil scene, not much changed today, showing San Marco and the other mossy old structures along the Grand Canal.

He would, Edward Durell Stone said, explain his attachment to the scene over lunch. It was a long story, he said. He would, for now, say that it involved the day he forswore being sanctimonious and noble. Meanwhile were there other questions? Perhaps about architecture?

The subject consumes the man. At 71, Edward Durell Stone has all the vigor and sense of mission of an idealistic beginner — but tempered, softened, kept in bounds by the wisdom of years and an artist's notion of reality.

"Today's architect," he sighed, "is like a flute player in a boiler factory struggling to get across a few pure notes during the coffee break. Wistfully, he hopes that before the din starts up again his music will somehow evoke larger images of truth and beauty."

Some of the pure notes struck from Stone's own architectural tuning fork include the National Geographic building in Washington, the Standard Oil building in Chicago, museums and art centers in Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore and the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington; hotels in Panama, Jamaica, Beirut, El Salvador; hospitals from Palm Desert to Peru; the Public Library in Davenport, Iowa, and the City Hall in Paducah, Ky.; a sports stadium in St. Louis, a bank in Nicaragua and an airport in Saudi Arabia; a church in Schenectady, a monastery in South Carolina, a synagogue in Cleveland, a mosque in Pakistan. There are hundreds — in 32 states and 13 foreign lands, and his firm has about $250 million worth of new work on the drawing boards.

Apart from his buildings, a long list of medals and professional citations attest to Stone's place as one of the country's most distinguished and versatile architects, past or present. Yet he bears celebrity's burden with the self-effacing grace of one genuinely awed by his own success.

Stone's cook, Chou, wearing a white jacket, came in to set the desk for lunch: white tablecloth, polished silverware, wine glasses.

The architect rarely dines alone. Usually he invites a few associates to lunch at his office, or else taxis 10 blocks up Fifth Avenue to his home off Central Park and joins his wife, Violet, in a comfortable room festooned with pre-Incan pottery, at a table overhung with a large Alexander Calder mobile.

Stone's lifestyle reflects his personality, a rich blend of the elegant and the earthy. His personality, in turn, reflects his architecture, at least that of his later years, a lush and lacy style which nonetheless respects function, honors simplicity and bows to the traditions of the ages.

His American Pavilion at the 1957 Brussels World Fair, for example, which won a number of gold medals, was inspired by the Coliseum in Rome and the engineering principle of the bicycle wheel. His United States Embassy in New Delhi, which answers the needs of climate, setting and local custom and which Frank Lloyd Wright called one of the finest buildings of the century, Stone describes as "a building type almost as old as history — a temple." For a 250-acre residential development, with wall-to-wall houses, courtyards and cloistered gardens, his precedent was Pompeii.

"There's a starvation of the spirit in this country. Man deprived of beauty, of aesthetic pleasure, will turn in his ignorance to pleasures more base and brutal to alleviate the boredom.

The country's abundance, Stone believes, has been its curse.

"We fell into habits of waste. The easy way was the chosen way. We plowed downhill, and when the land went to waste we moved on. Philosophically, we became a migratory race. We don't to this moment think of building permanently for future generations.

"We apparently prefer to be 'modern,'" he said, pronouncing the word as if it were sour. "That consists simply in closing one's mind to 2,500 years of Western culture and being content to copy the next-door neighbor's glass building, house, chair, drapery and poodle clip."

★ ★ ★

"If a few militant dames can sell this country prohibition," he said, pitching his cigarette ash in the direction of a marble ashtray, "surely we can do away with neon signs, billboards, catchpenny joints and used car lots. In my view ugliness is sinful and beauty does not imply a waste of money. I say let's strike the bell for beauty."

Chou arrived to fill the water goblets. Stone strode to the window overlooking Central Park plaza from five stories up, the General Motors building facing it from the east like a glistening white sentinel.

"Ask any cab driver to show you the most beautiful building in New York and he'll take you right there," drawled the apostle of beauty. "When I built it people wondered why I didn't move my office there. I'd rather be here where I can look at it. I wouldn't change a thing."

He sank back into the couch, lit another cigarette and began rubbing his right thumb and forefinger together, an unconscious mannerism of Stone the Thinker.

"What can be done about it? We could begin with a cabinet officer empowered to see that we quit making a shambles of this country. He should have a counterpart in every state and city and village. In Paris, no citizen can change a doorway or a gable without approval. We have to make sure somehow that what's done in the future is planned for the benefit of future generations.

"Look at France. The French wouldn't think of building a highway without planting trees alongside it. Transparently, those trees aren't for the enjoyment of the planters, but for unborn Frenchmen. Their countryside isn't much different from our midwest, but all their highways are lovely avenues of trees.

"Look at Italy, a beautiful example of art and life in harmony. Their land was limited — as is ours, though we don't seem to realize it — so the Italians built walls and terraced the hillsides and trained grapes along the slopes and made their whole country a walled garden.

"It's true that all the world's great cities were built by tyrants; democracy has yet to demonstrate that it can produce a great city. Great cities, such as Paris or Leningrad, were planned cities. The only planned city in this country is Washington and you can see the result. Even that lovely city is showing signs of becoming another Los Angeles, dispersed hither and yon by the automobile.

"The sad thing is we started out with such promise — Charleston, S.C., New Orleans, Salem, Mass., beautiful cities — and parts of them remain the most beautiful, imparting a sense of permanence.

"Now look what our cities have become. The worst thing they used to say about a politician was that if he were elected grass would grow on Main Street. I've been advocating grass on Main Street for 30 years. Someday this country is going to have to choose between cars and people. Let us pray the choice is people.

"As for our residential homes, what we have are pathetic copies of Mount Vernon and Monticello on 50-foot lots. Anybody enterprising enough to break out of the mold has zoning laws to contend with. That's happened to me.

"I further believe that it's only a matter of time before this country matures enough to know we're going to have to subsidize art.

Over lunch, Stone was reminded of the painting of Venice on the opposite wall. It cautioned him against being noble, he had said. What did he mean?

"If you must be noble," he said, taking a sip of milk, "keep it to yourself. Any number of character defects are preferable.

"One summer," he said, warming up, "I leased a 16th-century villa built by Andrea Palladio on the Brenta Canal near Venice — Villa Malcontenta. My former wife was there, and a few friends, and on the last night of a wonderful holiday I told them all to go ahead and celebrate and I would take care of them.

"You see, I don't drink. I used to drink, but 25 years ago my wife demanded that I choose between her and the grape. It was an easy choice. I can't resist beautiful women.

"My drinking years, incidentally, are fondly remembered. I'm not your typical reformed sinner. They did not hurt me professionally because nobody will hire an architect under 50 anyhow. Architecture is like the papacy; by the time you make it big you're too old to enjoy it. Gustav Eiffel was 54 when he designed his tower. If Frank Lloyd Wright hadn't lived to be 90 he'd never have made it as an immortal. But I digress..."

Stone the Storyteller was in full stride: Twinkle...drawl ...chuckles.

"We had a grand evening and I was efficiently taking care of everything, being very noble, very worthwhile. See those stone steps?" he said, pointing to the picture. "At low tide they are notably slippery. That is where I, while most sanctimoniously helping the revelers into a gondola, slipped and fell in the Grand Canal.

"The fall broke my shoulder. By some miracle they got me to a hospital. I returned to the United States with my arm cast in the approximate position of a fascist salute, hardly inconspicuous.

"Clare Boothe Luce once remarked to me that no good deed goes unpunished. I've found that to be true in all of life.

"Lately I've taken to stargazing and have discovered why I seem to get more than my share of such punishment. My wife, Violet, got me interested in stargazing. I'm a Pisces. Pisces, I learn, are given to excessive generosity. That is true. I'm the easiest touch in town."

If astrology, or stargazing as he prefers, is a Stone hobby, another of longer standing is foreign travel.

Summer vacations abroad have been a pattern most of his life, although "vacations" might not be the appropriate word.

"Oh, yes," Stone said, "I can draw like hell. When I was at Harvard they all acknowledged that I could draw anything except a sober breath."

His first trip abroad was in 1927, the result of a scholarship grant won in competition at Harvard.

He returned, penniless, to begin his career in New York in November, 1929. "Can you imagine a more inauspicious time anyone could pick to go into business?" he said.

Neither the Great Depression nor occasional private ones through the years, however, could divert him from his conception of the good life. "The notion of 'security' never attracted me," he said. "Neither have I ever equated success with solvency. To me, security is a polite word for cowardly inertia.

"As for seeking after money, to me that would be an impoverished sort of existence."

Joseph Scarin, who keeps the Stone firm's books — a firm ranging in size from 100 to 200 architects depending on the work in progress — acknowledges with resignation the boss's impatience with finances.

"When I came here nine years ago Ed didn't even know whether he was in the red or the black. I'll say this, we were on awfully thin ice. It took three years to get us on solid footing."

By his own less prosaic standards of wealth, Edward Durell Stone's long life has been one heaped high with riches. He has tasted the cuisine of the world and viewed its wonders. He has sailed the Nile from Cairo to Thebes. He can describe the rhythmic repetition of Queen Hatsepsut's tomb even as he can the rhapsodic cadences of a Leonard Bernstein concert heard in the ruins of the Temple of Bacchus at Baalbek in Syria. He has seen the church of Santa Sophia in Istanbul at dawn and the Taj Mahal at sunset and has stood with a woman in a moonlit Greek temple at Agrigento, Italy, and listened to the midnight bells of the village tolling Christmas carols.

"I'm told the Greeks had no word for happiness," Stone said, rubbing his right thumb and forefinger. "Scholars inform us that the nearest thing those ancients found to happiness was working toward some worthwhile end. I say amen to that."

Of consuming interest to Edward Durell Stone is what he considers an urgent need today to uplift the human spirit.

He doesn't, for example, believe a building ought to be built unless it can provide, along with its functional needs, a sensation of exhilaration.

He feels that grace and beauty have fallen prey to ill-conceived notions of progress and thoughtless conceptions of modernity and left a world increasingly drab and juiceless.

"I'm not talking only about design. Creative home enterprises — the arts of sewing, cooking, conversation — have given way to standardized clothes, pre-packaged meals, television and bridge.

"And of course there's the automobile. The auto makers' concern about the problems of their creation ceases when the car leaves the factory. One manufacturer dared to suggest cutting down the trees along highways to make driving safer. Perhaps he could eliminate instead about four feet of vulgarity from his car and spend some effort creating destinations for motorists."

Edward Durell Stone is far from an impractical visionary; his buildings certify that. But he can't deny he's an incurable romantic. It's in his genes.

His boyhood, which he described as more on the order of Penrod's or Tom Sawyer's than of anyone who might inspire a Horatio Alger, was spent among the lotus eaters of Fayetteville, Ark.

His father was a rock-honest man and imparted to young Edward a sense of ethics, a deep respect for all life, and a personal candor, which have guided the architect's life and work.

Stone's guileless charm, his aristocratic manners, his meticulous attire, gold collar pin, breast-pocket handkerchief, suits tailored in Rome to his six-foot frame, not to mention his addiction to okra, harken back to Fayetteville. His use of his full, formal name, however, stems less from Southern affectation than simple need: "Who would hire an architect named Ed Stone?"

If Edward Durell Stone has a standout weakness, it is women.

"I think they're wonderful," he said. "Picasso died at 91 after three wives and 11 mistresses; that shouldn't be denied any man. I haven't kept track of mistresses — I'm talking foolishly, now — but I have had three wives, and I've learned not to underestimate the ability of a woman to inspire."

Stone and his first wife were married in 1930 and parted 20 years later as friends. He met his second wife in 1953 on a night flight from New York to Paris and proposed before the wheels touched down; they were married a year later in Beirut. When they ultimately parted he gave her a million dollars and, what the hell, a Silver Cloud Rolls Royce.

Violet, a stunning, vivacious brunette, he met when she joined the firm eight years ago as his secretary.

"I proposed to her in 1970 and pursued her relentlessly for two years," he said. "Finally, in June of 1972, I prevailed."

Stone's first two marriages produced four children, a daughter and three sons, of whom he is immensely proud. "They have made my life all the more full," he said.

Indeed, Stone said that his long full life has left him few goals unrealized. Appearing utterly at peace with himself, he reflected upon that as Chou served coffee, fresh strawberries, powdered sugar and cream.

"I have given no thought to dying. When that time ultimately comes I believe I'd like to be buried back in Fayetteville at the old home place, and, if those who make such decisions deem me worthy, they can carve on my headstone simply: 'Edward Durell Stone, architect.'"

'Surrogates program' is set up to defend Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has set up a special "surrogates program" to defend President Nixon and counter what it views as unbalanced media coverage and an organized effort to promote impeachment.

As in the 1972 re-election campaign, Nixon's personal appearances are being supplemented by members of his personal and official families through speeches, interviews and appearances on television talk shows.

Directing the effort is Kenneth W. Clawson, the administration's deputy director of communications whose rise in the White House heirarchy was signaled by the recent assignment of an official limousine for his daily use.

As part of the program, key cabinet-level officials were sent a private White House memo, dated Nov. 5, that presumably reflects the thinking of the President and his close associates. After calling attention to attached clippings from newspapers and from Nixon's daily news digest, the memo stated:

"—There is an organized effort to manufacture public sentiment for impeachment.

"—There are numerous examples of unabalanced media coverage available.

"—Statements of support by high-level officials is news (the latter two words were underlined) and is essential at this time to help the public get a reasonably balanced presentation."

The memo was initialed by John Guthrie, a staff assistant to Nixon. However, Clawson said in an interview that the document was prepared at his direction as part of what he termed the surrogates program.

Clawson said his office, in addition to lining up surrogates and finding public outlets for them, has been active in preparing fact sheets, talking points and other materials for their use in speeches and interviews.

Asked to list the most active surrogates, Clawson cited Julie Nixon Eisenhower and her husband, David; presidential counselors Anne Armstrong and Melvin R. Laird; special assistants John A. Love and Stenley S. Scott; deputy special assistant John McLaughlin; Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent; Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan; Republican national chairman George Bush, and Caspar Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare.

Scott is the highest-ranking black at the White House, McLaughlin a speechwriter and Jesuit priest.

Clawson also cited Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, on the basis of five filmed television interviews earlier this week. Clawson himself has made two recent appearances on British television.

Presidential counselor Bryce N. Harlow also was listed, for holding a series of not-for-quotation background sessions with reporters.

By LORAL GRAHAM

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A boom in the Brazilian school of so-called "Primitive" art is sending prices skyrocketing. Visiting gringos and upper-crust citizens of this South American country who like to see their names in local newspaper society columns are shelling out hundreds of dollars for simple watercolors of street scenes and seascapes and montages of birds and flowers.

The big question: Is it authentic or merely a ripoff?

Critics here are skeptical. Some of the new artists actually are humble men and women who started out as unskilled workers and were inspired to become artists. Others frankly admit they grind out "primitive" pieces because they know the market for them is hot now.

U.S. banker David Rockefeller recently visited Brazil and paid $120 for a montage by local artist Nelson dos Santos, who said he bought the materials for his creation in dime stores and junk shops for around $15.

Santos, 48, started out as a watchman at Rio's Museum of Modern Art. "I didn't know anything about art before I got this job," he declared. But now he harbors dreams of becoming an international figure in the art world. The U.S. Consulate-General and the American Chamber of Commerce in Rio recently sponsored an exposition of Santos' work.

Pedro Paulo da Conceicao, 30, was earning around $50 a month as a freelance house cleaner until he discovered "primitive" art a couple of years ago. He now makes $400 a month selling paintings at a Sunday "Hippie Fair" in Rio's chic Ipanema neighborhood.

"I can knock off about 15 paintings a day," Conceicao said. "I stick to solid colors, because it's easier and faster."

Arnaldo Carvalho de Morais, 23, dropped out of school at an early age and spent most of his young life trying to scrape up enough to live on, through carpentry and other odd jobs. Now he is much better off, selling paintings at the "Hippie Fair" to American tourists and rich Brazilians.

Morais specializes in colorful, traditional scenes from the northeastern state of Bahia: sugarcane fields, steep cobblestone streets leading to old churches, and Negro women cooking native dishes on the sidewalks. He has never been to Bahia.

Evandro Norbim, a 39-year-old electrical engineer, also has cashed in on the "primitive art" boom, but with a variation. When he gets tired, he hands the paint and brushes to his wife, Ana Esther, who grinds out colorful street scenes in the same stereotyped style.

The Norbims currently gross around $1,700 a month — in a country where the average person income is $500 a year. Most of their customers are Americans.

These painters represent what William Moore, an American art critic living in Brazil, calls "consumer art." "Brazilian primitive art is a function of tourism," he says. "Tourists who come to Brazil are attracted to primitive works, because what they really want is a souvenir. They don't get genuine art."

"Primitive painters use the same tired subjects over and over again: macumba (a Brazilian voodoo cult), black women in traditional costumes, fishermen, street scenes. If they ever left that rigid style, they would lose their market," Moore added.

Few Brazilian art critics take the so-called "primitive school" seriously. Despite the fact that more and more "primitive" works are turning up at fancy galleries here, noted critic Walmir Ayala writes that of the 600 new art expositions a year in Rio, "maybe 50 are worthwhile."

Energy uncertainty chills Wall Street

The surfacing of the nation's immediate energy worries within the past three weeks has been accompanied by one of the sharpest drops in stock market prices in recent memory. Since Oct. 29, the paper value of all stocks held has dropped an estimated $100 billion, based on declines in the popular market indexes of between 9 and 12 per cent.

"I've seen no times that quite compare with this," said Lucien Hooper, a market analyst with W. E. Hutton & Co. who has spent 54 years on Wall Street.

Investment counselors almost unanimously attribute the sell-off to energy uncertainties. They say investors are frightened by the suggestion that a lack of energy supplies might deal a severe blow to economic activity and growth next year and possibly beyond.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, probably the best known market average, has fallen more than 110 points, or close to 12 per cent, since Oct. 29. It closed Thursday at 874.55, less than 25 points above the low it reached in August after an eight-month bear market. All but wiped out are the gains scored in an impressive rally in September and October.

Analysts are divided whether the market has yet hit bottom and discounted the worst of all foreseen energy problems. David Wendall of David L. Babson Associates in Boston said he viewed the current situation as a buying opportunity, even though he felt the magnitude of the energy crisis was being underestimated.

"Without Arab oil we have a potential fuel gap of 25 to 30 per cent next year, and perhaps 50 per cent along the East Coast," Wendall warned.

Remember how crowded our stores are the final two or three weeks before Christmas?

Now imagine how impossibly jammed they would be if no one did his Christmas shopping early. Imagine how difficult it would be to select that gift for a far-off friend and get it mailed on time.

People sometimes wonder why Thompson Hills merchants start Christmas shopping promotions before Thanksgiving. But suppose they didn't? It would not only pose many problems for them but for YOU, the customer.

Any business has a responsibility to all its customers. Many people prefer to do their Christmas shopping in the pre-Thanksgiving period when stores aren't quite so crowded.

What if all Christmas shopping was postponed until after Thanksgiving? An impossible problem would be created because most stores even now are strained to capacity to provide the type of service you've come to expect, even during the peak of the season.

Early Christmas shopping promotions also make it easier for us to stock and display the goods we need, and also easier for our employees, who would be even busier during the peak season than they are traditionally.

The reason we start Christmas before Thanksgiving can really be summed up in two words — "PUBLIC SERVICE" — the kind you've come to expect from progressive stores.

This hungry world — Part I

The enemy is winning in the big food battle

By Tom Tiede

EAST LANSING, Mich. — It has always been difficult for most Americans to imagine hunger. The cornucopia has been more than legend in the United States, and this Thanksgiving again, despite grumbling over increased costs, food remains a virtual right for our citizens.

Yet for much of the rest of the world, dreadfully less fortunate, starvation continues to be a primary enemy.

Even now, while the garbage cans of America overfill with waste, the famine in sub-Sahara Africa is turning entire tribes of humans into sick, discolored, terrified zombies.

And though the Africans are the most immediately visible victims of nuclear age hunger, there are millions of others elsewhere who are starving more slowly. In fact many authorities agree that perhaps half the people in the world are living in "semi-starvation."

Georg Borgstrom, food science professor at Michigan State University, and one of the most persuasively pessimistic food authorities in the world, says bluntly: "There are 1200 million well-nourished or adequately nourished people on the globe. Then there are the rest — 2500 million who are underfed or malnourished. We have a severely hungry planet."

Of course, people have been trying to get the message across for many years. Thomas Malthus, an English economist, warned in the 1800s that food supplies could not keep pace with population increases. But his theories received widespread disapproval.

Even today, as food production fizzles and world population booms, Malthusian pessimism is kept at bay by a general feeling that God (or something) will provide. "People," says Borgstrom, "are still convinced that some great technological trick will solve the problem." The survival of billions is based on the assumption that miracle rice, aquaculture, chemical substitutions and fascinations yet unknown will ultimately and assuredly prevail.

And though the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization admits that last year's world food production dropped three per cent, though it agrees current harvests are the most gloomy since the reconstruction years following World War II, the international body believes that the agriculture potential is great enough to feed 40 times — 157 billion people — the present world population.

One optimist is Nobel Peace Prize winner Dr. Norman Borlaug. He believes that if man believes, then "something can be done." He says the Green Revolution in India nearly doubled its wheat harvest from 1965 to 1970. Science-aided production in Pakistan, before that nation's civil war, did the same. "In India or Pakistan one can see a gleam in the eye of people. Even in the back villages there's hope." The most important fertilizer, Borlaug adds, "is the will to win."

Unfortunately, even Borlaug concedes man's will to win may be facing defeat on the battlefield of population growth.

Currently, world population is growing at the rate of 70 million people a year. The globe increases by 200,000 people a day, or a population the size of the United States every third year. The planet will grow by nearly 1 billion people this decade. Dreary predictions estimate 12 billion souls on earth in the next half century.

Can we feed 12 billion? Can we feed the FAO's figure of 157 billion? MSU's Borgstrom says we can't even feed the present legions and insists six-to-seven billion is absolute tops.

For one thing, there are limits to the land. Half the world's farmable land of about 7.9 billion acres is already under cultivation. Claiming more will be expensive — perhaps as much as $5,000 an acre, says Borgstrom. Besides, it may be dangerous. Borgstrom says the world has already cut too much of its forests. There has been critical destruction of vital watersheds and ecosystems. As a result, he says, "the world deserts have grown five times in size."

Besides the finite land, there is the finite water. It takes 110 gallons of water to produce one breakfast egg, about 3500 gallons to grow one day's food for one American. World irrigation has grown four-fold since the 1800s and expects to double again by the end of this century. But it is approaching its limit.

And so the situation — if Borgstrom and other pessimists are correct — is virtually catastrophic.

Besides the people that must be fed, so too must all the cattle, pets and other domestic animals. Borgstrom calculates that if the world's domestic animals are added to the food supply equation, the planet is already populated by more than 17 billion people-equivalents.

To feed this horde just in the next three decades the world must grow more crops than in the 10,000 years since agriculture began, according to food expert Lester Brown.

Is it possible? No, say the pessimists, unless world priorities are immediately and enthusiastically revalued.

Says Borgstrom: "The developed nations now spend more money on armaments than the underdeveloped countries do on food." So the Haves, for one thing, must begin to share substantially with the Have-Nots. (America, whose citizens eat four times that of the cereal dominant peoples of the world, is one of 15 or 16 nations rich enough to help others, yet its per-capita assistance to the hungry world ranks toward the bottom of this affluent list).

Above all, people must begin to appreciate the risks to their survival. Even in America. True, the bounty is still at hand here, and there is no extreme worry for the U.S. in the immediate future. But attitude, says Borgstrom, is critical: "If you ask a child in this country where potatoes come from he'll probably answer the supermarket." By next Thanksgiving a different, more realistic assessment should be implanted if the nation is to help the world stave off nutritional disintegration.

Patience, hope a must for families in Israel

By Macabee Dean

TEL AVIV — For many in Israel today, the smoke-filled basement room at 68 Ibn Gavirol St. in Tel Aviv is the saddest of places. It is happy for only a few.

To this room, from all over Israel, come the distraught, to see if they can recognize the picture of their boy friend, husband or son who has been reported "missing in action" by the Israel Defense Forces.

Others who have not received such notification also come, for they may not have heard from their loved ones since the beginning of the latest Arab-Israeli war. Why the terrible silence?

Some come to 68 Ibn Gavirol St. even though their loved one has been reported dead. Perhaps a mistake has been made. Everybody makes a mistake, especially in the heat of battle.

They hope that their beloved is still alive and they will see his picture among the POWs. There are definitely more pictures of POWs than there are names officially released by the Arab nations. Egypt has released only a few short lists and Syria has released none at all.

The solemn audience sits on hard chairs as pictures are flashed on a screen. First are movies of individuals and groups imported from foreign news agencies; then reproductions made from Jordan's TV screens, then reproductions from various Arabic newspapers and magazines.

Many of the pictures are fuzzy, for the photographers often are not interested in giving sharp "mug shots" but in giving an overall impression of the POWs. Photos of the Israeli POWs often show them dejected, hanging their heads, thus also hindering identification.

It takes about an hour to show all of the pictures — not because there are so many, but because of the interruptions.

A mother jumps up from her chair and runs to the screen, blocking others from seeing.

Somebody tells her to move aside, and she does, demanding, "Show it again, show it again." The film is run backward, then forward. She studies the picture intently as flashes by. "Please, please, run it again." She studies it.

Then a quiet walk back to her seat. She sobs quietly and those nearby comfort her: "Patience, patience, hope, hope."

The projector shows other faces. A pregnant young wife suddenly screams in the dark: "It's Yitzhak. He's alive. He's alive." She screams and laughs hysterically. Her brother tries to calm her.

At her request a photographer runs up and photographs the screen. It will be a bad picture, but a picture nevertheless. A picture a wife can show to her unborn child in the years to come. It may be years before she sees her husband again.

The Egyptians have said they will charge some of the Israelis as "war criminals." The Syrians in the past have kept Israelis POWs under such intolerable conditions that they return home in need of prolonged psychiatric help, often to no avail.

The show goes on.

After the films from abroad, clips taken from Jordanian TV are shown, then newspaper clippings. If a person asks, he is given a copy of a clipping to take home to study quietly with family members.

The show is over.

The soldier in charge announces that new pictures are constantly being obtained. Come back in a few days. "We will now show the same pictures, the identical pictures, again."

But half of the audience of about 100 remains seated. They want to see these pictures again.

Perhaps the second time some of the fuzziness may disappear, or they might catch a typical gesture, and at last the blurred outline will become clear in their hearts, if not their eyes. Then they will know that their "soldier" is alive and may someday return.

Miss Weber, Michael Riley wed

(Democrat-Capital Service)

ST. LOUIS — Brass altar candelabra holding white tapers and chancel flowers of yellow and white roses and spider mums accented the altar at Ascension Lutheran Church here for the wedding of Miss Diane Beth Weber and Michael George Riley.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Fred H. Weber, St. Louis, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Riley, 3004 Southwest Blvd., Sedalia.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, David Bunn, the bride wore a funnel neck gown of sheer organza adorned with individual seed pearls and poutage lace and designed in an empire. A line, full length style with detachable train. The delicate waist-length veil of silk illusion was accented with a headpiece of seed pearls and crystal crescents. The bridal bouquet was clustered with 10 cymbidium orchids of off white and sprigs of stephantotis, outlined with varigated greenery.

Best man was Michael Severide, brother-in-law of the groom, and Alex Pavlenko, brother-in-law of the bride, was groomsman. Serving as ushers and candlelighters were Danial Goosen and Kyle Toms.

After a honeymoon in an undisclosed location, the couple will be at home in St. Louis County. The groom is a marketing representative for Best Foods and the bride is an environmental education resource teacher at Parkway School District here.

A rehearsal dinner was held Nov. 2 at Sunset 44 Restaurant, St. Louis County, by the groom's parents.

Furnishings stress versatility

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

An American look of simplicity, versatility and utility is apparent in this year's crop of product design awards announced by the Resources Council, the association which covers all segments of the home furnishings industry.

Ecology and wildlife enthusiasm continue with animal prints and make-believe furry looks.

For example, one handsome rug provides an appearance of a fur floor covering by means of the interplay of light over its plush surface of self tones. And designers Schule and McCarville have given some clumsy creatures — elephants, rhinoceros and other wildlife — animal cracker whimsy on one fabric that has a matching wallprint.

In some designs bigness is better, but it is equated with sensitive treatment. Dramatic over-sized lotus blossoms and leaves express subtle daintiness for all their size in a three-panel mural by Helen Watkins.

Elegance is stressed also in a stainless steel dining table with floating marble top designed by Kibrel Terry, and a chrome-finished indoor-outdoor folding chair by Ken Millette. A flooring that seems to convey the same message for all its sophistication is a bronze (copper alloy) in squares with a tri-stripe basket weave of stainless steel strips designed by Herbert Bright.

Good taste goes to the bedroom, too, down on the farm or on Fifth Avenue with some calico denim sheets and pillowcases designed by Mary Gordon. Ditto the crewel embroidery designed by Margaret Nelson which won an award in the traditional fabrics category, but would be just as at home in a contempory atmosphere in this era of needlework.

Ceramic dinnerware that goes from freezer to oven to table is as American as the working wife tradition. In an impressionistic daisy pattern by the design staff of Lenox, it is handsome, too.

Award winners

Learning carpet

Chosen for a special award by the Resource Council was a carpet with graphic patterns and symbols intended to provide greater scope for instructional techniques in elementary schools. (AP)

Another rugged effect is achieved in a striking wall covering, a heavy wool yarn-like treatment with its irregular bumps and slubs designed to run vertically by Michael Babatts. And an architectural two-color ceramic wall tile by William Groff has a hand-finished look.

Other awards were for a bathtub on legs, a towel and rug coordinate by Maria Creamer, and an all-over small geometric wallpaper by Dan Hawkins. Another paper was a small check interspersed with pansies.

Pregnant women should know facts

When you are expecting a baby, there are important facts you should know about cribs, smoking, and cats. Here, for the pregnant woman, is a fact sheet.

CRIBS: If you are considering buying a crib, make sure its slats are spaced no more than 2⅜ inches apart. If they are farther apart, the baby's body (not its head, of course) may slip through and lead to injury or strangulation, the Food and Drug Administration says. It also advises that you make sure your crib mattress is large enough to fit the crib frame, so the child can't suffocate by slipping into the small space between the mattress and the side of the crib. Finally, check to see that the locks on the drop sides of the crib are good sturdy ones that won't collapse easily and injure or frighten the infant.

SMOKING: The U.S. Public Health Service claims that if you don't know by now, you should: smoking may be hazardous to an unborn child's health. In a report released earlier this year, it said that many studies of human populations (as well as animals) have shown "a strong, probably causal association between cigarette smoking and higher late fetal and infant mortality rates..." However, if a woman gives up smoking by the fourth month of her pregnancy, the risks to her appear to vanish.

CATS: Toxoplasmosis, a parasitic infection that thrives in raw meat and cat feces, may cause birth defects if contracted during pregnancy. Two precautions you can take against getting it, according to the National Foundation-March of Dimes, are to make sure all meat you eat is heated to 140 degrees throughout (don't order the rarest steaks, for example); and while you don't need to get rid of your cat, it's a good idea not to empty his or her litter pan yourself.

Engagements are annouced

The engagement of Miss Alice Marie Jeffries and Ted William Cecil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cecil, 1316 South Stewart, is announced by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Donald Jeffries, 3600 South Grand.

A spring wedding is planned.

PALMYRA, Mo. — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Logan, Palmyra, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Janis Logan, to Timothy E. Shrout, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert E. Shrout, Bunceton.

Miss Logan graduated cum laude with a bachelor of science degree in elementary education from the University of Missouri-Columbia in May. She will receive her masters degree in child development in August, 1974, and is a teaching assistant in the UM-C child development laboratory.

The groom-elect is a 1973 graduate of the University of Missouri-Columbia, where he received a bachelors degree in secondary education. He is employed with the Fulton Public Schools as a high school biology teacher and assistant varsity basketball coach.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I grieve for it (Watergate) as a citizen of this country, because it's not purely just one segment of the country that suffers. But grieved or not, my faith in the ultimate fabric of this country is as strong as ever." Lady Bird Johnson.

"Who knows what's going to happen in '74? Heavens, you don't know what you're going to read in the paper tomorrow, it's so staggering. I know he has no plans for any such thing at this point. But if anyone told me 20 years ago (when John Lindsay was a young Republican attorney) that I would have spent eight years as the wife of the mayor I'd have told them they're probably crazy." Mary Lindsay speaking about her husband John, outgoing mayor of New York.

"In the course of this war that was forced upon us, the Israel defense force broke through to the western side of the canal, where they represent a well-established military fact. However, it is not Israel's aim to remain there permanently. We are anxious for an end to the war and the promotion of the peace process." Prime Minister Golda Meir to parliament.

"We need an amendment which limits the range of inquiry on matters of credit to matters of credit. That is, to an individual's own ability and willingness to pay. Hormones, birth control and wedding rings are not matters of credit." Betty Furness, New York City Consumer Affairs Commissioner, in urging Congress to pass legislation outlawing certain credit practices.

"If you fail, the blame is laid to the star. If you succeed, the star shares success with the director and the producer. On the whole, I think I'd rather be the producer." Anne Douglas, wife of Actor Kirk Douglas, speaking about her involvement as a producer.

K.C. zoo biologist to speak to Sorosis

Mrs. Jan Armstrong, Kansas City Zoo biologist, will speak at 2 p.m. Wednesday to Sorosis at the Heard Memorial Club House.

A 1-year-old gibbon and a film on rearing zoo babies will be presented, along with her speech on the role of the zoo in the community.

Mrs. Armstrong works mostly with the babies in the zoo, though her title is Curator of Animal Health. She is the zoo's liaison with the veterinarian, keeps medical records, and is the sole administrator of medication prescribed by doctors.

Wife of the zoo director, Mrs. Armstrong also handles VIP tours and public relations for the zoo and hosts a weekly children's show, The Treehouse Lane, on Channel 41.

Mrs. Armstrong has no human babies, she says, but keeps eight zoo babies at their home on the zoo grounds: three orangutans, two African lynx, two gibbons and a 5-month-old sea lion, which "goes from one bathroom to the other."

Groom sings to bride in ceremony

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LINCOLN — The wedding of Miss Deborah Ann McCubbin and Lanny E. Smith, held Nov. 3 at First Baptist Church here, was highlighted by a song, written and sung by the groom to his bride, "I'll be There."

MRS. LANNY E. SMITH
Miss Deborah Ann McCubbin

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McCubbin, Lincoln, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Smith, Warsaw.

The afternoon ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dennis Watts. The altar was decorated with white candelabra with greenery and pink gladioli. Mrs. Fred Nevius was pianist and Miss Lannette Nevius was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white sheerganza and Chantilly lace with a demi-bouffant silhouette, high neckline and Camelot sleeves. Tiny pink rosebuds were embroidered at the neckline, cuffs and headpiece, which held her mantilla. She carried a white lace covered Bible, a gift from the groom, with attached cascade of pink and white carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Eddie Smith, sister-in-law of the groom, and Mrs. Mike Hansen, cousin of the bride, served as attendant. They wore floor length pink and white gingham gowns with empire waistlines, long sleeves, and accented with pink ribbon. They carried single white, pink-tipped mums encircled in white lace. Miss Kimberli Smith, niece of the groom, was flower girl in a floor length pink and white gingham gown with matching headpiece bow.

Best man was Eddie Smith, brother of the groom, and groomsman was Neil Breshears, while ushering and candlelighting duties were performed by Dennis McCubbin, brother of the bride, and Ivan Smith. Ringbearer was Eddie Smith Jr., nephew of the groom.

A reception followed in the church Fellowship Hall, where a three tiered square wedding cake with light pink trim was flanked with silver candelabra with pink tapers, and set on a white lace cloth over pink. Servers were Mrs. Lawrence Henry and Mrs. Wilma Neil, aunts of the bride, and Mrs. Neil Breshears. Miss Twila Smith, cousin of the groom, attended the guest book and Mrs. Mike Smith, cousin of the bride, Miss Patty Lawler and Miss Dawn Nevius assisted with gifts.

For departure on a wedding trip to southern Missouri and Arkansas, the bride wore a long brown double knit with beige lace and beige accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The couple will reside at 2210 South Ohio, Sedalia, where the groom is employed with Sedalia Computer Services Systems Inc. and is under contract with BeJay Recording Studios, Van Buren, Ark.

Quiet celebration

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hood quietly celebrated 67 years of marriage Nov. 11 at Rest Haven Nursing Home, where both are residents. Refreshments were shared with all residents of the nursing home. The couple was married Nov. 11, 1906, and has three sons, Irvin Hood, Ft. Meyers, Fla.; Harley Hood, St.Petersburg, Fla.; and Marvin Hood, Lake Lotawana, Lee's Summit.

African women design fabric

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Women welfare clients working in an old slum brewery are turning out some of the smartest fabrics in East Africa.

Knowledgeable Nairobi women flock to buy prints, tourists take them home, and export markets beckon. But British missionary managers are resisting pressures to transform Maridadi Fabrics from a community self-help industry into a big-business house of fashion.

That would destroy the purpose of the charity project, they say.

Maridadi Fabrics — the word means fashionable — was established six years ago by a handful of American wives at St. John's Anglican community center in Pumwani. The urban district is peopled largely by poor Moslem descendants of Africans who migrated from coastal regions when British colonizers built a railroad to Nairobi 75 years ago.

With American know-how and a British foundation grant, the idea was to train and employ prostitutes, widows and deserted mothers. It was a quick success.

When Maridadi grew out of its original classroom quarters, Nairobi City Council offered an abandoned brewery near a mosque. American volunteers gradually departed and the production line was Africanized, but St. John's British and Kenyan administrators retained over-all control.

Some 60 Pumwani women chosen from social workers' needy lists work at Maridadi today, with the help of a single Finnish volunteer, Immi Tiivola. They produce fabrics, a new line of ready-made dresses, table mats, cushions, neckties and sisal baskets, and earn up to 400 shillings — $56 — a month.

Maridadi products are sold in two chic Nairobi shops — up to 200 shillings for a dress — and have been exported in limited quantities to Scandinavia, the United States and Britain. They are boldly patterned and vividly colored, based on traditional African and Arab motifs reworked by freelance Kenyan designers.

With women taking time out to drink tea or warble an African song, there's little urgency about production. Cotton fabric is pinned on tables 10 yards long and printed with a hand screen, photographic stencil process. A design is transferred to a plastic stencil by means of a light-sensitive emulsion. The stencil is placed at regular intervals on the cloth. Dye is brushed across the stencil.

The dye sets for two weeks. Then the fabric is boiled in tubs over charcoal fires to get rid of excess dye. The finished product is hung outdoors with clothespins to dry.

St. John's community projects are supported by the profit Maridadi earns on a yearly budget of about $42,000. Demand is growing and Maridadi appears to have reached a takeoff point where an injection of capital and business techniques could result in a thriving industry.

"We could make and sell a lot more than we do," said Miss Tiivola, a 27-year-old blonde textile designer from Nuukio Punjo, near Helsinki.

"But Maridadi would have to be run on business lines. We need help with marketing, for one thing.

Scones embellished with strawberry jam

. . . with American touch

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Eitor

Scottish cuisine is famous for a quick bread called scones — a biscuit (usually tricornered) that tastes marvelous with a cup of hot tea. Quick breads are so called because the time needed to prepare them is short compared with yeast breads. Quick breads use baking powder or baking soda and cream of tartar for leavening instead of yeast. Some recipes for scones call for baking on a griddle, others call for baking in the oven.

Scones, like most quick breads, may be made with either a little shortening or a good deal. It's the latter sort we have for you today, and the result is a rich mealy biscuit that is so tender it almost crumbles at the touch. These scones look particularly tempting because they are embellished with strawberry jam — a non-traditional but attractive touch.

STRAWBERRY JAM SCONES
- 2 cups unsifted flour, fork-stir to aerate before measuring
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Sugar
- ½ cup butter
- ¼ cup currants, rinsed in hot water
- 1 egg
- ½ cup heavy cream
- 1 egg white, slightly beaten
- Strawberry jam

In a medium mixing bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. With a pastry blender, cut in butter until particles are fine. Stir in currants.

In a small mixing bowl, with a fork, beat egg and cream until blended; add to flour mixture and stir with a fork until dry ingredients are moistened. With hands, form dough into a ball and turn out on floured pastry cloth.

With a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out to an 8-inch round — it will be about ½ inch thick. Cut round into 4 quarters, then cut each quarter into 3 wedges. Place wedges about 1 inch apart on a greased cookie sheet.

Brush tops with egg white and sprinkle with sugar. With your thumb or a pointed teaspoon, make an indentation in the broad section of each scone, pressing a little more than ⅛ inch deep. If necessary, straighten sides of scones. Fill each indentation with ¼ teaspoon strawberry jam. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until lightly browned — about 15 minutes. Serve warm with extra strawberry jam. These scones are so rich that spreading them with butter is not necessary.

Makes 12.

Medical care, counsel are plentiful for mothers, babies

VIENNA (AP) — This city has 56 advisory centers for mothers offering counsel and medical care for their children under six.

The Vienna Press and Information Service reports that each center is visited by an average of 31 mothers per day and more than 100,000 children each year.

Special classes for expectant mothers are provided by the centers, and each new mother receives a free layette from the city.

Buying color TV: confusing, complicated

Shopping for a color television set today has become almost as complicated as buying a new car. While automatic systems offered in new color sets provide a better picture and more reliable performance, the technical terms describing this circuitry can be confusing.

By familiarizing yourself with just a few of the basic terms — solid-state circuitry, one-button tuning and in-line tubes — you'll be able to shop more wisely for your new set.

Solid-state circuitry is probably the single most important innovation in color television. It replaces the hybrid chassis — the collection of glass bulbs which function by glowing red and heat up both the television set and the room. Solid state uses reliable transistors instead of tubes to provide a wide range of benefits. Transistors produce less heat while operating, they don't burn out as tubes do, and they offer far greater resistance to physical shock. The solid state plug-in, plug-out modular circuits make for easy on-the-spot repairs.

Another new advance in color television technology is the in-line picture tube. Somewhat lighter in weight and shorter than earlier conventional tubes, the in-line picture tube eliminates at home dynamics convergence adjustment. Available in new 17" and 19" color sets, the tube utilizes fine vertical phosphor lines instead of conventional dots to give a truly clean, sharp color picture with improved performance and greater reliability.

The most up-to-date color television sets incorporate one-button tuning. This means that certain functions — brightness, contrast, color and tint — are pre-set but may be adjusted by the owner at home to suit personal taste or local signal conditions.

A brief understanding of all of these important developments can serve as a guide when you are shopping for a color television. In fact, if you mention a few key technical terms to a TV salesman, he's likely to treat you as an expert rather than a person who can be talked into buying an out-dated color TV. To get the best buy in a color TV set, select a brand that incorporates all of the latest technical developments, then let picture tube size and cabinetry dictate your final choice.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT
The Sedalia Capital

Published at Sedalia, Missouri, by The Sedalia Democrat Company

Municipal Building dedication is today

A new Municipal Building for Sedalia, the subject of a lot of talk over the past years but no action, is now a reality. It will be formally dedicated at 2 p.m. today.

Actually, the city's business has been conducted in the new building since early July when offices were moved from the old city hall, which has now been razed only one year short of what would have been its centennial.

It was Sept. 14, 1971, that Sedalians voted for a new Municipal Building by approving a $600,000 bond issue to be retired over a 10-year period from anticipated revenues from the city sales tax. The total cost of the building is about $750,000, with the balance being paid from sales tax revenue already on hand.

(As a note of passing interest, it was exactly 40 years ago that the City Council heard a cost estimate on building a new city hall—$110,000. That proposal, like several before and since, never got off the ground.)

To those who were acquainted with the old city hall, the gleaming building to be dedicated today literally stands a century apart from its predecessor. It's spacious, airy, well-lighted interior, functional design and landscaped mall combine to make the Municipal Building a community asset in which we can all take pride.

A time capsule will be imbedded in the new building today for the edification of posterity. We hope it weathers the years better than the one placed in the then-new city hall 99 years ago, which, mysteriously enough, is not to be found.

The Muncipal Building of the City of Sedalia must be seen firsthand to be appreciated. Citizens who are proud of the structure and would like to inspect one of the most tangible benefits from the city sales tax should participate in the dedication ceremonies this afternoon.

Love, Shultz split on energy remedies

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — An angry blow-up between Treasury Secretary George Shultz and energy czar John Love has resulted in cutting off the Treasury's superb energy staff from oil policymaking.

The Treasury experts had nettled the White House by issuing dire warnings about the oil shortage and calling for drastic measures that President Nixon didn't want to take. When the warnings turned out to be all too accurate, it seemed only to infuriate the White House more.

The Treasury experts are now warning that a prolonged Arab oil boycott will cause economic disruptions, which could plunge the country into a severe recession. Only unpopular controls, including gasoline rationing, can alleviate the downslide, they insist.

But this isn't what the embattled Nixon wants to hear. The showdown came over a Treasury statement on Oct. 15, calling for energy conservation. The White House felt it was worded in a way that would antagonize the Arabs at a time of delicate negotiations.

At the showdown meeting, Love fussed and fretted over the Treasury statement. "You can't do this," he snorted and he demanded that all energy statements be channeled through him. Agreeing, White House aides directed Shultz to clear all energy statements, hereafter, with Love.

Shultz angrily snapped at Love that he was "absolutely incompetent" and swore that the Treasury would no longer work with him.

This has led to a breakdown in relations between the two staffs. Shultz's chief energy expert, William Simon, and Love's chief of staff, Charles DiBona, will hardly speak to one another.

The feud is hurting the vital planning for the energy crisis. As one source told us bitterly: "What has happened to our policy on energy is that it is run by one too arrogant to listen (meaning DiBona) and another too dense to understand (meaning Love)."

FOOTNOTE: A spokesman for Love said he is struggling with a big problem and small staff to find the best solutions. Love is a mild-mannered man who doesn't blow up, said the spokesman. A spokesman for Shultz disclaimed any knowledge of the blow-up but acknowledged that Treasury "is keeping its nose out of the oil problem." He said Shultz is opposed to gasoline rationing except as a "last resort."

CALLOUS CONSULATE: American families have complained to the Senate that U.S. diplomats in Chile timidly stood by while their loved ones were murdered by the military dictatorship.

Copies in our hands of the private statements given to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee charge that the U.S. embassy in Santiago ignored the disappearance and abuse of American citizens in order not to ruffle the epaulettes of the new Chilean junta.

For example, Mrs. Charles Horman, in a moving statement, described how she was given the runaround while the junta was murdering her American filmmaker husband. Charles Horman, a Ph. D. from Harvard, was dragged out of his home in Santiago.

His distraught wife had a friend notify the U.S. consulate that Charles was missing; another friend reported it on his own. Though it was common knowledge that the military was hustling prisoners into the National Stadium, the consulate contented itself that day with a call to police headquarters and a few calls to various precincts.

When Mrs. Horman kept pressing the consulate, she was questioned about her husband's background. At one point, according to a friend's sworn statement, the consulate's rudeness drove her off "in tears and near hysteria."

Horman's alarmed father, Edmund, flew to Santiago and met with U.S. Ambassador Nathaniel Davis, Consul Frederick Purdy and others. The embassy tried to convince the Hormans that Charles was "in hiding." Not until a month later was his bullet-riddled body produced by the junta.

The statements of the two surviving Hormans charge the embassy with "negligence, inaction and failure." Mrs. Horman declares bluntly she believes "rapid, forceful action" by the consulate and embassy "could have saved Charles' life."

She claims the embassy was more interested in "possible damage to our relationship with this new Chilean government" than in whether the new government murdered American citizens.

Similar charges of neglect were made by the father of Frank Teruggi, an economics student, whose body was identified days before his family was told he had been slain.

Art Buchwald

The Walter Cronkite conspiracy

WASHINGTON — The people who work in the White House are convinced that there is a concerted conspiracy by the media to get Richard Nixon. Until now it has just been conjecture that this conspiracy was well organized and financed by the press and TV networks. But it was hard to prove.

Buchwald

The big break for the White House came last week when Eberhardt Shroeder, a reporter with the Daily Gemstone, was arrested for not revealing his sources in a piece he did on the improvements on King Timahoe's doghouse in San Clemente. Rather than go to jail Eberhardt agreed to turn state's evidence and reveal the truth about the media organization which has pledged itself to get the President.

EBERHADT: Walter Cronkite. Every newspaperman and TV reporter and commentator reports to him.

D.A.: How does the conspiracy operate?

EBERHARDT: There are Cells all over the country. There is the White House Press Corps Cell, the Camp David Cell, the Key Biscayne Cell and the San Clemente Cell. Cronkite's orders are dispatched to us every morning by telex. He might assign Joe Alsop to call for Nixon's resignation, or he might order Tom Wicker to do a favorable piece on Archibald Cox, or he could order Bill Buckley to write a column on the President's lack of credibility.

D.A.: Cronkite does this all alone?

EBERHARDT: No, he has a staff. John Chancellor and Howard K. Smith are in charge of plotting against Nixon for television. Hugh Sidey of Time magazine handles all periodicals. Evans and Novak pass on assignments to the columnists. And there is a special Cell of editorial writers from the Washington Post, New York Times and Detroit Daily News who make sure the anti-Nixon line is adhered to in editorials.

D.A.: Who puts up the money for the conspiracy?

EBERHARDT: Walter Cronkite pays for most of it out of his own pocket. Our newspapers and television stations might chip in if we have to fly to Key Biscayne and get the goods on Bebe Rebozo, or to L.A. to find out what gives at San Clemente. We also get financing from the Ford Foundation, the Brookings Institute and Masters and Johnson.

D.A.: How did you use Watergate to embarrass Nixon?

EBERHARDT: We made the whole thing up. There is no James McCord, Jeb Magruder, John Mitchell, Maurice Stans or G. Gordon Liddy. We concocted the whole thing.

D.A.: Including the resignation of Spiro Agnew?

EBERHARDT: Yup. We take full credit for that one.

D.A: Why Agnew? He had nothing to do with Watergate.

EBERHARDT: I guess we just got carried away.

D.A.: What about the President's tapes?

EBERHARDT: We made that up, too. It really threw the White House for a loop. We didn't know they had any tapes at the time. But it turned out they did. When they revealed that some tapes were missing, they played right into our hands. It was quite a coup for us. Cronkite sent out a "well done" telegram to everyone.

D.A.: It's obvious you people are well organized.

EBERHARDT: We have to be if we're going to be members of the press — any breakdown in discipline and the White House could get the upper hand.

D.A.: Suppose a newspaperman or TV commentator won't play ball?

EBERHARDT: Cronkite puts out a contract on him. We bring in reporters from the Chicago newspapers and take the guy for a ride along the Potomac River. It's all very neat and clean.

D.A.: Well thank you very much. This documents what the White House has been saying all along.

EBERHARDT: Hey, what about me? Now that I've blown the whistle on the conspiracy my life isn't worth yesterday's Wall Street Journal.

EBERHARDT: Doing what?

America's Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is American,
The grateful Pilgrims knelt
Upon the ground of their new land
And told God how they felt.
They praised Him for the harvest,
Through the sunshine and the rain
Planted in spring and summer,
Had brought abundant grain.
And there were wild turkeys,
Ducks and geese and deer,
They felt that they should give thanks
For food this fruitful year.
Illness and death that had been great
Had somehow now decreased,
They made friends with the Indians
With whom they shared their feast.
The festival of giving thanks
For blessing that were theirs
That century were held many times
With feasts and grateful prayers,
And so thankful festivals
Over the nation spread
For religion, peace, a better life,
Family groups and friends break bread
And every President has proclaimed
Since 1863
The last Thursday in November
Thanksgiving Day shall be;
How very, very thankful
Was that first small Pilgram band
For the little bit they had then
In this new unsettled land,
But how thankful are we today
As this day we observe,
I wonder if God's given us
Much more than we deserve,
Are now we really thankful
For the good things the past year
And as we bow our heads in prayer
Are the words we speak sincere?
Do we have the faith we should
Or do we feel unrest?
Oh, God, hear now our honest praise
For gifts with which we're blest,
Let us today as we pray
Each cleanse our heart and mind
And as we love our creator
May we love, too, all mankind;
Oh, God, perhaps we falter
In the words we want to say,
But we, too, have faith the Pilgrims had
That first Thanksgiving Day,
We too, are very grateful
For the blessings from your hand,
We are thankful for abundance
In this beautiful, great land,
But too often we're forgetful
And we fuss and criticize,
That's when, dear God, you take a hand
And cut us down to size,
Not when we're like the Pilgrims,
Grateful for each thing you do,
But when we feel our own grand lives
Do not depend on you,
The problems that we face today
Are simply what we breed,
The waste of our plenty
To the excess of our need,
And so on this Thanksgiving
When all we do is grumble,
May we see ourselves as we are
And make our prayers more humble.

One of the enterprising newsboys sold a paper to a gentleman on the Pacific train yesterday morning. The train was just moving off when the sale was made. The gentleman dropped a dime to the boy, held out his hand for the change, and the the fun commenced. The boy hunted and hunted for a nickel, but he could not find one. He ran along the side of the train. The man swore and yelled, and the boy ran and hunted. It was no use. After the train had gone, the boy's left eyelid quivered in that particular manner which designates nobility of soul and the value of nickels.

'People power' hailed

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — John W. Gardner, Republican chairman of Common Cause, quoted an old Latin proverb in a recent speech before the Women's National Democratic Club: "Amphora sub veste numquam portatur honeste." To keep you from getting out your old Latin textbooks in case you do not wish to exercise your memory, it means: "No one carries a jug under his coat for an honest reason."

Common Cause is one of the most effective lobby groups on Capitol Hill. Gardner said that the best news for America is that it is beginning to exercise "people power." In talking about secrecy and the role of the media to the Democratic audience, he said, "The two ingredients that make possible the abuse of power in this country and block the search for responsive government are money and secrecy." He emphasized the scandalous capacity of money to buy political outcomes, and the very bad habit of doing the public business behind closed doors.

There have been too many jugs carried under too many coats, but with agencies like Common Cause a war has been declared on secrecy in government. Gardner said that "the greatest ally of a citizen in that battle is a free press, but even better than that — an unafraid press. In the Watergate scandal he said the press had been fair in reporting both sides of the story. "But there are issues imbedded in Watergate other than the issues of individual guilt or innocence. It is necessary to raise questions crucial to the future of our governmental system."

So that Watergate may never happen again, bills are pending in both the House and the Senate to establish the office of special prosecutor with the understanding that he will be a judicial appointment and not under the control or direction of the President. At this moment however it appears the Congress is dragging its feet on these bills.

There are two important voices being heard in the Congress. One is that of venerated Sen. George Aiken (R-Vt.). In his remarks, the senator was quoted that "he mocked the very notion of a President of the United States prosecuting himself through the medium of a 'special prosecutor.'" He added emphatically that the House of Representatives should move quickly in voting for or against impeachment. "Either impeach the President or get off his back." Then Senator Aiken added that he expected no impeachment.

The other respected voice on the Hill is that of Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. At home in Arkansas, Mills has been listening to his colleagues and constitutents. He indicated that a bill of impeachment may be reported to the House by the Judiciary Committee. The House may vote for such a bill with a very narrow margin. If this happens, then the President will expose the country and himself to the disagreeable long-time struggle of the impeachment process which would cause an even more divided and partisan Congress.

The White House is darker. It is all a part of the energy crisis, but it has been a gloomy place for a long time. It has even been called "a tomb."

One reason for the great success of Italy's Blue team is that they don't bid psychics and they seem to be able to take full advantage of the opportunities given them when an opponent bids a psychic against them.

The American South decided the time was ripe to try a psychic heart bid. Giorgio Belladonna, sitting West, passed to await developments and they came with delightful speed.

The American North jumped to three hearts. Walter Avarelli, sitting East, passed, as did South. Belladonna doubled and the rest passed.

Belladonna opened the king of diamonds and shifted to the five of hearts. South could have escaped for a loss of 800 by letting that trump ride toward his nine, but South went up with the ace and eventually was down 1100.

To make matters worse, East and West had no game. A spade lead would beat three notrump; almost any defense would beat a minor-suit game.

Tigers win squeaker

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Greg Cook said before the season opened, "We'll win eight games . . . that's the most anyone's won here in nearly 20 years."

A couple of days later, Cook asked that he not be quoted on that figure. "I may have been a little over-optimistic," he said.

As it turned out, Cook was nearly right the first time. His team wound up with seven victories — the most in a single season by a Sedalia Smith-Cotton football team since 1955.

"We lost three games this year . . . all were to three of the top teams in Missouri," Cook said in the locker-room Friday after his Tigers had held off Blue Springs, 7-6.

Smith-Cotton dropped decisions to Jefferson City Helias (20-0), Jefferson City (21-6) and Columbia Hickman (31-7). The combined regular-season record of those three teams this year was 29-2.

"Overall," Cook continued, "we were successful. We had a poor showing in the loss to Helias, but overall we were in every game we played, even the 31-7 loss to Hickman."

"I guess you could say we are as happy as one could be with a 7-3 record," he concluded.

For the most part, Friday's season finale was played between the two 30-yard line markers, with punting and defense sharing the spotlight.

Following a scoreless first period, the Tigers mounted one of their few sustained drives of the night in the second quarter, which later resulted in their lone touchdown.

Taking possession of the ball at their own 29, S-C put together a balanced attack, spiced with three key Blue Springs penalties that got them on the board.

Junior quarterback Rick McRoy went up top on the opening play of the series, hitting halfback Marvin Spruell on a 14-yard pass play. McRoy again went to the air on the next play, trying to hit split end Larry Miley. However, Jim Reynolds was called for interference, moving the ball into the Wildcats' territory at the 43.

That was followed by another Blue Springs' penalty, when the Wildcats were whistled for off sides.

Three plays and one penalty later, the Tigers were knocking on the door at the 17.

The only other scoring threat of the first half came with only :03 remaining, when Henningsen tried a 46-yard field goal. The kick was short, leaving the Tigers in command, 7-0.

Smith-Cotton missed a chance to salt the game away in the third quarter, when the Tigers drove to the Blue Springs' four, only to turn the ball over on downs.

Despite missing the chance, it looked like the Tigers were in enough control to hang on for the victory, especially after a Mark Williams punt with 4:50 to go buried the Wildcats on their own five.

However, Spruell was called for a personal foul, forcing the Tigers to punt again, this time from their own 43.

Junior quarterback Mike Solomon, who took over for Tim Ries early in the second quarter, when Ries suffered a dislocated hip on a punt return, rolled out looking for a receiver. Finding none, he carried for eight yeards to the Tigers' 18. Greg Irwin picked up the first down, going three yards on the next play.

Solomon went to the air and found Tim Shoff open at the five for another first and 10.

Brad Cloverdyke moved it to the four; Solomon followed with another pass that went incomplete.

On the next play, Solomon again found Shoff, who went in for the touchdown.

Gambling for a victory rather than a tie, the Wildcats elected to go for two on the conversion. Solomon called for a pass, but was rushed by the Tigers' defense and unloaded the ball too wuickly between Irwin and Reynolds, who still had their backs to the line of scrimmage.

Needless to say, the Tigers' coaching staff breathed a deep sign of relief, but not for long.

On the ensuing kickoff, the Wildcats fooled no one by calling an on-sides kick, with only 2:21 showing on the clock. But the call worked anyway.

But the Tigers' defense rose to the call and halted the drive, when Spruell intercepted a Solomon pass inside the 20.

McRoy ran out the clock, preserving the victory.

"I underestimated them," said Cook in his office after the game. "I shouldn't have, since they wound up in a tie for the championship in their league . . . they were a good football team, especially defensively."

The Wildcats' stunting linebackers neutralized the Smith-Cotton running game in the first half, holding the Bengals to only 58 yards rushing. "We couldn't pick them (linebackers) up," Cook added.

Cook was disappointed with the play of his own squad. "We made a lot of mistakes. It looked like we were playing early-season form . . . a team that makes as many mistakes as we did really doesn't deserve to win, but I'll take it (victory), any way I can get it."

The brightest spot possibly in the game was the Tigers' defense that held Blue Springs to only 77 net yards on the ground.

But even brighter is the possibility that the Tigers have finally turned their football fortunes around, after years of more than their share of sub-.500 records.

Minnesota, L.A. picked to continue winning way

NEW YORK (AP) — A few weeks ago, the Minnesota Vikings did a very nasty thing to Los Angeles. Now they're about to do the Rams a favor. And the Rams are about to do themselves a favor, too.

On Oct. 28, the Vikes beat the Rams 10-9, knocking Los Angeles from the unbeaten ranks. Since then, Minnesota's string of perfection has reached nine games—14 if you count the exhibitions.

It'll go to 10—or 15, if you wish—on Monday night when the Vikes, having already won the National Conference's Central Division title, invade Atlanta and whip the Falcons.

With its victory, Minnesota will also give Los Angeles a bit of breathing room atop the NFC West. The Rams, with a skinny one-game lead over the Falcons, will take a big gulp of air Sunday by belting San Francisco. So, when this weekend's action ends, the Rams'll own a two-game lead with four games to go.

Speaking of four games, that's how many your fearless football forecaster dropped last weekend. The 9-4 mark put the season record at 72-39-6 for a .649 percentage.

Vikings 20, Falcons 13 . . .

Atlanta's got a good, if somewhat erratic, defense. Minnesota's is better and steadier. On offense, the Falcons seem to have had their best success with the lightning plays, the game-breakers. Minnesota, which spends its time methodically grinding the enemy to bits, doesn't tolerate such nonsense. The Purple Gang will eat Bob Lee alive. By the way, this is the victory that makes the Vikes' perfect season a fait accompli.

Rams 37, 49ers 16 . . . .

No running game, a hot-and-cold passing game and a collapsable defense. That'll keep San Francisco from scoring many points and will give Los Angeles plenty of them. John Hadl won't exactly have a field day in the 49ers' secondary. Just a plain ol' picnic.

Dolphins 31, Bills 13 . . . .

O.J. Simpson can just about kiss Jim Brown's rushing record goodbye. Buffalo can just about kiss the American Conference's wild card playoff spot goodbye and Miami can kiss the AFC East Division flag hello.

Steelers 24, Broncos 14 . .

Pittsburgh is at home and that madhouse crowd is one very good reason why the Steelers have won 13 in a row there—and will make it 14 straight and close in on its second AFC Central flag. Then there's that Pittsburgh defense. Charley Johnson hasn't seen that kind of pressure in a long time.

Raiders 23, Browns 13 . . .

Cleveland's got a fine defense, but not one strong enough to fend off Oakland's varied attack all day. The Raiders, on the other hand, have what it takes to all but shut down the Browns. Cleveland's biggest threat is its running game—but that's what Oakland is best against. The Browns are headed out of playoff contention.

Saints 24, Chargers 17 . . .

The rest of the league is finally taking New Orleans seriously. And the Saints, dreamers that they are, are taking the playoff possibilities seriously. The disorganized San Diegans will help keep those hopes alive for one more week anyway.

Chiefs 26, Oilers 10 . . . .

Houston is closing in quickly on another No. 1 draft pick. Kansas City's defense is closing in on everything that moves. And Mike Livingston and Ed Podolak are moving the Chiefs.

Cowboys 34, Eagles 28 . . .

Roman Gabriel will have another great day for Philadelphia. The problem is, his defense will let him down again. Whatever it was that happened to Dallas in Philly, when the Eagles won, won't happen again this time.

Redskins 28, Colts 13 . . .

Washington needs a victory to at least keep pace with the Cowboys. Baltimore needs a defense and an offense. Neither Sonny Jurgensen nor Billy Kilmer is really leading the Redskins. But then, even a leaderless team could tame the Colts.

Bengals 24, Jets 13 . . . .

Will Joe Namath call New York's signals once again? That would be nice—but that won't be enough. The Jets just don't have the manpower to overcome the brutal Bengals. And Cincinnati will take advantage of New York's mistake-prone secondary to get closer to a playoff spot.

Giants 28, Cards 24 . . . .

Welcome back to respectability, New York. The Giants in general, and quarterback Randy Johnson in particular, should erupt against St. Louis. The only question is, can New York's defense get it together enough to stifle St. Louis. Because the Cards are hurting, the guess is yes.

Lions 21, Bears 17 . . . .

This season is shot for both teams. The only thing they're playing for now is pride. They've both got plenty of that, too. But Detroit has the running game, too, to bolster theirs.

Packers 28, Patriots 13 . .

If Green Bay's ever gonna really break loose on the ground this season, it's gonna be now. New England simply rolls out the welcome mat for rushers. And Green Bay is still capable of swarming in on quarterbacks. Jim Plunkett, say hello to half a ton of Packers.

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"There's UCLA in one world—and then the rest of college basketball below them," says one coach.

That may be overstating the case, but the Bruins truly have been worlds ahead of everyone else in recent years.

Practically the same team that won last year's NCAA championship, including Bill Walton, will be back to face the nation in 1974.

Walton dominated everything and everybody in college basketball in 1973. The Bruins' "Big Red Machine" scored 44 points in an overpowering performance against Memphis State in the NCAA finals.

Not incidentally, the 87-66 triumph gave UCLA its seventh straight NCAA crown and ninth in 10 years.

Coach John Wooden broke precedent and admitted that, yes, it was his finest team ever. That's a tall order for the rest of the country's basketball teams.

The opposition includes North Carolina State, No. 2 last season, Maryland, San Francisco and Notre Dame (twice).

The Game of theYear will be played between UCLA and North Carolina State in St. Louis Dec. 15.

Like UCLA last year, North Carolina State went undefeated and won a league title (the Atlantic Coast Conference). But unlike the longtime Pacific-8 champs, the Wolfpack didn't go anywhere last season because they were suspended for recruiting violations.

This year, the suspension's off and the sky's the limit for North Carolina State.

"I'm glad the game was arranged," says Coach Norm Sloan. But he's not any happier than his players, who believe — if few else do — that they can beat the mighty Bruins.

David Thompson, one of the best forwards in the country, and Tom Burleson, one of the better centers, will be UCLA's most formidable opponents in 1974.

If David and Goliath can't sling shots past the 6-11 Walton, then Maryland's Tom McMilien and Len Elmore will try. UCLA has drawn both ACC teams this season while each is on the rise.

Notre Dame is no soft touch, either. The Fighting Irish, with five starters including John Shumate, jelled into a powerful unit in the second half last season.

Still, anyone who figures on anyone else but UCLA to win the NCCA title in March is stretching a point.

There are some teams to watch, though.

Southern Cal's Trojans have their entire National Invitation Tournament team together again for another crack at UCLA. Oregon, also, might be trouble in the Pac-8.

San Francisco, led by Kevin Restani and Phil Smith, is the class of the West Coast Athletic Conference. Ditto for Long Beach State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

Arizona State and Arizona rule as co-favorites in the Western Athletic Conference with each returning key perfors. Weber State seeks its seventh straight Big Sky title — and figures to get it.

Texas Tech is an odds-on favorite to repeat in the Southwest Conference. Louisville looks like the class of the Missouri Valley Conference. In the Big Eight, Knsas State's as good as anyone.

NFL investigates drugs

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League may be beginning a serious crackdown on the use of drugs by players following the claim by Washington Redskins' center George Burman that one-third of his teammates get themselves "up" before games with amphetamines.

Bernie Jackson, one of the NFL's top security agents, met for 90 minutes with Burman and Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, Friday at the NFLPA's Washington headquarters. Dr. Walter Riker, the NFL's recently appointed special medical consultant, also attended.

"The meeting with George was called at my insistence," said Jackson, a lawyer and former New York City policeman. "We looked into all aspects of his disclosures."

Burman, 30, the Redskins' center and a 10-year NFL veteran, said last Tuesday he believed his one-third figure also applied to the other 25 teams in the league.

Barber scores biggest victory

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Veteran Miller Barber turned back the bid of rookie Ben Crenshaw with some conservative golf and won the game's biggest prize—$100,000—with a victory in the World Open Saturday.

The 42-year-old Barber moved past faltering Tom Watson, who had led through the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds, with a two-under-par 69 and clinched the title when the challenging Crenshaw drove into the woods on the 16th hole.

Barber finished this two-week, 144-hole tournament with a total of 570, two over par on the 7,007-yard, No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

It was the first winning score over-par since Gary Player took the 1972 PGA National Championship.

Crenshaw, a 21-year-old who won the San Antonio-Texas Open two weeks ago, threatened the leader until he bogeyed the 504-yard, par-five 16th in the cool, breezy weather. He finished with a 71 and was second at 573, three strokes back.

It was small consolation for the intense young man, but he collected $44,175 from the total purse of $500,000—the biggest ever in professional golf.

Leonard Thompson, an obscure second-year touring pro, came on and took third with a 71—575, but never was in the two-man title chase.

Watson, a red-haired 24-year-old, quickly dropped back as he played his front side in 41. He finished with a 77 for the day and was tied for fourth at 576 with former PGA champion Al Geiberger. Geiberger played the last round in 70.

Race, George in main event

In semifinal action, Bob Orton will oppose Kit Conway.

An eight-man battle royal, which will see the winner pick up $800, is also on the four-match card.

The opening match is scheduled for 8:15 p.m.

WAFB shows balanced attack

WHITEMAN, AFB — Whiteman Air Force Base broke away from St. Paul's College of Concordia here Friday night and posted a 74-54 victory.

Four players reached double figures for the base squad, which was led by Andrew Cole's 16. Also in double figures were Paul Mayfield (13), Russell Rogers (13) Henry Williams (12).

Whiteman was scheduled to take on Avila College in Kansas City Saturday afternoon.

Jefferson City seeded first

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kent Stringer passed for one touchdown and ran for another in the fourth quarter to lead Southern Missouri to a 17-0 victory over Lincoln University in a Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association football game Saturday.

Stringer's 42-yard pass to Glen Wiese capped an 81-yard drive early in the fourth quarter, then he ran for a 10-yard touchdown to end the Bears' season at 3-3 in the MIAA and 3-7 over-all.

Lincoln, which plays Missouri-Rolla Thanksgiving Day, is 3-2 in the conference and 5-5

Going to Sun Bowl

Mizzou upset 17-7

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Missouri accepted a bid to the Sun Bowl just after the Tigers were upset 17-7 by Iowa State in a Big Eight football contest Saturday.

Missouri Director of Athletics Mel Sheehan announced acceptance of the invitation from Harrison Kohl of the Sun Bowl to appear in El Paso, Tex., Dec. 29.

The Tigers will meet Auburn, who lost to Georgia 28-14 Saturday.

"We are delighted with this opportunity since the Sun Bowl has an outstanding reputation for the quality of its contest and related events," Sheehan said.

In Saturday's upset, Iowa State defensive end Lon Coleman recovered a Missouri fumble late in the final quarter to set up Iowa State's final touchdown and ensure the Cyclone victory.

The 14th-ranked Tigers were held to six first downs in the Iowa State-dominated first half as the Cyclones led 3-0 at intermission.

The win was Iowa State's first Big Eight conference victory this season against five losses. Iowa State is 3-6 for the season while Missouri dropped to 7-3 overall and 3-3 in the conference.

Goedjen's boot came with three minutes, 58 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

Iowa State went ahead 10-0 in the third quarter when quarterback Buddy Hardeman fired a nine-yard scoring pass to Keith Krepfle.

Later in the third quarter, Missouri scored its only touchdown when tailback Chris Hoskins tossed a four-yard scoring pass to split end Jim Sharp.

The Cyclones' insurance score was set up with just over three minutes remaining in the game when Coleman recovered the Tiger fumble on the Missouri 18-yard line.

Iowa State had two other scoring opportunities, but lost both on fumbles.

The Cyclones staged a 50-yard drive after the opening kickoff to the Missouri 32, but Danowsky fumbled and Missouri recovered on its own 21.

Strachan was the game's leading rusher, picking up 121 of Iowa State's 223 yards in 37 carries.

Hardeman, a freshman substituting for injured quarterback Wayne Stanley, completed five of nine passes for 74 yards and gained 54 yards in 15 carries.

Iowa State hosts Oklahoma State in its final Big Eight game next Saturday and Missouri is at 18th-ranked Kansas.

Diving tackle

Nebraska's Tom Pate (68) dives as he tries to tackle Kansas State's Steve Grogan in Saturday's game in Manhattan. Grogan, the Kansas State quarterback, gained three yards on the play, but Nebraska won the game 50-21 and earned a berth in the Cotton Bowl against Texas New Year's Day.

Oklahoma embarasses bowl-bound Jayhawks

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Halfback Joe Washington flashed past the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the season and scored two touchdowns as defensively awesome Oklahoma embarrassed bowl-bound Kansas 48-20 here Saturday afternoon to move within one victory of the Big Eight football championship.

Oklahoma blazed to a 27-6 first quarter lead and a 41-12 halftime advantage behind a tremendous pass rush led by sophomore tackles LeRoy and Dewey Sellmon.

A tip-off that a rout was in progress came on Kansas' first possession when cornerback Clyde Powers intercepted a David Jaynes pass in the first quarter and zipped 45 yards for a touchdown.

Jaynes came back to hit Emmett Edwards on a 57-yard scoring pass but from then on the Oklahoma defense had command of the game.

First quarter action featured a 60-yard field goal by Brazilian-born Tony DiRienzo of Oklahoma which broke the Big Eight record of 59 yards set by Nebraska's Fred Lima. It came within one yard of the NCAA record held by Southern Mississippi's Ray Guy.

Washington, who rushed for 119 yards on 17 carries, scored on touchdown runs of five and two yards in the first half.

Quarterback Steve Davis scored on a pair of one-yard runs and hit tight end Wayne Hoffman on a 48-yard TD pass as the Sooners upped their record to 8-0-1.

Kansas scored late in the first half on Robert Miller's eight-yard run and again in the final quarter when James Bowman intercepted a pass and rambled 92 yards into the end zone.

Kansas, now 6-3-1, was expected to accept an invitation to play in the Liberty Bowl against North Carolina State Saturday night.

Nebraska 50, K-State 21

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Nebraska accepted a Cotton Bowl invitation Saturday after the 10th-ranked Cornhuskers utilized a three-touchdown parade by sophomore Tony Davis to help demolish a jittery Kansas State football team 50-21.

Cotton Bowl officials extended the bid after watching the Huskers roll to victory and keep alive their hopes of overhauling Oklahoma for the Big Eight Conference championship.

Nebraska players were notified they would compete in the New Year's Day classic against Texas at Dallas while they were en route by bus to the airport for the trip back to Lincoln, Neb.

"We are pleased to go to the bowl," said Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne. "We have two goals, to win the Big Eight championship, and the bowl."

Nebraska's triumph coupled with Oklahoma's smashing decision over Kansas, also set the stage for its all-important battle with third-ranked Sooners Friday at Norman, Okla.

Davis rolled into the end zone on runs of six, four and four yards but John O'Leary, Ralph Powell and Maury Damkroger also had big hands in the Cornhuskers' blistering ground attack.

O'Leary ran five yards for a touchdown, and quarterback Dave Humm, whose key passes spurred three extra marches, added another six points on a one-yard sneak.

Two Husker substitute quarterbacks, Steve Runty and Earl Everett, boosted the score in the final minutes. Runty threw a 31-yard touchdown pass to Dave Shamblin and Everett ran 36 yards for a touchdown.

Trailing 23-0 at the half, the outmanned Wildcats threw a scare into the Huskers twice, first by making two touchdowns in less than five minutes early in the third quarter with Isaac Jackson ripping across for both on runs of one and 29 yards.

After Nebraska struck back to make it 30-14, Fred Rothwell picked up teammate Don Calhoun's fumble and ran 52 yards for Kansas States' final touchdown.

Nebraska is 4-1-1 in the Big Eight and 8-1-1 in all games. Kansas State's 1-5 and 4-6.

O-State 38, Colorado 24

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Oklahoma State's wishbone offense, paced by the running of George Palmer and the passing of Brent Blackman, consistently ripping off five yards at a crack, scored 31 straight points midway through the game to rout fading Colorado 38-24 in Big Eight football action Saturday.

The alert Cowboy defense forced four turnovers, and three of them were converted into touchdowns as OSU raised its conference record to 2-1-2 and overall mark to 5-2-2. Although it was only the second loss at home in the past three seasons for Colorado, it marked the fourth setback in the past five games. CU's record fell to 2-4 in the Big Eight and 5-5 overall.

Burned by an 85-yard punt return by Colorado's Steve Haggerty that put CU on top 10-0, Oklahoma State bounced back with an 80-yard drive, entirely on the ground, and later took advantage of two turnovers to go ahead 17-10 at the half.

Palmer, who gained 114 yards, James Nunn and Leonard Thompson paced the Cowboy running attack, while quarterback Blackman threw a pair of touchdown passes.

Colorado sophomore quarterback Clyde Crutchmer, who fumbled the ball away once and threw two interceptions in the first half, fired two TD strikes in the final period but the belated rally failed.

Major college roundup

Ohio State romps over Iowa

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Archie Griffin established two school rushing records and Bruce Elia scored four times Saturday to lead top-ranked Ohio State to a 55-13 Big Ten football mauling of winless Iowa.

The victory, Ohio State's ninth straigth and seventh in a row in the conference, set the stage for the showdown for the Big Ten title and Rose Bowl berth at No. 4 Michigan next Saturday.

The Wolverines whipped Purdue Saturday, and both will carry unbeaten conference records into the nationally televised title game.

Michigan 34, Purdue 9

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Quarterback Dennis Franklin scored two touchdowns and passed for a third Saturday to pace sluggish Michigan to a 34-9 Big Ten college football victory over Purdue.

The fourth-ranked Wolverines, who will play No. 1 Ohio State for the Big Ten title next Saturday, ran their season record to 10-0 and their conference mark to 7-0.

Michigan got past the Purdue 45 only once in the first half, scoring with 2:12 remaining on a 41-yard pass from Franklin to wingback Clint Haslerig.

Penn State 49, Ohio 10

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Jolting John Cappelletti rushed for 204 yards on 25 carries and scored four touchdowns in less than three quarters as sixth-ranked Penn State stampeded over outclassed Ohio University 49-10 en route to its New Year's night appearance in Miami's Orange Bowl.

The 210-pound Cappelletti rushed past Lenny Moore into second place on the all-time Penn State ground-gaining list, boosting his two-year running career to 2,478 yards. Moore, who ran for three years (1953-55) had 2,380. Lydell Mitchell of the National Football League's Baltimore Colts is the all-time Penn State leader with 2,934.

Texas 52, TCU 7

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Roosevelt Leaks shattered the Southeast Conference's season rushing record and quarterback Marty Akins scored one touchdown and threw for two more Saturday as Texas clinched the SWC title and a sixth straight trip to the Cotton Bowl with a 52-7 shellacking of Texas Christian.

The triumph insures 11th-ranked Texas a matchup against No. 10 Nebraska in the Jan.1 Dallas Classic no matter what happens when Texas plays Texas A&M Thanksgiving Day.

Leaks, a 218-pound junior, bolted for 105 yards to give him a nine-game total of 1,328. That's 26 yards more than A—M's Bob Smith compiled in 10 games in 1950.

SMU 7, Arkansas 7

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Southern Methodist quarterback Keith Bobo bolted five yards for a touchdown with less than three minutes left Saturday and Clint Hackney kicked the extra point to give the Mustangs a 7-7 tie with Arkansas.

The late Mustang surge also spoiled the heroic efforts of Arkansas tailback Dickey Morton. He rushed for 189 yards on 36 carries to establish a career Southwest Conference rushing record.

After the SMU score, Morton returned the ensuing kickoff 30 yards, and a personal foul penalty put the ball on the Mustang 37. The Razorbacks worked the ball to the SMU 18, where Andy Bolton's 35-yard field goal with 67 seconds left was wide and short9

Arkansas got yet another crack when Rollen Smith intercepted a Bobo pass with 58 seconds to play, but the Razorbacks could not get past the 50-yard line.

USC 42, Washington 19

SEATTLE (AP) — Anthony Davis and Ray Rodriguez scored touchdowns eight seconds apart, breaking the game open in the fourth quarter and helping Southern California to a 42-19 victory over Washington in a Pacific Eight Conference football game.

The Davis touchdown was set up when Artimus Parker intercepted a Chris Rowland pass for the third time in the afternoon, and Trojan quarterback Pat Haden hit Jim Obradovich for a 23-yard gain.

On the ensuing kickoff, Ken Conley took the ball, handed off to Walter Oldes, who fumbled in his end zone, where Rodriguez recovered.

LaMonte claims third

Smithton wins tourney

By BOB SCHACKELFORD
Staff Sportswriter

LINCOLN — The powerful Smithton Tigers lived up to their number one seeding in the Kaysinger Conference Tournament here last night by easing past a determined but outmanned Cole Camp Bluebird team 61-50.

Rusty Templemire, 6-5 Tiger lefty, got Smithton off and running with a 9-point first quarter and Smithton led 17-10 at the first quarter buzzer.

The second period was evenly played, with both teams missing scoring opportunities on missed free throws and turnovers in key spots, but Smithton led at half-time 30-20.

Harry Goosen, 6-5 Bluebird center, picked up his fourth foul with 3:27 left in the third period and this was the opportunity for Smithton with Templemire and Jay Teeter controlling the boards and triggering fast breaks to go into a commanding 45-31 lead entering the final quarter.

The last period was all Smithton as Marvin Turner chipped in with three 15-foot jumpers from the baseline, Templemire blocking shot after shot and Martin White chipping in with key free throws.

With 2:35 left, the Tigers led 59-39 and coasted home. Templemire led all scorers with 22 points and Dan Schnell had 15 for Cole Camp.

Smithton's next contest is at home, a conference game with Lincoln Tuesday night, while Cole Camp is idle until Nov. 27, when they travel to Bunceton for a non-loop affair.

Scoring

Smithton (61) — Templemire 22, Turner 12, White 12, Hopper 9, Teeter 6.

Cole Camp (50) — Schnell 15, Weymuth 14, Yeager 10, Goosen 6, Brandes 3, Duensing 2.

Cole Camp	10	10	11	19—50

LaMonte rode the 30-point scoring binge of Glynn Bennett to capture third place honors as the Vikings swept Sacred Heart 75-64.

The Gremlins kept the score close through-out the first quarter behind 6-3 Jim McMullen and guard Tony Lock, but the Vikings led 21-15 after 8 minutes and kept the scoring pace in the second quarter to lead 38-27 at intermission.

The third stanza saw LaMonte blow the contest wide open on Bennett-led fast breaks and 20-foot jumpers to send the Vikings into a comfortable 26 point lead going into the final quarter 62-36.

Bennett, the 5-9 all-state playmaker, fouled out with 4:45 left in the fray, but by this time the Sacred Heart crew was out of it and reserves finished up for both teams.

LaMonte now takes a 2-2 record into their first conference game at home against Northwest Tuesday night, while Sacred Heart, now 1-2, travels to Warsaw for a loop encounter the same evening.

Scoring

LaMonte (75) — Bennett 30, Hitaffer 14, Whitworth 12, Jones 8, Hughes 5, Taylor 4, Huddleston 2.

Sacred Heart (64) — Lock 14, McMullen 11, Weller 9, Brown 8, Johnson 7, Register 6, Borchers 5, Hoskins 2, Bellmer 2.

SFCC joins new 7-team loop

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — State Fair Community College, along with six other Kansas City-area junior colleges, officially organized the Greater Kansas City Community College Conference here Friday.

Originally the proposal was to establish a nine-team conference, however, two of those original schools involved in the planning sessions abstained from the voting.

Joining State Fair are Maple Woods and Penn Valley of Kansas City; Johnson County, Kan. Community College; Highland, Kan. Community College; Trenton Junior College; and Haskell American Indian Junior College of Lawrence, Kan.

Kansas City, Kan. Community Junior College and Longview Community College of Kansas City, the two other schools considering charter membership, were given until Dec. 1 to decide on whether or not to join the other seven for the league's first season of competition, which will probably be in operation by the 1974-75 season.

Representatives of Longview and Kansas City, Kan. said they needed more time in making their decision on joining the league as charter members. Longview is an independent; Kansas City, Kan. is a member of the Jayhawk Conference, which is made up of 16 Kansas junior colleges.

The new league will not only offer intercollegiate athletic competition, but also offer more varied intramural programs, along with speech, drama, social and cultural exchanges.

Officials of Kansas City, Kan. said they were delaying their decision on joining the league because most of the talk during the planning stages had been centered around the area of athletics.

Dr. Jack Flint, president of Kansas City, Kan. said, "There had not been as much projection and discussion on the other areas as there had been about athletics ... philosophically, we're not opposed to it."

Reports indicate that the prospects for Longview joining for the first year of competition are much brighter. School president William Hatley said, "It's an excellent idea and we're totally behind it, but we had some questions and we had to follow due process."

Wallace Galuzzi, superintendent of Haskell, will continue to serve as the temporary chairman, until the members meet again on Dec. 18 at Penn Valley. Officers for the coming year will be elected at that meeting.

Opening day kills

Jared Shumate, Green Ridge, bagged this 12-point buck only one hour after starting, but it took him three hours to drag the 200-pound deer back to his truck. He shot the deer near Cole Camp Creek south of Cole Camp.

Edward Young, 1309 South Prospect, collected his first deer ever Saturday when he shot this 8-point 170-pound buck. He killed the deer south of Sedalia near Waterworks Road.

Gardell Powell, 2820 Meadowood, killed this 10-point buck at 7:15 a.m. Saturday south of Smithton. Joe Wasson (no photo available), 1318 South Arlington, was another Sedalian to get a deer on opening day, killing an 8-point, 190-pound buck in Benton County, south of Warsaw.

Bulletin

Crowder College of Neosho, Mo., riding shaky ground virtually the entire way, put it all together in overtime in the agricultural building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds last night and captured the championship of the State Fair Classic over the host Roadrunners, 70-64.

Mark Franklin, a 6-3 forward from Springfield, pulled Crowder from behind with 2:16 to go in regulation. Neither team could score the rest of the way, sending the contest into overtime.

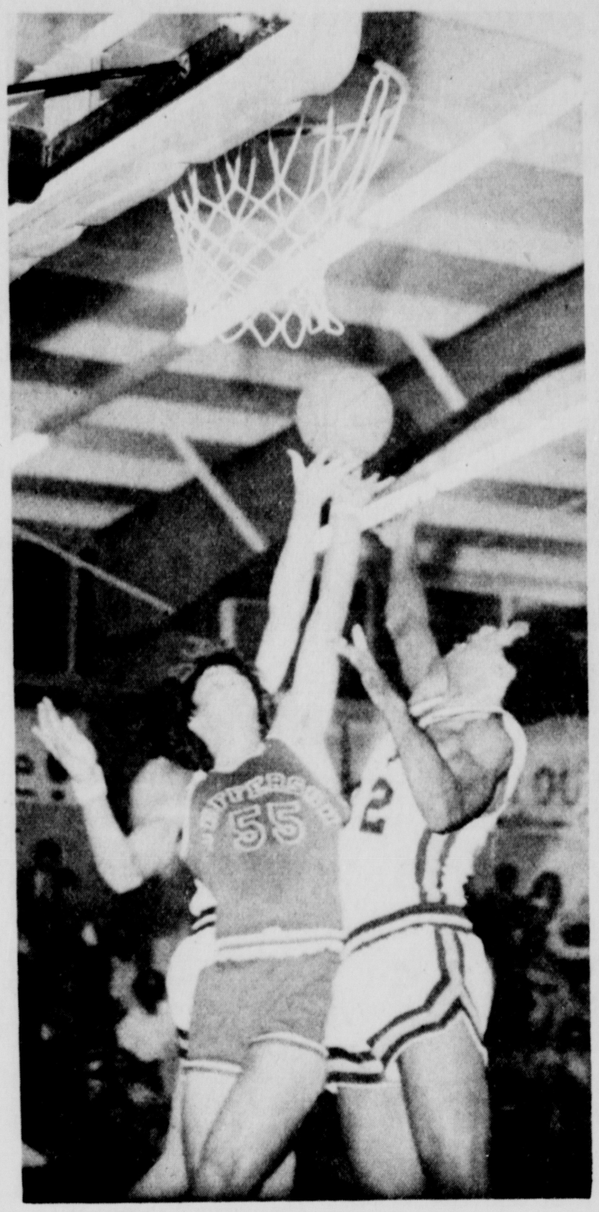
The loss overshadowed standout performances for State Fair by Jack Easley and Charles Shell. Easley found the range from the wings and gunned in 22 points, while Shell added 19.

Crowder, now 3-0, was led in scoring by Dillard who tossed in 17.



Battle under the boards

The host Roadrunners went on to win the game, 76-43, and were scheduled to take on Crowder College of Neosho in last night's championship game.

Trenton routs Jefferson 64-35

The Pirates, who missed making it to the championship game Friday night, dropping a 53-52 decision to Crowder College (Neosho, Mo.), put the contest away early, bolting to a 10-2 lead with just five minutes gone in the contest.

The intimidating play of 6-7 freshman center James Clabon from St. Louis Vashon, coupled with poor field goal shooting by the Vikings gave Trenton an easy victory, their first of the season.

Jefferson scored only 10 points in the first 10 minutes of the opening period, and trailed by 14 points, 30-16 at the intermission.

The Vikings couldn't do any better in the second half. It took them 16 minutes to put eight points on the board.

Clabon menaced the Vikings at both ends of the court in the first half, when he blocked six shots. Although he had only six points in the first 20 minutes of play, the offense revolved around him.

Jefferson opened in a man-to-man defense, but had to switch to a zone in the second half. Neither was effective.

"I feel good so far," said third-year coach Gary Garner of Trenton. "Of course we feel good anytime we win. Hopefully, by the end of the year we will have a fine squad ... we should get stronger," he continued, noting he starts three and sometimes four freshmen.

Garner continued, "We will have to become more consistent, both offensively and defensively."

The Vikings dropped to 0-2 on the year. They were bumped in their season's opener Friday night by host State Fair in the first round of the tourney, 76-43.

Trenton placed three players in double figures, led by Clabon, who wound up with 12. All-state freshman guard from Skyline (Urbana, Mo.) High School Jacky Payne added 11, while sophomore forward Elliot chipped in with 10.

Six-one Mike Hemphill led Jefferson with 12, to tie Clabon for game honors.

Scoring

Trenton (64) — James Clabon 12, Jacky Payne 11, Doug Elliot 10, Butch Allen 8, Pete Rorvig 7, Randy Obryan 4, Ken Jones 3, Larry Savage 3, David Adams 2, David Bodenhammer 2, Bill Presley 2.

New York, Cardinals frustrated

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Much of the success that the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Giants have enjoyed this year has been relative.

The Cardinals, with a 3-5-1 record, have already surpassed their 1972 point total and are within 23 yards of their passing yardage total. They have however managed only one victory and one tie in their last seven games.

The Giants, 1-7-1 and the only team with a worse record in the National Football Conference's Eastern Division, looked relatively better last Sunday against Dallas, holding the Cowboys to 195 yards total offense despite a 23-10 loss.

The Cardinals' only victory came against the Giants, who they meet here Sunday. The Cardinals beat New York 35-27 Oct. 28 when Jim Hart threw four touchdowns, three to Mel Gray.

Gray missed St. Louis' game last week against Green Bay because of a pulled hamstring and may be replaced Sunday by Walker Gillette.

The Cardinals also may be without Ernie McMillan, who is nursing a bruised knee, and free safety Clarence Duren and Roger Wehrli, also out with bad knees.

The Giants also may be handicapped by injury, including that of John Mendenhall who sat out last week's game with a torn knee cartilage.

"It's all up to the doctors, but I'm not counting on him for Sunday," said Giants' Coach Alex Webster. "As far as I'm concerned he's out for the year."

Mendenhall's place last week was taken by rookie Rich Glover who made nine unassisted tackles and was in on 11 others.

Auburn chosen to face Tigers

ATLANTA (AP) — Auburn accepted an invitation to play Missouri in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Tex., after its 28-14 loss to Georgia Saturday, a team spokesman said.

The bid was extended by Bill White, selection committee chairman of the Sun Bowl, said Mel Pulliam, assistant sports information director at Auburn.

It will be the sixth straight postseason bowl trip for the Tigers.

SEMO passes by Warrensburg

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Lance Brune put on a dazzling exhibition at quarterback Saturday, passing Southeast Missouri State to a 27-0 victory over Central Missouri State University and the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship.

The victory gave Southeast the conference title after Southwest Missouri State knocked off Lincoln, 17-0, earlier in the day.

The score at halftime was 0-0. Brune, who finished the day with 24 completions for 271 yards, flipped 19-and 10-yard touchdown passes in the third quarter.

In the fourth quarter, he connected with Rick Attig on touchdown passes of 32 and 13 yards.

Southeast finishes the regular season with a 5-1 conference mark. The Mules finished 1-5.

Jefferson City seeded first

TIPTON — The seedings for the Tipton Invitational Basketball Tournament have been announced.

Jefferson City was awarded the top seed, while Versailles, Fulton and the host Cardinals round out the top four teams.

Sacred Heart, the tourney champion two years ago, is seeded seventh, ahead of Otterville. Eldon and Jefferson City Helias round out the seeds in fifth and sixth respectively.

Tipton and Eldon tip off the tourney Nov. 26 at 6:15 p.m., followed by the Versailles-Sacred Heart game. Fulton and Helias will also tangle opening night in first-round action.

The tourney will continue through Nov. 30.

Rolla 7, Northeast 7

ROLLA, Mo. (AP)—Tight end Merle Dillow pulled in a five-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Greg Haug in the fourth quarter Saturday to give the University of Missouri-Rolla a 7-7 tie with Northeast Missouri State University in a Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association game here.

The Northeast Missouri State Bulldogs held the offensive edge in the rain-spattered contest with 211 yards rushing and 276 yards in total offense to Rolla's 131 yards on the ground and 207 total yards, but three turnovers in Miner territory, two interceptions and one fumble, stunted the Bulldogs' offensive impact.

The tie gave Rolla a 2-6-2 overall record and a 1-3-1 record in the MIAA with one game remaining, while Northeast Missouri State finished the season with a 2-7-2 overall record and a 2-3-1 conference mark.

Arkansas Tech 16, Mo. Western 14

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Kicking specialist Craig Williams kicked field goals of 31, 32 and 24 yards Saturday to give Arkansas Tech a 16-14 victory over Missouri Southern State College.

The victory was Tech's fourth against seven losses for the season. Missouri Southern was 4-6.

Leningrad is friendly to a point; wrapped in 18th Century history

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

LENINGRAD (AP) — Like a mammoth found under the northern ice, St. Petersburg is preserved almost intact. Some people claim they can hear its heartbeat in faint counterpoint to the official cadence.

It comes close to a collective recognition that the city retains the cultural advance it gained over the rest of the country more than 200 years ago.

Standing on the embankment across the gray and icy Neva River from The Hermitage, one Leningrad intellectual remarked: "When Moscow wants to know something about art, literature, music or good taste, they come here."

There's not the atmosphere of a political midway that prevails in Moscow. No Kewpie-doll Lenins disturb the 18th-century harmony of the original architects, and downtown there are no great garish Red banners exhorting an indifferent labor force to bring Communist party decisions "into life."

Because of its striking difference, the former capital has traditionally invited envy and distrust from Lenin's successors in Moscow. The Kremlin appoints outsiders to govern.

"They are afraid of our independence so they send us Voyevody," a student explained, deliberately choosing the old Tsarist term for military governors.

The job of being the party "Voyevody" in Leningrad hasn't been a uniform blessing for most of the nominees. Zinoviev and Popkov were executed, Zhdanov died in mysterious circumstances, and Kirov was murdered, probably on Stalin's orders. Just last year, Leningrad party chief V.S. Tolstikov was exiled as ambassador to Peking.

An understandably nervous local party organization in turn keeps the screws tight on anything resembling political dissent.

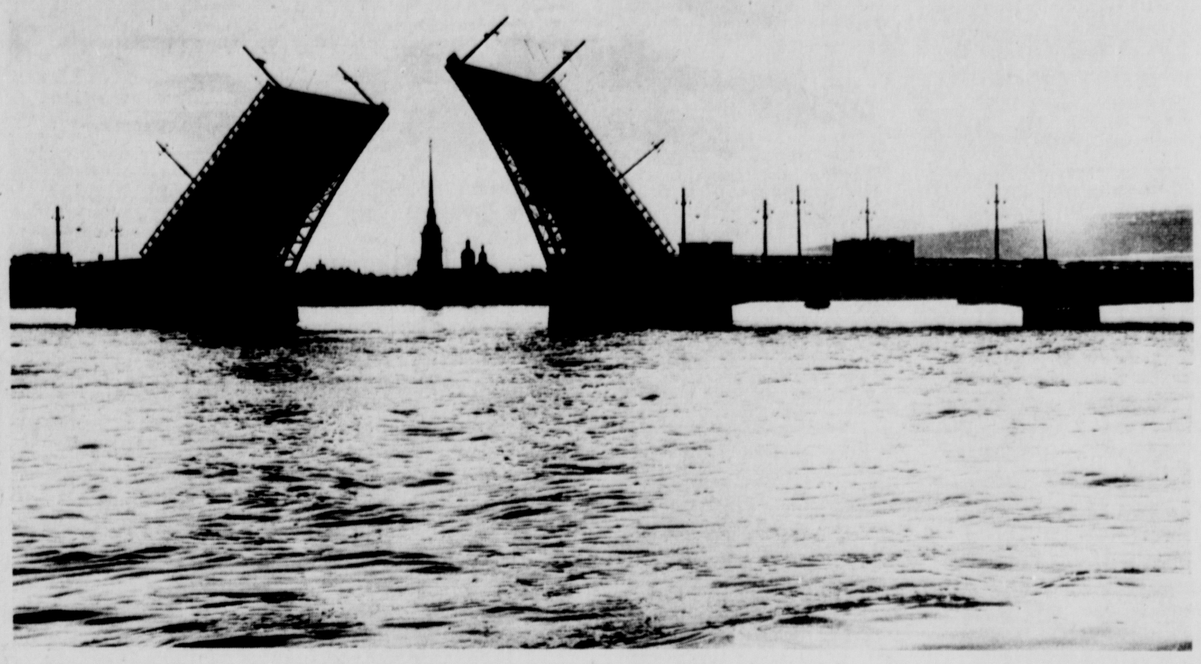
The authorities, however, seem compelled to permit much greater variety in non-political life.

Peter the Great's window to the west is frosted over but some light manages to slip through.

The more enterprising youth are as well versed in jazz and rock as their peers in Stockholm, Paris or Rome. If they're almost as well dressed it's due to private deals made with the thousands of Finns who come on weekends to enjoy limitless drinking and a change of air.

Young men wear their hair long, a fact obliquely and belatedly approved by the Leingrad party newspaper recently when it noted that "although men's hair fashions change more slowly than women's, they don't stand still. The modern hair style is longer."

And Leningrad girls have discovered that the effectiveness of eye makeup is not necessarily an absolute function of quantity.



Shades of St. Petersburg

Leningrad's River Neva gleams in the evening light, and one of the city's many drawbridges opens to frame the silhouetted spire of the Peter and Paul Basilica. The spirit of the former capital, old St. Petersburg, is still felt strongly alive in the Soviet city of today. Visibly, there is the 18th-century harmony of the original architects. Culturally, the advance gained over the rest of the country over two hundred years ago is still proudly asserted.

(AP)

People are more relaxed and polite. Ask a Leningrader directions and, likely as not, he'll take you to the bus stop and wait with you until the right one comes along. There's enough residual rudeness so you know you're back in the U.S.S.R., but there's nothing to compare with the Olympics-class shoving and shoulder-knocking practiced in Moscow.

Maybe it's that the society is more integrated, a conclusion supported by the observation that public drunkenness is much less visible than in the "Tartar village."

Food provisions seem to be on a par with Moscow — the same shortages of fruit and vegetables prevail, and beef is priced so that a pound costs the average worker 1¼ hours' wages. But there's a difference, typical of the gap between Russia's first and second cities. Take Yeleseyevsky's, for example. A sort of Russian Fauchon's before the revolution, the store on Nevsky Prospekt is preserved in the same potted-palm, beveled-glass, art nouveau style that would satisfy its emigre founder. Fifty-five years after the revolution the only fruit available is apples, but they have been washed and stacked in neat pyramids. In Moscow apples are served from a dusty bin, like so much coal.

At night in the Baku Restaurant on Sadovaya Street, a rock group with wraparound sunglasses plays to a full house. With more energy than precision they plunge into "Yellow River," "Mammy Blues," "Yesterday" and Baby Wha'd I Say?", all in English except the finale — "Hava-Nagila" to which a Red army artillery captain dances as if there will be no tomorrow.

Item: The Leningrad comedy theater is rehearsing "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Can anyone live in Leningrad? No, replies Deputy Mayor Arseniy Alexandrovich Chistyakov. You have to have a permit.

The city government is trying to limit Leningrad's population growth. A ceiling has already been imposed on new industrial construction. Now numbering 3.3 million people within its limits, Leningrad is targeted for no more than 4 million by the year 2000.

Permits are being issued to skilled workers the city needs — these are the people who have priority on new housing — and those with a family reason to settle here. Chistyakov says that almost in spite of itself, Leningrad is growing by more than 30,000 residents a year.

The deputy mayor also touched on two problems common to city government in the West: pollution and crime.

The water of the Neva River "is so clean it can be used for making vodka," Chistyakov said in what appeared to be a variation of the Russian joke that "vodka is made from coal and gasoline."

As for air pollution, the government and party leadership have made some headway in controlling heavy industry's fouling of the atmosphere, he said.

As for crime, he came as close to a frank answer as you could expect from a Soviet official.

The usual reply is that a city the size of Leningrad has at most a couple of drunk and disorderlies and maybe a cutting in the course of a day.

Though Chistyakov said "Crime in Leningrad is decreasing annually," he did concede that it "is an important and complicated question."

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It began with a triumph mocked by snowflakes, a bitter, driving storm which would have closed the town any other night. But the aging Knights of Camelot remember it with a glow as warm as the toasts they pour to what is left of their legend.

For them, John F. Kennedy's inaugural represented not only the start, but the essence, of a stewardship that lasted 1,065 days. The young president, bareheaded in the cold, savored the ceremony, the festivity, the adventure to the last and each interim moment. And at the end of the whirlwind he stood alone at the White House door, perhaps feeling, for the first time, the splendid isolation of his office.

But not all that much isolation. Though there are few who claim really to have known John Kennedy, it was part and parcel of his glamor that he attracted people. "The best and the brightest," writer David Halberstam called them. The young president attracted them — and more. He summoned them, not so much to do the commander's bidding, it seemed, but to share in the experience.

What of Camelot? and what of the men who made it?

Did their experience, sweet then bitter, leave any lasting marks? What are their whereabouts? Their successes? Their failures? Have they heeded John Fitzgerald Kennedy's summons — the summons to public life that he surely hoped would live on? . . .

It is one of the memories that widow Jacqueline is still eager to share. Long before he was president, she has said, her husband would admonish his audiences "over and over again that the Greek word for idiot meant someone who took no interest in the affairs of his state." And with all that America may have forgotten about him, we are so easily and often reminded to "Ask not what your country . . ."

At the top, the president surrounded himself with both friends and strangers. He had never met Robert McNamara before he asked the Ford Motor Co. executive — a Republican, at that — to be his secretary of defense. Another Republican, Douglas Dillon, he had seen only once. Dillon became secretary of the treasury.

A third, McGeorge Bundy of Harvard, became Kennedy's top foreign affairs adviser at the White House, with Democrat Walt Whitman Rostow as his deputy. Adlai Stevenson yearned to end his career as secretary of state, but Kennedy chose instead another man he hadn't known, Dean Rusk.

Then, the Irish Mafia: the inner circle upon which the brothers Kennedy — notably excluding Ted — pinioned their political fortunes.

There was Dave Powers, the president's story-telling friend whom he called his "other wife," an unassuming man of wit and down-home politics.

And Larry O'Brien, Kennedy's legislative liaison and an old Massachusetts hand who built a reputation as a political Merlin on sheer method and sweat.

Ted Sorenson, the man who framed so many of the Kennedy speeches; tough, shrewd, a lawyer and drafter of laws.

Arthur Schlesinger, the chief link to academia, a Harvard historian who won a Pulitzer prize for his study of Andrew Jackson and would win another for his study of John Kennedy.

There was R. Sargent Shriver, the energetic brother-in-law who would make the Peace Corps — even if it was Hubert Humphrey's idea — one of the administration's most cherished legacies.

Kennedy P. O'Donnell, the appointments secretary and an early veteran of the shoe leather days in Massachusetts. Chief of staff Fred Dugan, Press Secretary Pierre Salinger and, of course, brother Robert, the attorney general.

Too, there were the party men, those who gave the Kennedy government a geographical and philosophical spread and whose appointments helped to pay the political bills. Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota as agriculture secretary, Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina at commerce, Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut at HEW. Rep. Stewart Udall of Arizona was the West's choice as interior secretary, and Arthur J. Goldeberg, general counsel to the AFL-CIO, labor secretary.

Even Vice President Lyndon Johnson was impressed. Johnson's excitement was widely shared. Journalists found angles in the number of Rhodes scholars who had come on board, in counting the books they had written, the Ivy diplomas they held. The Kennedy Man was protrayed as tough mentally, and physically as well. They climbed mountains, ran the whitest rapids and played handball and, naturally, touch football.

Larry O'Brien is in his apartment, at Washington's Sheraton Park Hotel. He greets his visitor in shirtsleeves, an unknotted tie — the usual Countess Mara — dangling from his collar.

His once-red hair is gray now. He orders the morning's first cup of coffee at 10 a.m. and sets out the day's ration of cigarettes, two packs of Kents. It used to be five packs of Pall Malls, sometimes six, and the first would have been smoked by 8 a.m. He is busy, he says, on his book, and he has those Democratic party lawsuits tied to the Watergate bugging to tend to.

"I was with them both, you know," he says. "I guess the only one who was with them both." He doesn't explain. He doesn't have to. He was in Dallas when John Kennedy was shot; in Los Angeles when Robert was shot.

Then a synopsis of his more than 20 years in political life, starting with John in 1952. Some minor horrors, as well as the deathly ones: looking out on the tumultuous streets of Chicago as Hubert Humphrey sought his help in 1968; a business venture which failed in 1969; an "unreal" on-and-off campaign with George McGovern. The book — which, after five years, is still unfinished.

He speaks of John Kennedy.

"I considered him the most outstanding man I ever met. He was a leader. I guess the one word for him is courage. No, I think guts is a better word.

"You know, I was never sure what Camelot was. Sure, you had a spirit and attitude that grew after he was elected, and I think he would have gotten a tremendous mandate to carry on. But I was bothered that we went through two or three years of building monuments. We need to remember that he was flesh and blood. Look, here we are talking about Camelot, and once again this country is crying out for leadership."

Not that O'Brien sees himself or the others joining hands again, as some predict they will, with the last Kennedy brother, Edward. "Oh, I suppose Pierre Salinger and Sorenson are available," he says. "But is there a Kennedy circle left? I guess not."

Mac Bundy was, in 1966, elected president of the Ford Foundation, where he still serves at a salary three times what he got at the White House. He stayed with Lyndon Johnson until the Vietnam war was in full swing. A newsmen who tries without success to reach him for a discussion of those years is reminded of a remark by Bundy's friend, Yale President Kingman Brewster: "Mac will spend the rest of his life trying to justify Vietnam."

As for McNamara, he is comfortably ensconced — when he's in town — in the glass and polished steel of the World Bank. As president there he earns $50,000 net per year and generally stays out of the public eye. He'll observe the anniversary of John Kennedy's death, said his secretary, "somewhere out of the country. He's on holiday."

Rusk and Rostow, who like Bundy and McNamara stayed with Johnson through the darkest days of the Vietnam war, have returned to academic life, Rusk at the University of Georgia, Rostow at the LBJ school at the University of Texas.

Others who stood at the fringe of Kennedy's inner circle have also returned to lives and professions akin to their pre-Camelot days. Douglas Dillon is back at his New York investment firm, Luther Hodges has a host of corporate interests in North Carolina. Abe Ribicoff won a seat in the Senate. Udall stayed in Washington to work for conservation groups and is much in demand as a speaker on that topic.

But the men of the Irish Mafia, like O'Brien, have known professional and personal turbulence even beyond what seems to be the norm for politicans these days. For them the John Kennedy magic didn't work without John Kennedy.

Pierre Salinger, for example, left the White House in 1964 and became, by appointment, a senator from California. When he ran for the job, sweeping to the nomination with characteristic energy and flamboyance, he lost the general election — while other Democrats, including Johnson, were rolling to their biggest landslide since 1936. Republican actor George Murphy was the winner.

Salinger, $100,000 in debt, then tried the business world.

Now, his calling card reads "Grand Reporter," a title bestowed upon him by the Paris magazine L'Express. He spends a good deal of time in Paris, just as he did during his intermittent involvement in George McGovern's presidential campaign last year.

Schlesinger is now the Schweitzer professor of humanities at the City University of New York. He says he feels no disenchantment over the way the country was run in the Kennedy days and, on the contrary, is offended by the growing stack of literature about Kennedy administration failures.

A popular theme, he notes, is that Kennedy was guilty of holding out too much hope for America, while offering too little reality. But that, he says, misses "the whole point of the Kennedy years. What Kennedy did, after a sad decade of quiescence in American life, was to make legitimate both the generous and the mordant energies in American society. For a brief time, he enabled Americans to respect and trust their government . . . and he gave individual citizens a sense of their own power and obligation in the political process. We will have to get back to all that in time."

Sorenson is another who tried to win office on his own, running in New York for the seat held by the assassinated Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. He ran third in the primary. It was an expensive defeat. Now, though his law practice is thriving, "I'm saddened enough by my previous experience to doubt" that he would ever run again.

O'Donnell, the master of Kennedy's political back rooms in the early days, was another who couldn't sell himself to the voters. He tried for the Massachusetts governorship twice, in 1966 and 1970, and both times failed to get through the primaries. The second time he ran fourth, with only 8.3 per cent of the vote. Since then he has been in a curious limbo; he surfaced for a time as a campaign adviser to Humphrey. He wrote a book, "Johnny We Hardly Knew Ye," with Dave Powers. He spends some time with old Washington cronies at Duke Ziebert's Restaurant. His health has failed; he collapsed once this summer, and was hospitalized for a time.

But he still envisions a return to some political role.

"You could sit around and sulk," he says. "But then you're in real trouble. I love politics. I don't think there's anything that isn't politics."

Arthur Goldberg ran for governor of New York. He lost, too. Now, as a man once secretary of labor, once a Supreme Court justice, once ambassador to the United Nations, he is again a private lawyer.

Perhaps the most fitting — if bittersweet — fate belongs to Powers. He was closer to President Kennedy during the White House years than perhaps any other man, sharing his hopes along with his anger.

Now, he is the curator of the yet unbuilt Kennedy Library. He strolls the aisles of a huge government warehouse in Waltham, Mass., arranging and cataloguing the memorabilia and telling visitors the story that goes with each item. There are some 10,657 of these, ranging from carved elephant tusks to shillelagh sticks, and Powers, a man with a near-photographic memory, knows the dates and circumstances for them all.

The most meaningful of them all, he says, is the coconut shell along Aisle 1. It bears the SOS message Kennedy sent from the island of Nauro after PT 109 was split in half by a Japanese destroyer: Native knows posit he can pilot 11 alive need small boat Kennedy. "Without that one," notes Powers, "there probably would never have been a President Kennedy."

"People ask me," Powers goes on, "how I can stand walking around here day after day. I'll tell you, it's a labor of love. Now I'm able to do something for a man who did so much for me. He was the greatest man I ever met and the greatest friend I ever had."

And Powers envisions no greater goal for himself than the completion of a museum "that will capture the spirit and the style and the grace of the president, a museum that is alive. I want it to be a place where you'd almost expect to meet him on the way out."

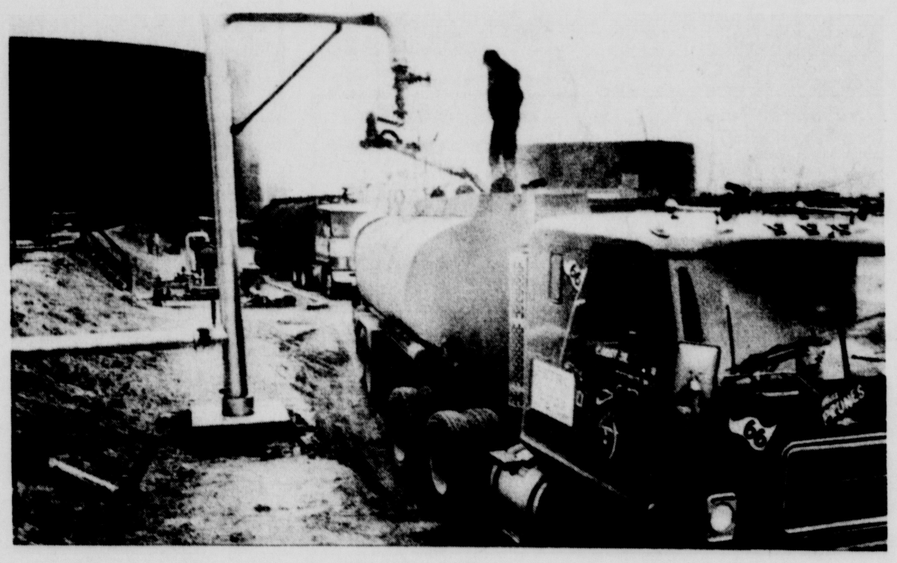
Ralph Dungan, who served Kennedy's White House as talent hunter, staff coordinator and general trouble-shooter, may have the most timely perspective of the old Kennedy men.

"Camelot?" asks Dungan, now chancellor of education in New Jersey. "It belongs to us no more. All those young people, those who wanted to come and didn't ask about salary or how long they would be there, those are the guys who are going to come on now. They'll be back. And they're brighter. We were the men of the World War, with all our experiences rammed into such a short period of time. Those kids had a more leisurely maturation. Those of us in my age group . . . we belong to a lost generation."

So if there is to be another Kennedy or Kennedy-like administration, the cast will be different. Perhaps someone like Tom Powers, who worked at the second echelon at the Labor Department, now a private attorney in Washington; perhaps Larry Fuchs, who went to the Philippines as the first field director for the Peace Corps, now teaching at Brandeis University. Perhaps Wayne Frederick, once deputy assistant secretary of state for Africa, now at the Chase Manhattan Bank; perhaps Stan Fenn, a minor staffer at the Kennedy White House now helping at the library. There are hundreds like them, and they are, to be sure, gone now from the government.

But when Ted Kennedy is out in the country, when he talks of John Kennedy's legacy and declares it "can and should be revived," you can bet that their blood begins to pump a little harder.

"It's a group that still has great enthusiasm," says Fenn, "and . . . hell, yes, I'd like another crack at it."



Loading fuel

A Canadian pumper is silhoutted against the late afternoon sky as he fills a U.S. oil tanker with fuel oil while another American tanker waits its turn. The flow of oil over the border, which stopped recently because of a Canadian embargo, began again this week when Canada allowed the release of 35,000 barrels to Petro Products, Inc., of Taylor, Mich. Canadian oil imports account for one-fourth of Michigan's total supply. (UPI)

Less news these days in papers

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A shortage of newsprint has forced cuts in news content in more than 62 per cent of newspapers surveyed by the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, according to a report released today.

Of 470 newspapers responding to the survey released at the APME's annual convention, 295 said they had reduced their news content.

The 400 newsmen from the United States and Canada attending the five-day convention that opened Friday were to discuss the future of the newsprint shortage today following a speech by Florida Gov. Reubin Askew.

The first victim of the newsprint shortage, the survey showed, was syndicated features, followed by international and national news, photographs, comics and sports. Local news was the last thing cut, the survey said.

Least affected was advertising. Only 48 of the newspapers responding said they had cut advertising. Most editors said they received few, if any, complaints from readers because of the cutbacks.

The survey said 38 newspapers reported positive comments from readers, while 146 had received no reaction and 36 had drawn negative comments. A majority of the complaints came from readers upset over cutbacks in comics, stock tables, television listings and crossword puzzles.

The editors said the reduction in news content required more manpower and resulted in better writing and editing. "There was a silver lining for some papers," the survey said. "They found waste to eliminate, bad writing to tighten and sloppy editing to sharpen."

Will ballet movie draw an audience?

..EDITOR'S NOTE — Will a ballet movie draw an audience? That remains to be seen of the Australian Ballet's film "Don Quixote." But, if not, it won't be for lack of talent. Rudolf Nureyev and Sir Robert Helpmann costar and codirect

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of people act in both films and on stage and some of them direct. Few do those three things and also dance in ballet. That is because, says Sir Robert Helpmann, whose career encompasses all four, they did not plan ahead.

For five years, while he was a star of the Sadler's Wells Ballet, he took acting and voice lessons. He choreographed the ballet "Hamlet" and cast himself in the title role, "hoping someone would get the idea." Then he convinced the management of the ballet, which also was the management of the Old Vic to let him quit dancing long enough every year for a dozen years to play one role on the Old Vic stage. His second role was Hamlet.

It's been an interesting life, which Sir Robert can look back on with as much relish as he looks to next year, which includes a possible movie with Katharine Hepburn and a stage play in London.

His first ballet teacher was the legendary ballerina Anna Pavlova. His eight movies have ranged from dancing with Moira Shearer in "The Red Shoes" to playing a Dutch Quisling and speaking all his lines in Dutch in "One of Our Aircraft Is Missing" to a comedy part in "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang." He was the mainstay of the Sadler's Wells Ballet — renamed the British Royal Ballet in 1956 — during the years of World War II, dancing every night and three times on Saturdays.

Sir Robert, who now divides his time between London and Australia, has come to New York for the premiere of the Australian Ballet's film, "Don Quixote." He is Don Quixote, and Rudolf Nureyev, who has toured extensively with the company as guest artist, has the main dancing role.

Will a ballet movie draw an audience?

Sir Robert says, "The thing that always distresses me and irritates me is the way ballet has become regarded as something highbrow. When a person says, 'We don't go; we don't understand ballet,' that drives me mad. You're not supposed to understand anything. I don't understand piano playing, but I enjoy hearing a piano player.

"I think this began when Diaghilev brought his ballet from Russia to Paris. It became a snob thing.

"I'd have been thrown to the sharks if I'd mentioned dance as art in my day. It was entertainment. And the average dancer is the least highbrow person in the world. He talks about his work the way any athlete talks about his sport.

"On Monday nights in Australia we say anybody under 20 can get in for half-price. Some people said that wouldn't succeed because young people don't understand ballet. It is actually the first performance to sell out. And you'd think the Beatles were on, the way they scream and carry on."

Nureyev staged "Don Quixote" in 1966, based on Marius Petipa's 1869 work. He and Sir Robert codirect the movie. Petipa did it a deal more to present lively Spanish dances than to tell the story of Cervantes' novel.

"Rudi dances unbelievably," Sir Robert says. "There is one place where he does incredible things in a grand pirouette. It is fiendishly difficult. If he was in the Olympic Games, he'd get a gold medal. He does it brilliantly.

"We had wonderful cameramen. They had to learn the choreography, practically enough so they could dance it. I can not bear seeing heads in dance films when you can't see the feet, or the feet with the heads cut off.

"We had the problem of no studio large enough to cope with the sets in Australia. Luckily the old airport in Melbourne had closed and there were three hangars unused. We had appalling problems with just empty aircraft hangars to convert into studios and a schedule of 26 days to make a full-length movie, but we achieved it."

BABY, THE RAIN MUST FALL

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — A nationwide cloud seeding project costing the equivalent of $275,352 is planned by the government this year in an attempt to increase rainfall by more than 5 per cent.

A rational alternative to rationing gas.

How did we arrive at that figure? Since we're a nation of national averages, we know the average car uses about 735 gallons of gas a year. The Beetle, 399*. Turn the eighty-five million average cars on the road right now into Beetles, and it works out to a saving of 28,560,000,000 (give or take a few gallons).

Now we haven't figured out all the water and antifreeze that would be saved with the Beetle's air-cooled engine.

Nor can we compute the extra parking space that would be around.

Not to mention all the money people would be able to save in a world of Volkswagens.

Buy a 1974 VW now and we'll pay for everything but your gas for one year or 20,000 miles.

Explains change

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns announced at a news conference this week that the U.S., in concert with six European nations, has abolished the two-tier pricing system for gold. The action opened the way for the U.S., if it choses, to sell portions of its $10,487 billion gold stockpile on the open market. (UPI)

Population dropping faster than farms

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Statisticatians say not only are the number of farms continuing to decline but that by 1980 each will have one person less in the household.

The figures were included Wednesday in a new study by the Economic Research Service on how farm assets and income may shape up by 1980, based on various projection methods.

By then, the report said, farms in the United States are expected to total 2.27 million, down from the approximately 2.8 million estimated at the beginning of this year.

The number of farms has declined steadily since 1935 and accelerated during the 1950s and early 1960s.

But the report shows the farm population has dropped even faster, due to fewer people in each household. During the decade 1959-69 the average size household dropped statistically from 3.95 to 3.47 persons.

"It is assumed here that this trend will continue so that farm population per farm household will decline to 3.04 by 1980," the report said.

Thus, the report added, the U.S. farm population by 1980 will be about 6.9 million persons. That would be down approximately 28 per cent from the 9.6 million estimated for 1972, the most recent tabulation.

The report concentrated mainly on projected financial status of farms in 1980 compared with 1970. By then, according to projections, net farm income will total $17.2 billion a year, compared with $15.9 billion in 1970.

Actual net farm income the past two years, however, has exceeded the 1980 projection. For 1973, as an example, USDA already has predicted farmers will net a record $25 billion.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drop in the 1973 corn crop estimate means the reserve next Oct. 1, when the 1974 crop is being harvested, will be cut to 626 million bushels, the Agriculture Department says.

That reserve would compare with 707 million bushels in the corn stockpile six week ago and more than 1.1 billion on Oct. 1, 1972.

Based on Nov. 1 indications, production this year will be about 5.7 billion bushels. Although the latest estimate, announced last week, still is a record crop, it is down 85 million bushels from indications in October.

Officials said in a supply and demand report Wednesday that the corn crop reduction, along with other cutbacks in 1973 grain prospects, means that feed grain production now will be 208 million tons. That estimate is down 3 million tons from October indications, including sorghum, oats and barley.

"These changes, added to carryover of old grain, put the feed grain supply at 240 million tons, 3 per cent less than last year," the report said.

Thus, officials said, total feed use by the United States will slip from last year's high of 173 million tons.

The report said exports of all feed grain may total 39.7 million tons, compared with 43 million in 1972-73. Domestic feed use may be 171.8 million tons, compared with 173.2 million last year.

Altogether, the new projections indicate that a total feed grain use of 211.5 million tons is expected, or more than 1973 production of 207.7 million.

Some conform, others disbelieve energy crisis

By JEFFREY D. ALDERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Many Americans see the energy crisis as a real threat and say they are cutting back their energy usage as President Nixon has asked. Others say they don't believe the crisis is as bad as it's portrayed.

"We turned the thermostat down to 69 after President Nixon made his announcement," says Mrs. Stanley Korosec of Cleveland in a typical reply. "It's uncomfortable, but we dress for it. We wear sweaters and put more blankets on the bed."

A random survey shows the most mentioned methods by individuals for cutting back on energy consumption are: driving at an efficient 50 m.p.h., lowering the thermostat to about 68 degrees and turning off unnecessary lights.

"We're freezing," says Mrs. William Fridley of Seattle. "We used to keep the thermostat at 75 to 78 degrees. It's turned down to below 70."

She says her family has decided against buying a second car and her husband is talking about joining a car pool.

"I refuse to buy any more ridiculous appliances like electric knives and can openers. We've got just too many conveniences."

But there are some doubters, people who question the depth of the crisis or pooh-pooh it altogether.

Howard V. McCann Sr. of Middleton, Pa. says he hasn't done anything special about Nixon's call. He says he has always been pretty conservative about his use of power anyhow. He says cutting the speed to a maximum of 50 on Pennsylvania roads wouldn't bother him.

"But I actually don't see any reason for it," the skilled mechanic says. "About this fuel shortage, I'm not sure whether to believe them or not. I can't see where it's at right now."

"I won't comply with the President's request. It's just a tactic by Nixon's friends in the oil business to justify a 100 per cent rise in gasoline prices. We've had the wheat deal, the milk deal — this will be the gas deal."

Wildhagen plans to cover the insides of all his windows which don't have storm sashes and to seal all windows with calking cord.

Ken Patterson, a San Diego businessman, has tried driving on those famous California freeways at 50 m.p.h. "Let me tell you it's tough, with people yelling at you and blowing their horns.

"I'll keep trying, though."

Mrs. Ikebalur Chowdhury, of Jefferson City, Mo., says maintaining a 50 m.p.h. average is easy.

"We've always done that," she says. "My husband always drives at 50. I think he's counted three people he has passed on the highway in his life."

4-H news

The Flat Creek 4-H Club at a recent meeting elected new officers and planned activities in the coming weeks.

Bill Monsees was elected president. Other officers are: Vickie Gehlken, vice-president; Sandy Monsees, secretary; Donna Rugen, treasurer; Kendle Leiter, reporter; Terry Ash, parliamentarian; Glenda and Gayle Glaze, song leaders; Nan Leiter and Robin Reisel, game leaders; Jane Crowch, Cris Pace and Lynda Satterwhite, calling committee.

The group decided to go roller skating from 6 to 8 p.m. Nov. 26 at the D & B skating center. Admission is $1. Members are asked to bring a guest.

A Christmas party also was planned for 6:30 p.m. Dec. 13 at the New Bethel Methodist Church. The group will then carol at a local nursing home.

It also was announced at the meeting that the club received the "blue ribbon gold seal," a top award for 4-H clubs.

Schedule meeting

The Pettis County branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will hold its monthly business meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Taylor Chapel United Methodist Church, 400 North Lamine.

Mrs. Haristene Draffen, president, will preside.

Whitever style you select. . . you'll find that magnificent Magnavox sound loses nothing in translation. It sounds just as good in French Provincial as it does in Italian. All models include a solid-state stereo FM-AM radio, a built-in 8-Track Tape Player, the Micromatic I Record Changer, an Air-Suspension Speaker System with 6 speakers — two 8" Bass Woofers, two 5" mid-range speakers, plus two 3½" tweeters. The side-fired High-Compliance Bass Woofers, in specially designed sealed enclosures, combine with the new Magnavox front-fired mid-range speakers and the tweeters. . . to give you superb balance of sound. There's even a built-in 4-Channel Sound Decoder. All concealed in exquisite cabinetry of selected hardwood solids, hardboard and crafted non-wood material.

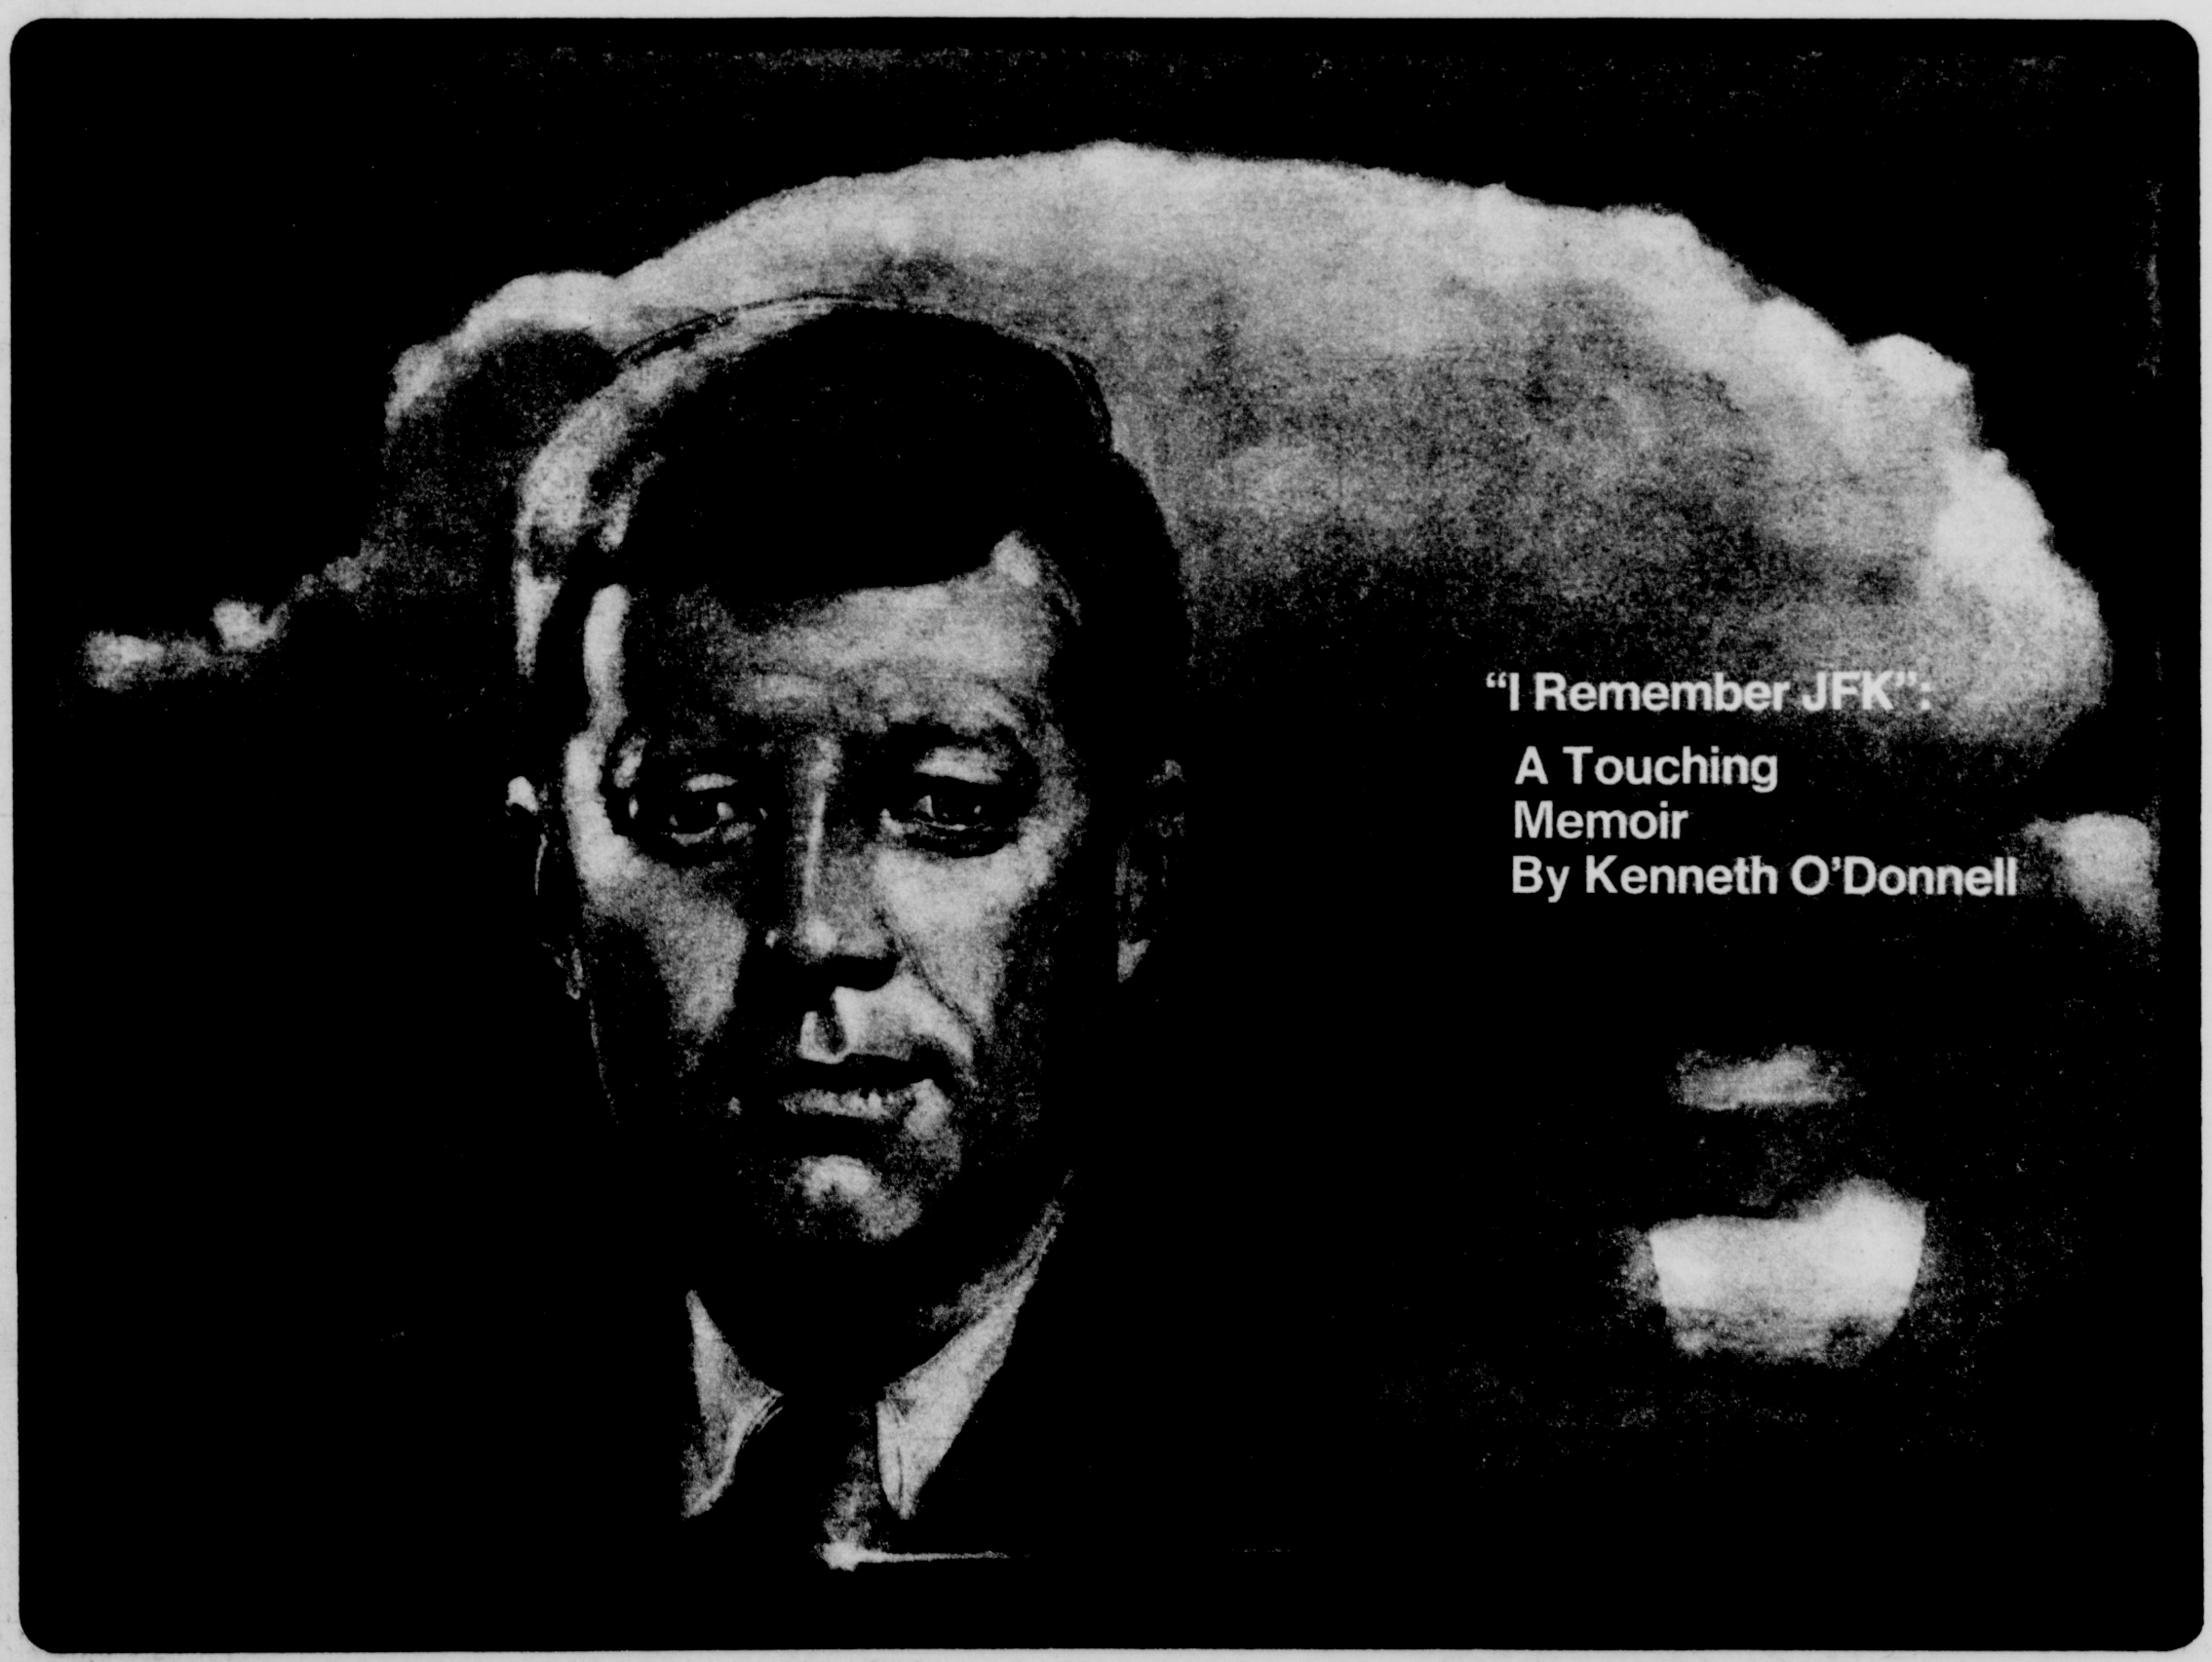
A French Stew That Americans Seem to Adore



"I Remember JFK": A Touching Memoir By Kenneth O'Donnell

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR HARRY REASONER, ABC News*

You recently did on-the-spot reporting of the desolation and starvation in Africa. How did this affect you personally, knowing that you could walk out and that the natives couldn't?—Ralph R. Bell, Escondido, Calif.

● This question confronts most journalists throughout their careers. I remember, for example, departing from an outpost in Vietnam after spending some time with the U.S. Marines who were holding the post under siege. I had gotten to know the men personally, and I knew what they had been through and what they would endure after I was safely back in Saigon. I suppose my feelings toward the West African drought victims were about the same as my feelings toward the Marines. You always leave that kind of situation with one hope—that you can communicate to others what the conditions are and what the people there are enduring. You want to produce in your audience the empathy you felt when you were there. If a journalist can do these two things, then I think he has done his job well.

FOR SEN. JAMES B. PEARSON (R-Kan.)*

I see you've asked for a congressional study of the big newsprint shortage. Can't the press take care of itself?—D. R., Salina, Kan.

● It shouldn't have to—since for many people, particularly those who live in sparsely populated or isolated areas, the daily or weekly newspaper is the single most important source of information available. A severe newsprint shortage over a period of six months could destroy a large number of these publications.

FOR JEANE DIXON, clairvoyant*

● I definitely picked up certain thought waves that I interpreted as warnings of Senator Kennedy's assassination, although these events evolved from man-made thoughts and plans that were subject to change. I do not believe that Senator Kennedy's death was destined, as was John F. Kennedy's.

FOR KAREN BLACK

I read somewhere that you have ESP. Is that true?—J. F., Stockton, Calif.

● I think most people do, without realizing it. I don't know how many times I will pick up the phone before it rings and there's someone on the other end. Recently I called an expectant girl friend because I "knew" she was about to have the baby. She said no, it wasn't time. She called me back 45 minutes later and said yes, she was having her baby.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

You seem so much taller than most performers. Does this present problems?—S. A. Q., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● I'm five-feet-seven, and it used to be a problem when I was a ballet dancer. It's still an obstacle for some of the male dancers I need for my act. I won't even audition one who is under six feet.

FOR WILLIAM CONRAD, TV's "Cannon"

● No, they like me as is, but I want to take it off on my own. On the other hand, if I got to what I should be, the show would go down the drain.

FOR DARRELL ROYAL,

You seem to discourage your players from going into pro football. Why?—Mrs. Lela Owens, Havelock, N.C.

● I'm not knocking pro athletes who have the talent to be in the high-money brackets. I'm talking about the marginal players, who barely make the pro ranks, hang on for awhile, then learn when they retire that they have neither financial security nor stability. I'd like to see our boys with something on the ball channel their intelligence elsewhere.

FOR VICKI LAWRENCE, singer*

Did your hit record, "The Night the Lights Went Out in Georgia," cause any adverse reaction from people in Georgia?—Terry Hull, Quincy, Ill.

● On the contrary, Southerners in general, and people from Georgia in particular, have been my best fans. As you may know, Sonny Bono turned down the song for Cher because he said it would not sit well with Southerners. But I was thrilled with the reaction in the South, particularly in Nashville and Atlanta, where the record broke first.

chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee

Are cotton growers in the chips again? I hear prices have tripled since last year.—S. T., Albany, Ga.

● You're right—but it is not the farmers who will benefit. It is the speculators who will make all the big profits. Wild speculation and the attempts of some buyers to corner the cotton market are largely responsible for these runaway prices.

FOR DEREK MILLER, University of Michigan psychiatrist*

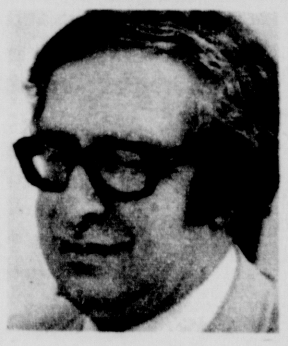
Why do you say that the Women's Liberation Movement is contributing to psychological disturbances in adolescents? —Mrs. Laurene Mills, Hobart, Ind.



● Parts of the Women's Liberation Movement seem to believe roles in the family should be the same for men and women. But if both father and mother behave in an equally motherly way, adolescents struggling for independence from mothering can find no support within the family. To quarrel with both parents at the same time over the same issue leaves children without emotional support, a common cause of running away and drug dependence.

Ten Years After His Death:

"I Remember the Magic That Lived When Jack Kennedy Was Alive"

By Kenneth O'Donnell

Pictorial Parade

"On the evening of his first TV debate with Nixon, I asked the senator about Nixon's ability as a debater. He smiled and said, 'Excellent, as long as an opponent isn't present in the same room with him.'"

On November 22, this Thursday, it will be ten years since Dallas, where he was shot. But it has been 28 years since I first met John F. Kennedy.

It was in the spring of 1945, and the words "Camelot" and "charisma" would have been a bad fit then on this young man who had just decided to run for Congress. He was gaunt from his war injuries in the Solomon Islands and the back injury he received there kept him in almost continuous pain. He told me briefly why he was running and asked for my help in a forthright fashion.

The seat he challenged had been held by his grandfather, the celebrated Honey Fitz, and by James Michael Curley as well. The district itself was highly political, composed of hard-working people whose loyalties were to church, family and politics—in that order. The wealthy John F. Kennedy from Harvard was not of their mould.

Bobby Kennedy met with me and I told him: "Bob, he can't win. I'll help, but it's personal. I don't think he can win." He did win; he had the courage and willingness to knock on every door and accept insults without a backward step. Little by little, he drew the grudging admiration of these people to whom courage was a most respected virtue.

He never forgot the 11th District of Massachusetts. Sixteen years later, when he was President, we sat at his swimming pool and Dave Powers told him that Matty Loftus—a bartender who had been one of his first supporters—had had a heart attack. The President said, "Call him." Long after that, Matty told me how the phone rang, how there was curiosity at the bar. And then Matty told them. "It's Jack," he said, "the President."

After three terms in the House, he went after a seat in the U.S. Senate, a seat held by Henry Cabot Lodge, who was considered unbeatable. But, of course, JFK won. And in his first year as senator, he married Jacqueline Bouvier, but was also forced to subject himself to a critical operation on his spine.

In 1956, he became one of the leading candidates for Vice President at the Chicago convention. A good showing would help him at home but a bad defeat would be embarrassing. When the Louisiana delegation caucused and voted to support him, Bobby called his father in France while Jack watched. Joe Kennedy was angry about Jack running at all—and got so mad he turned the air blue around the telephone. Bob looked at his brother and laughed. "He is the only man in the world," said Bobby, "who can sever a transatlantic cable by voice alone."

The polls in 1956 and 1957 showed a surprising thing—that Kennedy was the presidential choice of Democratic voters. But Jack knew he had to prove his acceptability to the voters.

His religion was a "problem"—and he went against everybody's advice when he made it an issue in the streets of Morgantown, W. Va. To this highly patriotic people, he spoke of his war record and said that neither his religion nor any veteran's religion had ever been questioned in those dark days of the Republic. I was standing in the crowd, stunned by hearing him confront the issue. The spectators were coal miners and steelworkers, most of whom had come out of curiosity to see this boy from Boston. Their comments were exciting. One fellow looked at his friend and said, "Good-looking fellow and a nice talker." The reply was, "Yup, gutsy fellow, too," and a third man said, "I kind of like him."

Back in our car, I told him what I had heard. The senator looked out the window and said, "I made a bet and I won. The people are fair." Religion for the moment was set to rest.

After his nomination, the campaigning was much tougher, with 20 to 30 speeches a day. But at each stop one could almost sense that the senator was projecting his coming administration as the beginning of an adventure.

At one stop in California, Gov. Pat Brown asked a bystander to hold his coat. As the train pulled out, the Governor looked back at his lost jacket and panicked a bit. "He's got my coat," he told Jack—and JFK replied: "Pat, throw him the pants; he might as well have the whole suit."

On the evening of his first TV debate with Nixon, I asked the senator about Nixon's ability as a debater. He smiled and said, "Excellent, as long as an opponent isn't present in the same room with him." Jack must have won the debates, for he won the election that followed.

After the Inauguration ended—in the bitter cold and snow—an agent tapped me on the shoulder. "The President wants you and Mr. Powers in his bedroom at 10 p.m.," he said. We obeyed. Jack strode into the room,

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid if off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less— the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and an 8-cent stamp. But what if I'm right?

Joe, you may be full of beans, but what have I got to lose? Send me the Lazy Man's Way to Riches. But don't deposit my check or money order for 31 days after it's in the mail.

If I return your material – for any reason – within that time, return my uncashed check or money order to me. On that basis, here's my ten dollars.

☐ Please send Air Mail. I'm enclosing an extra dollar.

divesting himself of the day's fineries as he walked. Then he lay down on the bed and said, "At last I have a home. Jackie's right here, I can even go home for lunch with Caroline and John. That's beautiful. But best of all, I won't have you two staring at me at 7 o'clock every morning telling me to get up." The new President fell asleep. At 7 a.m. I awakened him. He stared at me incredulously and said, "Get out." I said, "Sir, the staff awaits you for assignment.

"Who called this outrage at this hour?" he asked. I said, "The President." He looked at me, sat up sharply and said, "Hey, that's me. OK, get my breakfast."

Khrushchev, during the early part of the Presidency, became more bellicose. The Soviet Union broke the Nuclear Treaty that it had solemnly signed with the U.S. The Russian Premier had told Eisenhower in 1959 that he intended to absorb Berlin into East Germany and recognize it as a sovereign nation. President Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev agreed to try to solve the problem in Vienna.

The President sent me to Vienna to prepare the agenda with the Russians. They told me that Mr. Khrushchev was arriving by sealed train and that Kennedy should do the same. I said that the President would fly, that he enjoyed the crowd and that we would make our own decisions. The Russians got our point—the contrast of Kennedy arriving to a happy open reception while the Russians sneaked in during the dead of night. The Soviets also had "decided" to have Mr. Kennedy lay a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier in Vienna. But the President and Mrs. Kennedy wanted to attend services at St. Stephen's Cathedral instead. I called the President in Washington.

"Tell the Russians," he told me, "that while Mr. Khrushchev is laying the wreath on the soldier's grave, I'll be praying for his soul."

Dave Powers and I watched from the Embassy as Khrushchev and Kennedy had their final talk. Suddenly Khrushchev broke into a big grin and the tension appeared to break for a moment. Then the two men ended the conference. I asked the President what Nikita had grinned about. Kennedy explained that he had pointed to one of the medals on Khrushchev's chest and asked about it. Khrushchev had answered, "That's the Lenin Peace Prize." And Kennedy said, "Well, I hope you get to keep it."

On the plane back, he called me to his sleeping quarters and began bouncing his thoughts in the air. He talked about children—not his own, but all children. "I worry because they have not lived their lives. We've seen it all—loved, fought, laughed and cried. But these kids. . . . Do you know what Nikita said? 'I only feel sorry for those who survive a nuclear war.' "

He arrived home and, on television, reported that Khrushchev had told him he was willing to go to war over Berlin. Jack answered that America would meet its commitments. The Soviets began applying daily pressure on the access to Berlin. Every time Rusk, McNamara or Bundy called, the White House shuddered. Never before had two nations tottered on the verge of such disaster.

On October 13, construction began on the Berlin Wall. But Jack Kennedy seemed strangely calm when he heard this news. Finally, he looked up to me and said, "Kenneth, would you separate a city with a wall if you expected to own all of it? The Berlin crisis is over." And so it was.

But the greatest crisis in world history was not far away. In the fall of 1962, the President called for Mr. Gromyko and asked him point-blank if the Soviet Union's word was still good, and whether his master, Mr. Khrushchev, intended to abide by his promise not to plant missiles in Cuba. Mr. Gromyko assured the President that they would not break their word. While this assurance was pouring from his lips, President Kennedy had

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Kenneth O'Donnell, former Special Assistant and Appointments Secretary for President Kennedy, was a close friend of JFK's from 1945 (the year Kennedy first ran for Congress) till the day of the assassination in 1963 (O'Donnell was riding in the car behind Kennedy's limousine in Dallas). A member of Kennedy's so-called "Irish Mafia," O'Donnell has, since those days, worked in the presidential campaigns of Robert Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey, and has himself twice sought nomination for governor of Massachusetts. He is coauthor, with David F. Powers, of the best-selling Kennedy reminiscence, "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye" (Pocket Books, $1.95).

Issue Limited to Orders Postmarked by November 30th
Original Issue Price Only $25.

THE JOHN F. KENNEDY MEMORIAL PLATE

Minted in strictly limited editions of Solid Pewter and 24 Kt Gold on Pewter

Illustration Reduced. Actual Size 9" diameter

THE YEAR was 1963 . . . just ten short years ago. The date was November 22 and the place was Dallas. The President of the United States, John F. Kennedy was riding in the back of his open limousine. In less than one minute the emotions of all Americans were transformed from high spirited celebration to national sorrow. John F. Kennedy had been struck down by an assassin's bullets.

On the threshold of the 10th anniversary of this tragedy, The Hamilton Mint has created a medallic work of art that fittingly portrays the image of this great man. The John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate, designed by the noted medallic artist Thomas E. Rubel and sculptured by master craftsman Alfred Brunnetin captures, for all time, the cherished profile of this man. And now, for a limited time, you can own this outstanding work of art.

ORDERS MUST BE POSTMARKED BY NOVEMBER 30, 1973

AVAILABLE IN SOLID PEWTER & 24 KT GOLD ON SOLID PEWTER

Because Pewter has always been the traditional metal of America, The Hamilton Mint felt it would be most appropriate as the basic ingredient of this historic plate. The John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate is available in Solid Pewter for only $25.00 per plate or in 24 Kt Gold on Solid Pewter for just $40.00 per plate. With either plate you will receive, at no additional cost, a custom designed easel to properly display your plate in a prominent place in your home or office.

INDIVIDUALLY SERIALLY NUMBERED

The John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate will only be available to collectors until November 30, 1973. Any orders postmarked after that date will be returned. Each plate will be individually serially numbered and each subscriber will receive a signed Certificate of Authenticity attesting to the limited edition status of his plate.

Deluxe Version:
24 Kt Gold on Solid Pewter

The beauty of this John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate has been made even more exquisite and valuable with the addition of 24 Kt Gold richly layered on Solid Pewter. Available for just $40.00 each.

Because owning a collector plate that has been struck in a strictly limited edition will set your John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate apart from other works of art, your plate is destined to become a treasured family heirloom.

UNIQUE PLATE DESIGN

Each John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate is a full 9" in diameter and it reflects, in high bas relief, the classic portrait of our former President. Because Pewter is one of the most enduring metals in the world, your plate will reflect in gleaming brilliance, the most minute details of the artist's sculpture.

Celeste Holm:

"Happiness? That's a Greeting Card Word"

"This was the first time I had ever sung in a mental ward. It was an amazing experience! One of the patients was completely turned off; but gradually, as I sang, he began to smile. Later I was told that this was the first response he'd shown in six months."

FAMILY WEEKLY: Where were you born, Miss Holm?

CELESTE: Oh dear, Miss Holm sounds so formal. Call me Celeste—most people do. I was born in New York.

FW: Which part?

CELESTE: All of me.

FW: So you want people to think of you as humorous?

CELESTE: Yes. I like that because without a sense of humor, who can survive?

FW: Who is the real Celeste Holm?

CELESTE: A very busy person, very curious about the hows and the whys of people, and aware of the problems of the world about me. I am also an actress who enjoys her work, because I enjoy the response of people. You see, I care about life itself most of all. That's why all the arts are so fascinating—because they can remind people of the constant and varied potential in our lives. I have always valued the life I was given. I think, if I have a secret for living, it is to enjoy being as involved as I can be in relation to everything around me.

FW: Does that lead ot happiness?

CELESTE: What's that? Joy, pleasure, contentment, maybe. But happiness, no. I think that's a greeting-card word. Too many people look for happiness, believing it to be something that can be attained and felt constantly. I don't think that is true. I believe that life is a series of challenges, and hooray for that! How dull it would be if it weren't.

FW: Are you content then?

CELESTE: At this moment, yes.

FW: But only at this moment?

CELESTE: That's all there is. Now. Today. Who knows what comes next? Right this second I'm having a marvelous time being interviewed.

FW: You like that?

CELESTE: Of course. Everyone likes being the center of attention at times. It's a need we all have, whether people want to admit it or not. Do you know why people want to be stars? I believe it is because they think it means that one is loved more than others and by *every*body. It is the love people want. Money, power, they're just substitutes.

FW: Do you feel loved?

CELESTE: Yes, but I am not always aware of it. Sometimes, when I least expect it, people in the street smile at me. Some even speak to me. I like that. It's the response again, they're responding to their memories of me. When I'm onstage, I need to feel the response of the audience, just as all those people need to feel mine. Perhaps that's what life is all about—reaching out, touching

Cool Whip® makes a pretty pie.

Cool Whip® topped pumpkin pies are not only lovely, they're luscious. If you make your own this season, here's how the good taste of Cool Whip® Non-Dairy Whipped Topping makes light and fluffy Instant Pumpkin Pie.

Instant Pumpkin Pie

2 packages (3¾-oz. each) Jell-O® Brand Vanilla Instant Pudding and Pie Filling 1½ cups milk
1 can (16-oz.) pumpkin
1½ teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
4 cups (one 9-oz. container) Birds Eye® Cool Whip® Non-Dairy Whipped Topping, thawed
1 baked 9-inch pie shell or graham cracker crust, cooled
Pecan halves

Add pie filling mix to milk in a bowl. Mix slowly with rotary beater or at lowest speed of electric mixer just until blended—about 30 seconds. Blend in pumpkin, spice, and 2 cups whipped topping. Pour into pie shell. Chill until set—at least 4 hours. Garnish with remaining whipped topping and pecans.

And saves a pretty penny.

Celeste Holm

each other, contributing to each other's being. Oh my, are we getting too serious?

FW: Would it worry you if we were?

CELESTE: No, not really. But so many people today seem afraid of touching, of feeling. I wish people didn't feel compelled to wear the armor that they do, that shield they live behind.

CELESTE: Mental health. During the war I worked at the Stage Door Canteen. The first hospital I visited was St. Albans, on Sunday, my only day off. This was the first time I had ever sung in a mental ward. It was an amazing experience! One of the patients was completely turned off; but gradually, as I sang, he began to smile. Later I was told that this was the first response he'd shown in six months. Since then I've realized how immediately important we can be to each other, and I've been involved with mental-health programs ever since.

FW: Are you opposed to the new sexual permissiveness?

CELESTE: It doesn't seem to have made people any happier or more aware of each other's needs. There is a lot of "action" today, but very little love. Frankly, I think sex without affection is like life without breath. I have never been interested in making love with a man whose child I wouldn't want to bear. That may be a distinctly old-fashioned concept, but it's mine.

FW: You have children, don't you?

CELESTE: Yes, but I don't talk about them, at least not in print. They are marvelous and they do not wish to be appendages of their mother. I understand and respect that.

FW: You make motherhood sound easy.

CELESTE [Stunned]: I do? Well, I don't mean to. Motherhood is the greatest opportunity for making mistakes. After all, there's no rehearsal, no out-of-town tryout. Just "Okay, Mother, you're on!" and 24 hours a day!

FW: Has your own motherhood made you a more understanding mother onstage?

CELESTE: Of course it has—it was infinitely valuable when I made "Tom Sawyer" last year in Missouri. I play Tom's Aunt Polly—a character Mark Twain patterned after his own mother.

FW: Was it fun playing in a musical again?

CELESTE: We had the most marvelous time together – and all the real townspeople in Arrow Rock, Mo.—population 81 – were our townspeople in the movie. We even restored the town to its old 1840 self.

CELESTE: Was and is. I used to think of my childhood as being quite normal. Now, I'm not too sure. I always felt close to my family. We enjoyed each other, we still do, and that seems to be unusual today. I never felt misunderstood or put down. The generation gap is an alien phenomenon to me. My mother was and is a creative, intelligent, fascinating woman, an artist by profession. My father is warm, human, big in stature and heart.

FW: And your husband?

CELESTE: Wes? [Wesley Addy] Oh my, Wes is the kind of man every woman falls in love with. He is that special. Kind, helpful – he's to be trusted. We've been together 11 years.

FW: Would you call it a modern romance?

CELESTE: On no. Romance is the surest way to the divorce court. Romance is the way people think it is, not the way it is. A good relationship has to be based on mutual respect, affection and trust. It isn't easy to find, but then, what is that's worth having?

Virginia T. Gross

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen shares recipes sent to her by Virginia T. Gross of Council Bluffs, Iowa. Says Marilyn, "When Ginny, who's the wife of newspaper publisher A. Richard Gross, sent me these recipes, I tested them in our kitchens. Take my word for it: they are superb!"

Beef Burgundy— How They Make It In Council Bluffs

Cheese and Crackers
Assorted Beverages
Beef Burgundy*
Yugoslav Vineyard Vegetables*
Mixed Greens Salad
Crusty Garlic Bread
Burgundy Wine

Coffee Tea Milk

*Recipe given

BEEF BURGUNDY

4 tablespoons butter or bacon drippings
7 medium (1½ lbs.) yellow onions, sliced
2 lbs. lean chuck, cubed
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon marjoram leaves
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 can (6 ozs.) sliced or button mushrooms, drained
1 can (10½ ozs.) beef bouillon, undiluted
2 cups dry red burgundy
1 teaspoon liquid gravy seasoning

1. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in 6-8-qt. Dutch oven. Add onions and sauté, stirring, until soft, about 8 minutes. Remove from pan.

2. Add remaining butter and brown meat cubes, ½ at a time. Return all meat to pan, toss with flour. Add salt, pepper, marjoram, thyme, beef bouillon and 1 cup wine.

3. Bring mixture to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer covered 3 hours. Add 1 cup wine, onions, mushrooms and liquid gravy seasoning. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer covered 30 minutes.

4. Taste just before serving. Correct seasoning if necessary. Ladle into serving casserole. Makes 6-8 servings

Make-ahead note: Beef Burgundy may be frozen.

YUGOSLAV VINEYARD VEGETABLES

2 cups cubed potatoes (1 lb.)
1½ qts. cubed eggplant (1 lb.)
2 cups diced green pepper (¾ lb.)
2 cups diced zucchini (½ lb.)
2 cups chopped Bermuda onion (¾ lb.)
2 cups diced carrots
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
½ pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen peas, unthawed
⅓ cup plus 3 tablespoons olive oil
3 teaspoons salt
½-¾ teaspoon Tabasco*
½-¾ teaspoon ground black pepper*
1½ qts. sliced tomatoes (2 lbs.)
⅔ cup converted raw white rice
2 tablespoons wine or cider vinegar
½ cup water
1 cup coarsely grated Jack or Muenster cheese

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Lightly oil a large, shallow 3-qt. casserole.

2. In large bowl combine potatoes, eggplant, green pepper, zucchini, Bermuda onion, carrots, parsley and peas. Season with ⅓ cup olive oil, salt, Tabasco and ground black pepper. Toss well.

3. Place ½ of the sliced tomatoes in bottom of prepared casserole. Cover with ½ of the diced vegetables. Sprinkle rice over the vegetables and top with remaining diced vegetables. Cover with remaining sliced tomatoes. Pour 3 tablespoons olive oil, vinegar and water over all.

4. Bake covered for 1¾-2 hours, until vegetables are tender. Uncover casserole and top with cheese. Place under the broiler about 2 minutes, until surface is lightly browned.

Makes 8 servings

Editor's note: This makes an unusual hearty casserole that serves as both vegetable and starch requirement on your menu.

Great Clothes for the Woman Who Works

This week, Women's Editor Rosalyn Abrevaya has some suggestions for looking great on the job. "Running a household and sandwiching in a full- or part-time job," she says, "calls for easygoing clothes a woman can put on and forget about. Here's how to build such a wardrobe!"

Photos by Normand Menard

Here's a smart duo for winter work assignments. The dress in pure-wool gabardine has a V-neck to fill with a haberdasher scarf. Chains by Monet. The Shetland-wool sweater set is worn over a blanket-plaid skirt in a Woolblend fabric of wool and Orlon. Jewelry by Willie Woo. Outfits from Ellen Tracy.

1. Make an inventory of your current wardrobe. Decide what to discard. A tip: If you haven't worn an outfit in six months, you probably never will. Give it to your favorite charity. Now look over the clothes you enjoy. Perhaps a good suit could stand a change of buttons and belt, maybe a colorful scarf. Or it might be time to invest in a new one again. You might also try buying a smart new jacket for a favorite shirt or skirt.

2. Build around one or two colors. Your choice might be the earth shades of camel, rust, brown or hunter green or wine. By practicing color discipline you'll never be able to say, "I haven't anything suitable to wear!" because, having purchased accessories to coordinate with these colors, you should be able to pull together any number of dressing combinations.

3. Resist fad buying. If you're tempted to buy clothing that doesn't coordinate with the rest of your wardrobe or emphasizes fuss and frill, forget it. You'll only feel guilty watching it hang there when you realize you didn't really need it.

4. Keep a list of accessories of "what goes with what" pinned inside your closet door. You'd be amazed at the time it saves when you're trying to get to work.

If your wardrobe does need filling in after you've inventoried it, there are some exciting choices this season: Sweater dressing is getting a big play. It could be a sweater-knit dress with short cape sleeves or a big shawl-collared sweater-jacket tied like a bathrobe or a sweater set (the difference from the twin set of the fifties—the cardigan is longer). Suits are back and have never looked better. The prevalent style is a new, softer construction, usually with a longer, belted jacket. British-inspired fabrics—flannels, tweeds and plaids—are making good fashion sense and represent a return to the classics.

In accessories, the small hat looks right whether it's a felt fedora, a knitted cap or wool-jersey turban. Chains of varied lengths, the thinner the better, are being worn in cascades down the bodice of a soft dress or sweater. The reigning handbag silhouette is the long envelope clutch, roomy enough for all your necessities. Sheer, shaded hose are being worn with everything, while the clunky, clodhopper shoe is being displaced by slender, comfortable heels.

As a working woman, do you have to mortgage the homestead to afford these new fashions? Not likely. All the clothes shown are under $100.

And that most of the controversy is about 'tar' and nicotine.

Yet when we ask the average menthol smoker why he smokes a menthol cigarette, he almost always tells us that he smokes a menthol because it doesn't have a hot or a harsh or a scratchy taste.

Well, Vantage with menthol doesn't have a hot or a harsh or a scratchy taste either.

But what Vantage Menthol also doesn't have is anywhere near the 'tar' and nicotine most of the other menthols have.

But it has only 11 milligrams 'tar' and 1.0 milligrams nicotine.

Don't get us wrong. That doesn't mean Vantage Menthol is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol around.

It does mean that Vantage Menthol is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette that you'll enjoy smoking.

You don't have to believe us.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Filter: 11 mg. "tar," 0.8 mg. nicotine, Menthol: 11 mg. "tar," 1.0 mg. nicotine—av. per cigarette, FTC Report Feb. '73.

THE WORLD'S FASTEST, MOST SUCCESSFUL WAIST SHAPER EVER.

"I lost 6 inches off my waistline in only 21 days doing just one five minute exercise–and didn't even have to give up eating the foods I love."

"I never thought it would happen to me...but it did. I got fat.

"As a former fashion model, I'd always taken pretty good care of myself because if I didn't look good, I didn't work. But when I got married, and didn't need a job, it was a different story.

"For about 5 years I neglected my body, and ended up a mess. And worst of all, I looked about 10 years older than I really was. So I decided that it was time to do something drastic. I tried a few of those 'effortless exercisers' but, of course, they didn't do a thing.

"Then I heard about Joe Weider's 5 Minute Slimming Plan. After just 21 days on the plan, my weight dropped from 143 lbs. to 129. And my waist went from a sloppy 31" to a nice, trim 25", just about what it was when I was modeling. I can't thank the Weider 5 Minute Slimming Plan enough. It gave me back my youth." Aleta Hopkins

Living Proof of Fantastic Results

BEFORE WAIST 44" AFTER WAIST 38"
MICHAEL BENEDICT (AGE 55) LOST 22 LBS.

BEFORE WAIST 30" AFTER WAIST 25"
SANDY DIXON LOST 7 LBS.

BEFORE WAIST 36" AFTER WAIST 33"
KEN WALLER (AGE 26) LOST 6 LBS.

What is this ingenious 5 minute body shaper plan?

The Weider "5-Minute Body Shaper" plan is based on doing ONE CONTINUOUS RHYTHMIC CO-ORDINATED EXERCISE. That's all you do! This one 5-minute exercise is designed to attack the Waistline and Hipline (where fat accumulates quickest,. giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look)—as well as burn off excess body fat fast by speeding up your metabolism, burning stored calories and releasing excess water — while reshaping your chest, shoulders, arms and hips, as well as firming up your legs and gut — YOUR TOTAL BODY!

Individual results vary, but during an average 14-day period, you can expect to lose up to 4 inches from your waistline and up to 10 pounds from your present weight. It strengthens your heart and lungs, increases stamina and endurance, improves your digestive function and general health. It also shapes you up — from head to toes. For a "5-Minute Exerciser — it sure does a lot."

"Doctors have always known, exercise done while lying on the back, virtually eliminates strain while slimming and reshaping the body. Yours is the finest Body Shaper Program on the market." RICHARD TYLER, Chiropractor

"Beats jogging and working out in gyms—and much safer. I lost 4½ inches off my waist in 14 days." JIM HANLEY, famous athletic coach

"Based on sound physiological and medical knowledge, it burns fat and shapes the body without strain to the heart or other organs. I lost 32 lbs. of excess weight using it." PIERRE GRAVEL, D.C.

*Exposing effortless exercisers

Reader's Digest (September, 1971), New York Times and Good Housekeeping, among others, exposed sauna wraps, inflated belts, weighted belts and effortless exercisers as frauds. Scientific researchers, medical and fitness experts all agree... there is only one way to firm, shape and trim up your body.... you must work the inches off!

Famed European health and beauty authority reveals how to RID YOURSELF OF UGLY FAT... LOSE THOSE LUMPS, BUMPS AND BULGES YOU COULDN'T LOSE BEFORE in a startling new book that exposes CELLULITE.

In 224 revealing pages, Mme. Nicole Ronsard deals with a problem affecting 8 out of 10 women . . . the problem of the lumps and bulges that won't go away no matter how much you diet . . . no matter how much you exercise.

If diet doctors, pills, salons, exercise gyms, spas and steam rooms haven't helped, chances are that you have cellulite and can be one of those fortunate women that will benefit from the secrets in this sensational new book.

WHAT IS CELLULITE?

Don't let the word frighten you. Millions of women everywhere have cellulite and live their lives with it . . . simply because they have never been able to recognize it, and thus have not been able to do anything about it. Now, thanks to the efforts of Mme. Nicole Ronsard, the prayers of many can be answered.

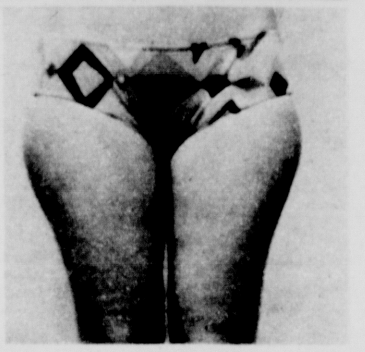
Cellulite, which causes unsightly lumps and bulges, is more than simple fatty tissue. It is a gel-like substance made up of fat, water and wastes trapped in immovable pockets beneath the skin.

Mme. Ronsard deals with every aspect of cellulite. You quickly learn where to look for it . . . recognize it . . . and, most important, rid yourself of it forever!

Think what this could mean to you. Unsightly bulges around hips, thighs and buttocks—gone. Flab and pockets of fat around knees, upper arms—gone. Wear clothes you never dreamed you could wear; bathing suits you never dared to even try on; gowns and evening clothes made only for others . . . not for you.

Yes, new life awaits you within the pages of this exciting new book. Say good-bye to "jodhpur thighs" and "saddlebag buttocks" . . . never again be embarrassed by "cottage cheese" textured skin.

While cellulite is recognized throughout Europe, this is the first and only book published in America that deals with this relatively unknown blight to femininity. Every aspect of the problem is discussed and explained in easy-to-read language. For any woman who suspects she may have a cellulite problem, no matter how slight or advanced, this book is a "must."



HOW TO RECOGNIZE CELLULITE

Visually, ordinary fat and cellulite are different. Regular fat, when squeezed, is smooth in texture. It does not show ripples or lumps.

To discover if you have a cellulite problem, take one simple test that cannot fail: Squeeze the tissues between the thumb and index finger or between the palms of both hands. If cellulite is present, skin ripples and looks like an orange peel. At a more advanced stage, ripples will be noticeable without any pressure.

PRAISE FROM THE PRESS

HARPER'S BAZAAR QUOTES NICOLE RONSARD:

"Cellulite can be licked. It's knowing what the problem is and how to solve it that makes the difference."

VIVIAN BROWN, ASSOCIATED PRESS:

"Mme. Ronsard is an expert in the treatment of cellulite. In her salon she uses the French treatment method; but one need not go to a salon to have it done, one reason she wrote the book, "Cellulite—Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before."

VOGUE MAGAZINE:

"If you ask Nicole Ronsard about cellulite, she could write a book. And she has—Cellulite: Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before. The very first of its kind, it's devoted exclusively to cellulite—a subject Mme. Ronsard has been studying all her life.

RECOGNIZED BY MEDICAL PROFESSION

Dr. Ian Botosan, a New York gynecologist, stated that cellulite bulges and lumps that won't go away with ordinary diet and exercise have become more prevalent with the increased pace and anxiety of modern living. To quote:

"Women complain that most doctors have no sympathy for this condition and more often than not just tell them not to worry about it and get on with the problem of living."

PLEASED BY NICOLE RONSARD'S BOOK

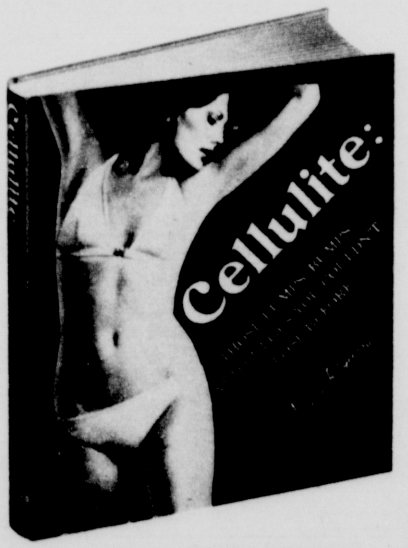
"I am particularly pleased that Mme. Nicole Ronsard has decided to write this book, thoroughly exposing cellulite for what it is—a very special condition that needs very special corrective measures. I highly recommend (it) as a tremendous help to all those women who have the problem and never knew what to do about it." —Ian Botosan, M.D.

FIRST PRINTING NOW READY

The first printing of this important new book is now ready for distribution. To assure early delivery, rush your order today. Fill in the coupon below and send it with your check for just $12.95.

You are certain to agree that Nicole Ronsard's treasure of knowledge should become a permanent addition to your bookshelf. The information, the advice, the total concepts contained therein can help you shape a new outlook on life, as well as a new figure.

So act now, while you're determined to help yourself. The answer to your problems may be in the understanding of cellulite and the program found in "Cellulite Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before."



DE LUXE HARD BOUND EDITION

A Doctor's Foreword

Mme. NICOLE RONSARD ... the author

She is a graduate of the world renowned Ecole Superieure de Paris in Esthetique Corporelle (science related to body shaping techniques).

Under the tutelage of Rene Morice, she probed the causes of cellulite, and with intensive studies in anatomy, physiology, histology, nutrition, calisthenics and manipulative therapy, developed a successful method of treating it.

Mme. Ronsard's salon in New York has gained widespread fame for the remarkable results achieved in thousands of cases. Women in all walks of life, from housewives to socialites, have praised her—for she helped when all others had failed.

To reach the thousands throughout the country who suffer from cellulite, Mme. Ronsard has written her book with the hope that they may be helped. Her wealth of knowledge may now be shared with women everywhere.

GUARANTEE

When you order "Cellulite: Those Lumps Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before," you do so with the understanding that if this sensational book doesn't help you overcome your most difficult figure problems, you may return for full money back. Kennedy in his lap the latest pictures of the missile sites. He told me later, "It was the hardest moment I can remember. I just wanted to bring those pictures out, put them in his hands and ask him to repeat what he had said."

The President debated the alternatives: tactical air strikes, invasion or a blockade. The merit of the blockade was that it gave the Russians time to realize our intentions with minimum losses both physically and to Soviet "face." Blockade it was, and the U.S. Navy was deployed.

The President informed the American people on TV of the Soviet deceit and the danger it posed. On Saturday, two cables came from the Kremlin. The first expressed a willingness to cease construction of the sites and discuss the removal of Soviet bombers. The second cable said the Soviets wanted to discuss withdrawal of American forces from their positions all over the world. Since the second cable was unacceptable, Bobby Kennedy suggested we ignore it and give tentative agreement to the first cable. Which is exactly what we did.

The next morning the radio told everyone that Khrushchev had agreed to withdraw the missiles, that the ships were turning back and the crisis was over.

As we assembled at the White House that morning, an obviously relieved and happy group, the President told us pointedly that he didn't want to see any gloating by government people. Any implication that we had forced Khrushchev to back down could lead to disaster. John F. Kennedy was not only a political leader, but a real statesman, as Nikita Khrushchev was just finding out.

Dallas was his last voyage. He wanted to go. He wanted to win Texas in 1964, and he was greeted by large and friendly crowds everywhere. During the motorcade, Dave Powers turned to me and said, "We'll win Texas." These were Dave's last words to me before the shots rang out.

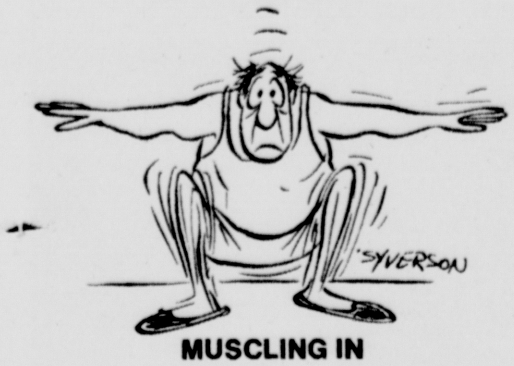
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



MUSCLING IN

I've heard of what is often known,
And spoken of, as muscle tone.
What tone is that? I must say I
Have wondered whether low or high.
My muscle tone, upon my word,
I've listened for but never heard.
I've had a twinge but not a twang,
I've had a binge but not a bang.
My joints I've heard, their creak and crack,
I have a noisy neck and back.
My muscles, though, I can't deny it,
Must be high-toned, they are so quiet.

They have a teenage doll that's so realistic, you wind it up and it leaves home! —Robert Orben

I often put off till tomorrow
What I should do today—
Because I find it'll slip my mind
Much easier that way.
—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

On a recent trip to the Jersey shore, I lost my four-year-old son on the boardwalk. After a few minutes (which seemed like hours), I found him with a lady and her small baby. The woman told me that she had asked my son what his mother was wearing so that she could help him find me. He had replied, "It doesn't matter what my mother is wearing. I'd know her face anyplace."
—Mrs. Ronald Tomasello
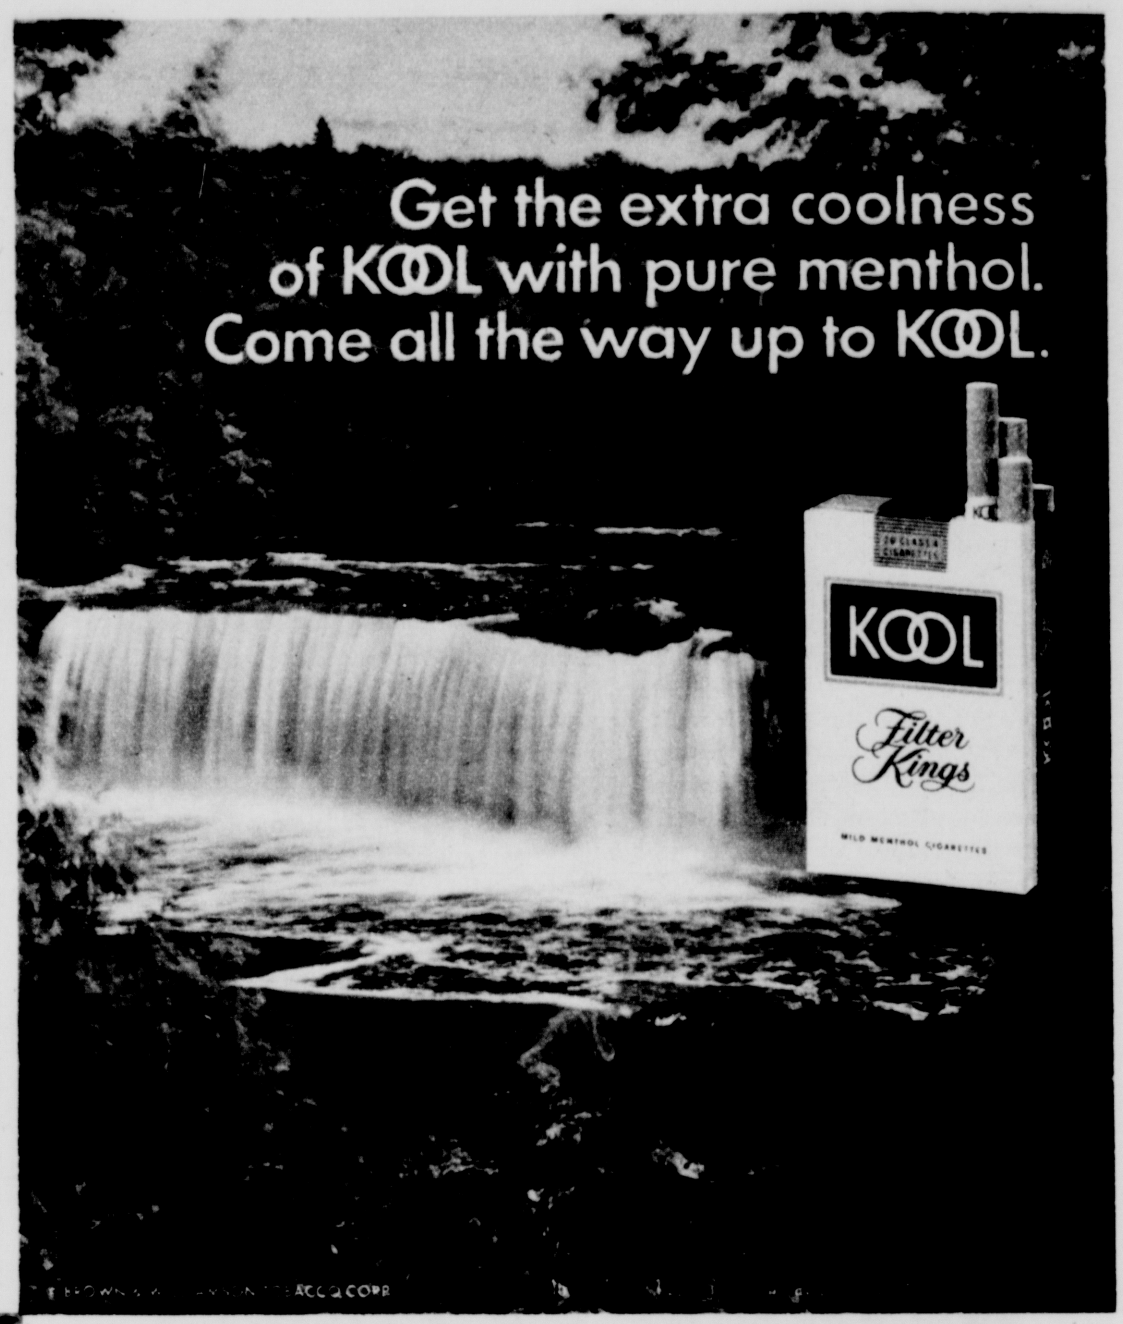
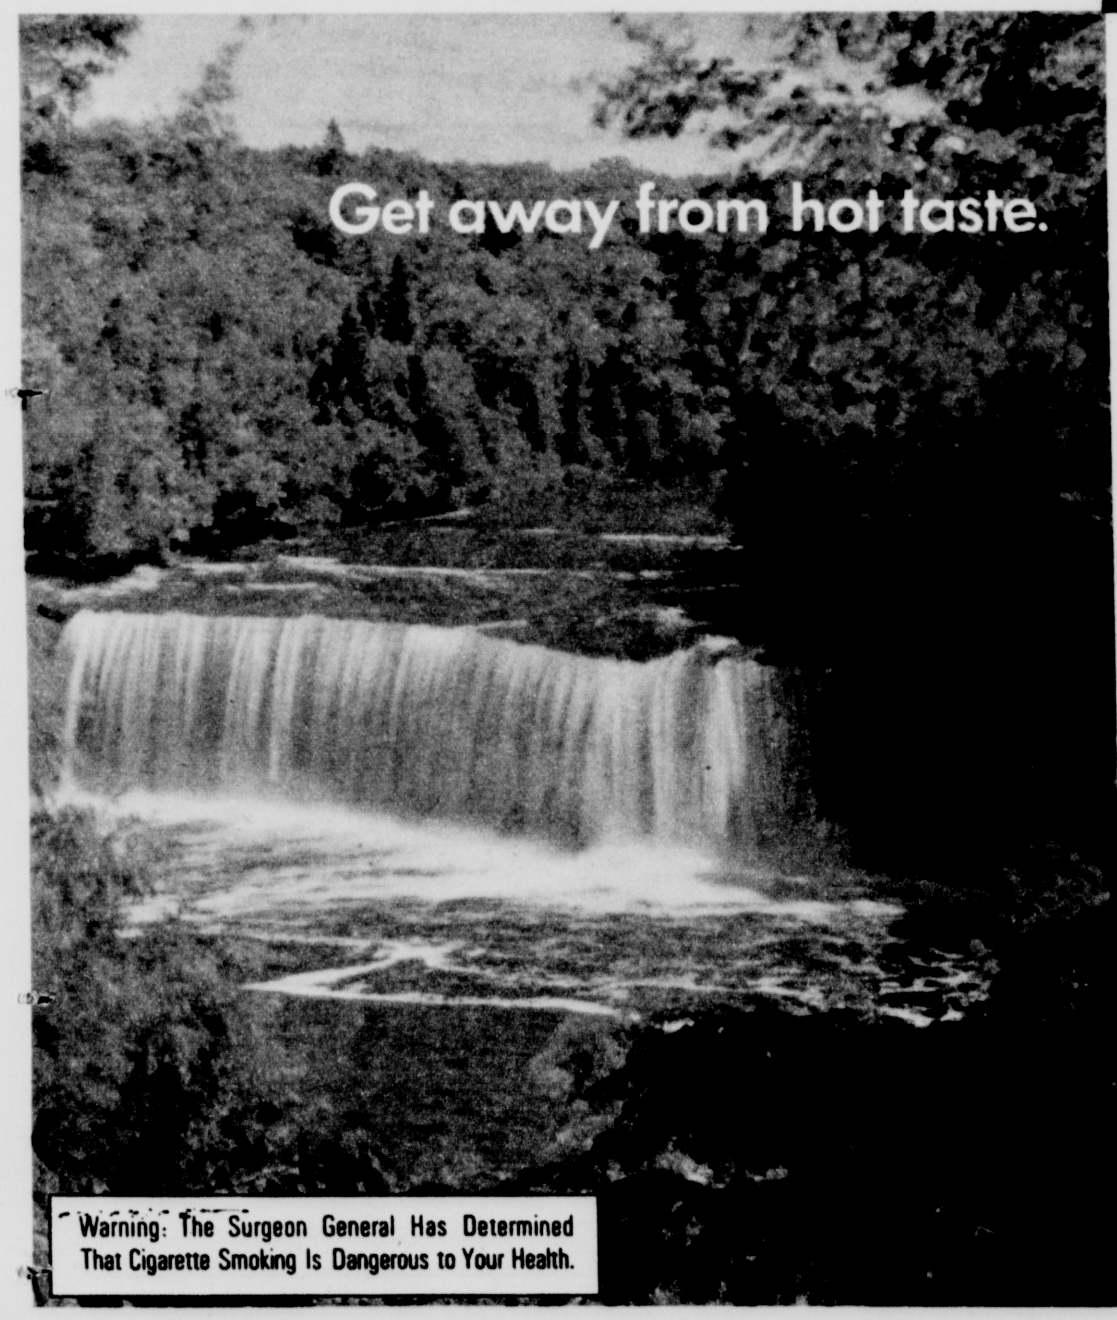
Elm (Hammonton), N.J.





A pair of identical twin brothers decided to have some fun. They dressed exactly alike, went to a bar and sat, side by side, with the same kind of drink.

A man who had been drinking heavily staggered in, stared at them and ordered another drink. Cautiously, he approached the twins for a better look.

The drunk looked again, blinked, and asked: "All four of you?"
—Conrad Fiorello

Girl babies start talking a month earlier than boy babies. From that time on, they keep increasing their lead.
—Lucille J. Goodyear

A visitor to Los Angeles was on a tour of the La Brea Tar Pits, a tourist attraction on busy Wilshire Boulevard where the remains of many prehistoric mammals have been dug up from the earth they were trapped in. When the guide pointed out some markings that were thought to be footprints of dinosaurs, the astonished woman turned to her companion and exclaimed: "I'm amazed that they'd come this close to a busy street like Wilshire Boulevard!"
—Dan Bennett

Husband, sitting down to his bride's first dinner: "Ah, yum, yum! Certified coloring, artificial flavors, potassium nitrate, benzoate of soda and monosodium glutamate!" —Henry Leabo

ELSIE AND BAYAH
Two cuddly rejects

Elsie, the lion cub and Bayah, the tiger cub, were abandoned by their mothers at a tender age and adopted by Mary Chipperfield, whose daughter Suzanne is shown here giving the cubs a little mother love of her own. "Big cats tend to reject their young if there is anything wrong with them," explained Mrs. Chipperfield. "Elsie couldn't move her back legs at first because she had something wrong with her joints. But luckily a surgeon was able to drain off some fluid and she's now frisky." Bayah's rejection, however, remains a mystery, as does the question of what will happen to the cubs when they grow up.

FAYE DUNAWAY
The windmills of her mind

Faye Dunaway is into a new kind of self-analysis that she calls "active imagination." Recently she described an Alice-in-Wonderland trip into her own mind: "You close your eyes and uncross everything. You mustn't cross the conscious side of yourself with the unconscious. You just go inside, and when you feel you're inside, you look for an opening on the left—the unconscious side. It's always quite specific. You go through that and then you go down a kind of tunnel. You come out, then you look for your guide. It's just far out, it really is. I asked one figure if he was my guide, and he turned into something else. Then I asked him again, and he said, 'Yes.' Then I tell him who I want to visit. The devil, for example. My guide takes me to visit him." What good is all this? "Well," says Faye, "a lot of good things have been happening to me since I've been doing it. Somehow it helps—just in terms of connecting with what's around you." And you thought she was just another face!

"Men are like plants. They have their good qualities and their bad. Even the best of my good herbs can become dangerous and harmful. Roman chamomile, for example, that family panacea with such a good name for aiding the digestion and settling a nervous stomach, can cause vomiting if taken in too large doses. Linden blossoms, which so effectively induce sleep, can cause insomnia if the doses are too strong. Even the greater celandine, which I value highly, is so toxic that if very strong doses are ingested it can be fatal. I feel the same curiosity and the same affection for men and all growing things. This helps me greatly in my treatments." From "Of Men and Plants," by Maurice Messegue (Macmillan, $6.95).

Want to build a $350,000 sports stadium? Jerry Woodard of the Post-Tribune in Gary, Ind., did it. But he had something special going for him—Gary hosts the Little League World Series, the only true world series in baseball. To become host, Gary had to come up with a large enough stadium. So Jerry and other community leaders got to work. "We 'sandbagged' everybody in the community," he says, "and the newspaper went all out in promoting our project." The contributions, small and large, came tumbling in. A building contractor worked free. And the steelworkers, electrical workers and plumbers unions donated their members' time. Up went the stadium, big enough to seat 15,000 to 17,000 people, and with the most up-to-date facilities anywhere in the country.

Doctors' Tests Show How You Can Actually Help Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

Also Get Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Rectal Itching and Pain in Such Tissues.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H. Preparation H® also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

MANY BIRDS LIKE TO TAKE DRY BATHS IN DUST OR SAND. THEY CROUCH DOWN ON THE DRY GROUND AND SCRATCH AND FLUFF AND SHAKE THEIR FEATHERS UNTIL THEY ARE FULL OF DUST. THEN THEY PREEN THEMSEVES BY "COMBING" THEIR BILLS OVER THE FEATHERS TO MAKE THEM LIE SMOOTHLY. MANY PEOPLE WHO WATCH BIRDS THINK THAT THIS IS THE WAY BIRDS GET RID OF BIRD LICE THAT FIND THEIR WAY UNDER A BIRD'S FEATHERS. PERHAPS IT MAY ALSO HELP KEEP A BIRD'S FEATHERS WELL-GROOMED FOR FLYING.

Tips 'n Ones

DEAR POLLY — I am sure all the girls are aware of many uses for baking soda, but I discovered a new one. I was quite upset when I found that someone had marked on my closet door with red, green and blue wax crayons. I did not want to use an abrasive remover. I applied baking soda with a damp paper towel and rubbed the marred surfaces till all marks were removed. — MRS. J. H. T.

●

DEAR POLLY — A small magnet tied to a length of string is handy to use for retrieving pins and needles that fall on the floor. — ALENE

DEAR POLLY — My daughter, 8, has her own desk and a designated time for study after school. I have made large, colorful charts out of discarded plastic window shades and they hang over her desk so she can pull down the one with numbers, the one with the alphabet, etc. The rollers are hung just above one another. Now she ALMOST enjoys learning. — MARILYN

DEAR POLLY—I carry a three-pound coffee can full of sand in the trunk of my car and find a bit of sand behind the rear tires helps me to back away from a snow-packed curb.—MRS. F. H. C.

DEAR POLLY — Where there are children cookies disappear very quickly. Older people eat them more slowly but also like having a variety of cookies. Take two, three or even more different packages, open and mix them all up and then put in plastic containers (half-gallon ice cream containers work well). Put containers in the freezer. When wanted, the cookies thaw quickly and are ready to eat in minutes. — MRS. H.

DEAR POLLY — I used colored desk blotters to line my kitchen cabinet shelves and drawers. They come in many colors, absorb moisture, are quite inexpensive and last a long time. I think they are more satisfactory than paper. — SHIRLEY.

DEAR POLLY — Use your long, narrow leftover strips of double knit fabrics for trim on pillows, bedspreads and even dresses and jackets. Sew them to squares of cloth, using different lengths, and then put the squares together. In fact, all sorts of novel arrangements can be worked out with them. — MRS. E. S. B.

●

DEAR POLLY — I have a wonderful use for the plastic tops off the new potato chips cans. They just fit over the tops of the mugs I have hanging on my mug "tree," so the mugs are always dust free and ready to use. — MRS. K. G. T.
